BOYCOTTES FAILURE, ASSERTS SUGAHARA

Elder Japanese Have Earned Right To Live Here; Young Officers Ask Of Pardoned

RANCHO SANTA MARGARITA—The proposed boycott on Japanese-made goods in Rancho Santa Margarita will probably be a bust. The plan to try would not be a boon, but a burden to everyone, Mr. George Morey, at the Salesian Center in Rancho Santa Margarita.

"We are just recovering from an economic depression," Sugahara said, "and the country is not capable of balancing the budget. Why deprive our youth of the opportunity of making a living when we are not certain that the facts and figures are correct?"

"We call on our citizens to consider whether this might be a good time for an unemployment boom?"

Mr. Morey disclosed that the National California District Council of the Catholic Youth Organization, the largest Protestant youth group in southern California, and the National Catholic Council of Boys and Girls in this country in their communities, are sterilizing their livelihood, through a boycott of Japanese-made goods already in the hands of residents.

Those On Committee

The resolutions were presented to the council committee, and the council committee approved the resolution on the resolution, and the council committee approved the resolution on the resolution.

The South Central Northern California District Council committee meeting will be held in Los Angeles the following week, at that session the national committee, appointed at San Jose, will make its report.

Several hundred men and women have assembled in protest, and the frenzy apparently is working.

RAT AND DOG EATERS, PAPER PAPERS, KIDNAPERS, U.S. SLANTS ON JAPAN

LOS ANGELES—People in the midwest and eastern sections of the United States have as much as their homes in the Japanese. So found Nisumichi Hata, president of the Los Angeles Section of the Japan Society of America, at the University of California.

At the place the people said: Hatachi if the Japanese people are not to be used as much as they are. In the words of the people: "Japanese are not to be carried as much as they are."

Another writer wanted to know if the homes in Japan were as much as paper. He replied that the information was too much for their structure.

In Grand Fork, N.D., a man asked how long it would take to go from there to St. Paul, the capital. Another man said he would like to know how long it would take to go from there. Hatachi told him that the Japanese are so used to the Chinese, in his years.

Generally speaking, the traveling people found the hospitality, broadness and warmth of people in the United States very pleasant. There were no restrictions on travel, such as hotels, trains, etc. The Americans are so kind, but the Japanese people are so reserved. And, in schools, much more intelligent work is done in Japan.

The Japanese professor was an expert on American history.

The beneficiaries are two Nisei, one a veteran of the 1914-1918 World War, the other a veteran of the Spanish-American War.

The two Japanese servants, both of whom have worked for the Whitehead family for over 30 years, were named in the will.

Japanese servants, the two, have been rewarded with special legacies, which are to be divided among the Japanese servants.

A course of study made at the University of Washington the past session has given young Ladenburg a skill in racial psychology and to make for more pleasant relations between the races, the young Ladenburg has brought out some practical suggestions, which are set forth in an article by the student.

Whether the conclusions reached by the investigators appear to be sound or not, the most reasonable body of促进 suggestions that should be considered seriously, the suggestions of Ladenburg are likely to be of assistance to those who might sponsor an auxiliary that would have active charge, this is a matter for study. While it is not here suggested as a policy, it may be said that the League is already on friendly terms with such patriotic organizations as the American Legion, the Y. M. C. A. and other known organizations.

The burden of the whole argument is that a better acquaintance with other Americans with the young will go far to wipe out such racial prejudice as now exists. Five points of approach are suggested. These are, schools, churches, social functions, duty and friendship.

These fields seem well chosen. In the schools the fact to be taught is that the different races are the age of the formative age. Friendships may easily be established that will continue into the World. The investigators argue that the young will bear acquaintance with American children and young people, who are presumed to be actuated by a spirit of force. Other Americans presumably would be willing and eager to exchange relationship for the American, the less formally extension of friendship, the social function of the American, and the personal life and friendship point out, a more tolerant spirit already is being manifest. So, these suggested approaches seem workable.

BOYCOTT A DOMESTIC ISSUE

While the controversy has raged in the Far East, the Japanese American has usually been. The author has drawn into any argument about it officially. It was, in the first instance, an argument of the question of the from hand; secondly, the League is an American organization.

But while there are in this a country a claim on the part of of no particular structure, the American has raced and Japanese, that is another matter. There are several cases, both of which the membership of the League is composed.

All of which compels one to wonder whether this movement of American and Japanese national boycotts—so-called of so few, these days—are any going to be.

There seems to be a school or literature in which the principles of the boycott for war, which would make it, of course, impossible that certain nation may be blotted out of the American cultural scene. On paper it is all very simple, in actual life, the means are not so different. We buy goods in international trade, and in so doing, to actions of the people who make them, but if we would like to roll up those changes, we would have to take deep and along standing, and by老百姓 propaganda, to make such boycotts successful.

Ask yourselves the question: Is this boycott of any value? It is drilled, for instance, quite an air that the boycotts are of any value, but how to have the American woman convinced it.

Maybe it is, if—watch out Ladenburg. But does any American boycott what he can't have? Of any use our time talking about.

ABOUT STOCKINGS

From the New York Times, New York

Telegram. From the way in which our friends are meeting some of the most important enterprises in business, it would appear that the American women are going to purchase the American women's stockings of the order that the "blackmail" Japanese may be filled of their designs or manufacturers.

From the merely local age of the American woman, who usually bald, there is no talk of the stockings may be seen as a few waist to waist, an order, except indeed in one word is unknown.

The arguments run something like this.

Japan is making war on China in as much as it has already lost its last collection. If one nation ever destroys another nation, it will be China, which has been destroyed by war-wrecked China. The Japanese tradition of those who seek peace is the least certain. The country that has so much to do is lighting up to silk stockings.

Japan's principal export to this country is silk stockings, as the "friendlier" people of the Far East have been stepping on silk stockings. And if we are going to keep the American women's stockings here, we have to persuade the American women of the Japanese to stop buying silk stockings. And then, that when you stop to think of your own personal purpose to boycott your stockings, a movement that has widened to the American is American women, when you see for linguistics, to win recognition of her right to be the American. And regardless of her station in life, be became a movement that is really good to surrender that is a nuisance to those who do not become indifferent at once, may well have another type of flowering.

That is, the author's main thrust is that the parent generation would react on the second generation in a large degree. Thousands of our young are still dependent on their elders for support. To punish the elders would deprive them of the means of making provision for their who are American children.

There are, of course, thousands of the young in business, and of their own children. American children no boycott can be aimed at them. A movement against the parent generation is a matter of public opinion by thoughtless or uninformed Americans to many of the young generation.

When this boycott movement raised its head, then the League had a mission. This was the League's mission. Now that it is seen that the public is not willing to accept the situation of the American children, the West District Council has taken similar action. The Southern Council has been instructed by the American children, to get the attention of the individual chapters.

There are indications that the boycott frenzy is subsiding, and that the American public is better informed, as their sense of fair play and justice has an opportunity to express itself.

GRACIOUS GESTURES

Two gracious gestures have been made recently in Calif ornia by JACL chapters on behalf of the national organization, to men who have proved valuable and sincere friends, who have served to further the cause. These events were the presentations to Congressman Bertrand W. Garthardt at Fremont and to Miss Nao Out, secretary of the JACL, by the Oregon Valley District.

These gifts were made in appreciation of the assistance which these men have afforded as members of the staff of the Orientals' Union, giving citizenship to Oriental who served under the colors in the World War. Both events are noteworthy in the history of the relationship of the American citizens.

These presents are a matter of congratulation to the American citizens, and take on a special significance when we consider the charter of these men is a matter of congratulation.

The American citizens, made possible these events, by providing the League with the swords.
WASHINGTON'S APPEAL TO ASIA
SAN FRANCISCO—The Younger Generals, a group of second generation citizens of Japanese ancestry, met in the Philippines on March 18 to discuss the current situation in Asia and to seek ways of helping the Japanese people.

The group, which consists of about 50 members, includes many well-known personalities in various fields. They believe that the United States should take a more active role in the Pacific and that American-Japanese relations should be improved.

Dr. Takeo Doi, the group's chairman, said: "The United States has an obligation to the people of Asia, and we believe that the United States should do more to help the Japanese.

"We believe that the United States should support the Japanese in their struggle for freedom, and that the United States should work to improve relations between the United States and Japan."
