War Department Identifies 7 Japanese Americans Killed. 151 Hurt on Western Front

WASHINGTON-The War Department during the week of Jan. 7 identified seven killed and 151 wounded United States soldiers of Japanese ancestry.

All of the casualties were reported from the European theatre, presumably in operations of the 442nd (Japanese American) Regimental Combat Team of the Seventh Army on the Western Front.

(In all these cases next of kin have previously been noti-fied and have been kept informed directly by the War Department of any change in status. In case of divergence between this list and information sent to the next of kin, the last War De-partment telegram or letter to the next of kin is always the appropriate final authority on the status of a soldier. Because of the time necessary to compile these lists, information is listed several weeks after next of kin have been notified. Some of the casualties listed have previously been reported in the Pacific Citizen through information from the next of kin or relocation centers.)

Hood River Area Citizens Plan New County Honor Roll

HOOD RIVER, Ore. — Mem-bers of the Hood River community, led by the Ministerial Association, was preparing to remove the black mark of the American Legion's action in erasing the names of 16 Jap-anese American soldiers from a county war memorial, it was stated here.

A resolution passed by the Ministerial Association sharply condemned the Legionnaires and proposed a new county honor roll to include the names

"We consider it unjust, un-American and un-Christian to deprive them (the Japanese Americans) of their privileges and rights," the resolution said. can only make more difficult the solution of racial problems and bring trouble and shame upon Hood River Valley.'

Federal Agencies to Assist Reassimilation of Evacuees Into Former Home Communities

Dillon Myer Believes Largest Movement of Evacuees Back to Coast Will Come Between March and September; Forecasts Little Trouble

SAN FRANCISCO--Procedures to ease the reassimilation of returning evacuees of Japanese ancestry by West Coast communities were explored thoroughly on Jan. 10 and 11 by representatives of more than a score of private organizations interested in race relations and by officials of a dozen government agencies.

The conference was called by the Pacific Coast Committee on American Principles and Fair Play and was attended by officials from the three West Coast states. The National Japanese Ameri-can Citizens League, invited to participate in the conference, was represented by Saburo Kido, national president, and Teiko Ishida, head of the JACL's new San Francisco office.

Dillon S. Myer, national direc-tor of the War Relocation Authority and the main speaker at the Wednesday morning session, pre-dicted that the largest movement of evacuees back to their former West Coast homes would come between March and September of this year.

He expressed hope that the evacuees still in camps would re-locate in normal communities soon because the WRA expects to close its camps by January, 1946. He explained that the Tule Lake segregation center will be operated by the Justice Depart-ment after that date for those persons who are not eligible for relocation.

Declaring he does not believe West Coast citizens will persecute Japanese Americans in uniform or members of their families and they will not stand for any disruption in the war effort, Mr. Myer said most of the talk of boycott is bluff.

"There may be incidents," he declared, "but they will be very occasional and not very important."

In response to a question re-garding what would happen to evacuees remaining in relocation camps who either fail or refuse to leave, Mr. Myer said: "There won't be any and we have no plans for any such al-ternative."

He said Tule Lake evacuees who are free to return to their who are free to return to their later plateth, who are free to be treated the same risking his life time and time as others, but those held there again over the perilous route, an will be under the Department of

Gov. Earl Warren Commends Aims of Coast Conference

SAN FRANCISCO - "I am pleased to note that plans are being made everywhere to dis-courage friction during the period of the return of Americans of Japanese ancestry to our State," Gov. Earl Warren declared on Jan. 10 in a telegram to the conference spon-sored in San Francisco by the Pacific Coast Committee on American Principles and Fair Play.

Gov. Warren regretted his inability to attend the conference because of opening of the State Legislature. "It is a most important func-tion of citizenship as well as government to protect constitu-tional rights," Gov. Warren said said.

Serviceman's Family First to Leave

TOPAZ, Utah — The Topaz Times has reported that Mrs. Yoshiaki Moriwaki and her daughter, Suga Ann, are the first to leave this center for California since lifting of West Coast exclusion orders.

Mrs. Moriwaki is the wife of a serviceman in France and sister of another soldier.

"It will be much easier for my husband on the battlefront to visualize us in California, which is familiar to him, than to try to imagine us in some new strange place. Knowing that we are 'back home' will give him peace of mind," Mrs. Moriwaki said.

Justice. "These people (from Tule Lake) will naturally feel more insecure than those from other centers," he observed.

He stressed that the WRA is not planning loans to anyone and it is his assumption the evacuees will be able to arrange loans either from Federal or private agencies the same as anyone else.

The fullest cooperation of government agencies toward the re-integration of the Japanese Amer-icans into West Coast communi-ties was promised by representatives of various agencies. Richard M. Neustadt, regional director of Federal Social Security, said "detailed arrangements are now being concluded for the care of dependent groups and the establishment of vital services establishment of vital services such as schools, medical aid and welfare."

Anthony O'Brien of the War Manpower Commission added that the "fullest cooperation of the WMC and the U. S. Employment Service is to be extended the Japanese Americans."

"However, we do not feel we can accept responsibility for such problems as housing in "tight" areas, such as San Francisco, Los Angeles or Seattle," O'Brien said. Discussing the housing problem Discussing the housing problem, Omar Mills of the Federal Public (Continued on page 2)

Coast Leaders Hold Meeting To Aid Nisei

Fair Play Committee Sponsors Coast-Wide Meeting on Evacuees

(Continued from page 1) out that any of the returning Nisei who enter war work will be immediately eligible for public housing the same as anyone else. Miss Effie Gordon, medical con-sultant with the Children's Bureau, said there is never any discrimination of race or creed in the welfare of children and stated that "our program is set up to include the wives of Japanese American servicemen overseas under the infant and maternity services."

A letter from the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, suggesting the construction of a housing project for minorities in the San Mateo area, was read. The letter brought up the problem of some 100 Negro families who may face possible eviction if the evacues re-turn. The NAACP letter noted that San Mateo County housing has been of a "Jim Crow" nature so far.

The problem of assistance for elderly single men of Japanese ancestry was discussed. It was explained that the percentage of needy cases among this group was less than in other minorities but that now more will be dependent on public assistance, suf-fering from the shock of evacuation and relocation.

"The employment of Nisei is a hot potato," Harry Kingman, re-gional director of FEPC, conceded. "On the whole, however, we expect no trouble with unions or employers, especially since Jap-anese Americans have been making a remarkable record, not only in the armed forces, but in the whole war effort."

Maurice Harrison, San Fran-cisco attorney and community leader, presided over the confer-ence. Mr. Harrison pointed out that the "constitutional right of leader of Languese anose. loyal persons of Japanese ancestry to return to their homes" has been vindicated by the Supreme Court and recognized by the government.

Mrs. Ruth Kingman, executive secretary of the Fair Play com-mittee, indicated that efforts will be made to establish permanent machinery to coordinate the 300 groups concerned with race prob-lems on the West Coast.

Following a general discussion of the employment situation facing Japanese Americans, a rec-ommendation was passed unanimously that returning evacuees should not underbid in order to obtain employment.

Dr. Hubert Phillips of Fresno State College, chairman of the discussion on employment, said a good start on the problem of reemployment for returning evacuees had been made in the assurance of cooperation from the various Federal agencies and in the promise of the AFL to aid in the program.

Mother of Air Corps Hero Hits Gardena Discrimination

LOS ANGELES - A mother of an American airman, killed last fall in combat over Germany, asked her son's friends at a memorial service on Dec. 29 to honor all who fell for democracy, regardless of race.

The Air Corps officer was Lieut. Maurice Levine, and his friends of Lodge 141 of the International Workers' Order had gathered to honor his memory at services held at Odd Fellows hall.

Rising to speak of her son, Mrs. Sophie Levine, declared:

"Since my son died, we are gathered here to honor him. But in the city of Gardena, another American boy gave his life fight-American boy gave his life fight-ing the Germans, and his home town will not even allow his name to be put on the roll of honor. His mother is denied the privilege of meeting with her boy's friends, like this. That boy, Kiyoshi Mur-anaga, was an American of Japa-nese ancestry. decorated for bray nese ancestry, decorated for brav-ery after he died. I want that mo-ther to know that other Americans feel toward her boy just as they do toward mine."

Pacific Notebook: Soldiers in Philippines Hailed Return of Nisei to West Coast

By S/SGT. PAUL T. BANNAI SOMEWHERE IN THE PHILIPPINES—Good news to all GIs in this theatre was an item which appeared in our bulletin that loyal Nisei would be allowed to return to the evacuated areas of the West Coast.

We hope that the efforts of Japanese American soldiers here and in the European theatre have helped in bringing this about, and that the work of Nisei GIs will continue to better conditions for our folks at home, so that we and the generations to follow

All of the soldiers I have spoken to in the Army, Navy and Marines were well acquainted with our job and sympathetic to the cause of the Nisei. The exploits of the 100th Battalion and the 442nd Infantry Combat Team are known and watched by all here.

So far in my travels in this war I have met many Nisei from the mainland and Hawaii, most of whom are graduates of Camp Savage and in special military work.

Savage and in special miniary work. In our unit alone there are approximately a dozen Nisei. Our work is very interesting. Staff Sgt. Sho Onodera who is in charge of interpreters is a former resident of Los Angeles and was an instructor at Camp Savage. (Sgt. Onodera volunteered from the Manzanar relocation center.) Two of our sergeants, Ben Manade and Tadao Migimoto, volunteered from Honolulu. Ben was a student at the University of Hawaii and hopes to reenter the school under the GI Bill of Rights after the war. Migimoto was a bank employee and has plans to enter the same field after the war.

Although many Nisei GIs have spoken to me that they are set on their jobs after the war, the majority have no definite postwar plans. Even with their record of service in the armed forces, many feel that prejudice will still prevail in industry against the hiring of Nisei workers. There is no doubt, however, that the fact of our having served in the Army will have a great deal to do with our future. Many who were engaged in the agri-cultural field hope to return to their farms. Tech. 4th Gr. Henry Aigaki is one of these. Henry is from La Jara, Colo., where his folks are still farming. Working at a nearby Army headquarters is First Lieut. Steve Yamamoto. Lieut. Yamamoto has been in the South Pacific a number of years and was given a direct commission in the field, which is the hard way of becoming an officer. He was living in the San Gabriel valley region of Southern California prior to Pearl Harbor.

World War II Veterans Induct Nisei Into American Legion; Post Condemns Racist Activity

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.-Practices of racial discrimination against American citizens because of their Japanese ancestry were sharply condemned in a resolution passed unanimously by 150 members of Hollywood World War II Post 591 of the American Legion at a meeting on Jan. 9.

Boston Man Helps Defray Court Costs

Donation Received By JACL From Mr. Godfrey Cabot

The National JACL announced this week that it had received a check for $478.79 from Mr. Godfrey L. Cabot of Boston, Mass.

The money, the JACL announc-ed, was sent by Mr. Cabot to de-fray part of the expense incurred by the National JACL in filing its brief in the Korematsu evacuation test case in the United States Supreme Court.

Total cost of the JACL brief was $1114.

Joe Masaoka of the National JACL staff noted that Mr. Cabot had donated more than $1000 for the printing of the JACL's briefs in the Yasui and Hirabayashi test cases in 1943.

It was reported that Mr. Cabot was interviewed by Dr. T. T. Ya-tabe of the Chicago JACL office and Miss Ruby Yoshino when they visited Boston on their recent lecture tour. At that time Mr. Cabot expressed his deep concern over the civil rights of citizens of Japanese ancestry. He indicated his interest in minority problems and stated that was the reason he was assisting the JACL.

All seven of these awards were won in the Italian campaign. The 100th Infantry Battalion now is in action in France as a part of the 442nd Combat Team.

The doughboy who died winning his Distinguished Service Cross was Private First Class Kiichi Koda, of Waipahu, Oahu. Later, when the enemy opened fire from a small castle, Private First Class Koda circled the structure and tossed hand grenades into each window, then charged it with his squad. He was killed by a German hand grenade, but his actions resulted in the death of ten Germans, the capture of three and the seizure of five enemy machine guns and four machine pistols. machine pistols.

Staff Sergeant Yukio Yokota, Private First Class Haruto Kur-oda, and Private Thomas Y. Ono, all of Honolulu, functioned as a team, and each was cited for extraordinary heroism in action.

On June 2, 1944, the three crawled through a wheat field to within ten yards of an enemy ma-chinegun and killed three Germans with grenades. Under intense fire they crawled to a second position, eliminating it also. They then joined their platoon in a success-ful assault on its assigned objective. A short time later they re-peated their tactics against another German machinegun nest, In the space of three hours, the three of them had neutralized five enemy machineguns, five machine pistols and killed or captured 17 Germans.

LARRY TAJIRI EDITOR

EDITORIALS: A Call to Unity

First major step toward planned and successful relocation in the once-evacuated area was made this week at a conference called by the Pacific Coast Committee on American Principles and Fair Play.

Attended by representatives from a score of private groups interested in the relocation program and officials of a dozen interested government agencies, the conference marked the first step toward co-ordination of activities of these groups. Employment, housing, relief, community acceptance, education and other major issues attendant to the return of the evacuees were discussed.

It was also indicated that further work will be done toward integrating the 300 groups in the area which are concerned with race problems.

The conference was not held to hasten the return of the evacuees but to facilitate and ease the integration into community life of those who do return. It is generally believed by all concerned, including the Nisei themselves, that dispersal of the Japanese Americans throughout the country is proving a far wiser process of resettlement than location in the pre-war Little Tokyos.

Such positive action as was taken this week by the participants in the conference will prove to be of great value within the weeks and months to come. Unified action and elimination of duplication will mean the facilitating of successful relocation.

Language Schools

It is as convenient in these times to take a position against the reestablishment of the Japanese language schools on the West Coast, as it is for a religious conference to condemn sin or for a meeting of police officers to denounce crime. Privately-operated Japanese language schools on the West Coast and in Hawaii were among the first casualties of our participation in World War II. And although there have been no suggestions for their revival from persons of Japanese ancestry, the language school question has been reopened through agitation on the West Coast following the reopening of the evacuated area to Japanese Americans. The existence of Japanese language school before the war was a factor which may have retarded the thorough assimilation of the Japanese American in the general community pattern, although it is an open question whether these schools were effective even in this regard. The failure of these language schools may be assessed from the fact that a relatively small number of Americans of Japanese ancestry, less than ten percent, are considered proficient in this language. The Army, which found an immediate need for a large number of Japanese interpreters, translators and interrogators, was forced to set up a training school where Japanese American volunteers received an intensive course in the language. Today these Japanese Americans are performing an invaluable service in the war against Japan, as are additional hundreds of civilians in the various fields of wartime activity wherein a knowledge of the enemy's language is a necessary attribute.

gan, Yale, Harvard, Minnesota, Columbia, Chicago and other universities.

Japanese American leaders in Hawaii recently went on record favoring the permanent liquidation of private Japanese language schools, and the liquidation of the physical properties of some of these schools has already been completed. It may be recalled that for many years before the war many Nisei leaders were in favor of closing of the Japanese language schools and the teaching of the language in the public schools of the state where supervision of the courses would be the direct responsibility of the public school system.

Professional Patriots

Dr. John R. Lechner is a professional patriot who spends most of his time fanning the flames of racial hatreds on the West Coast. Since the war's beginning he has been quoted both for and against the evacuation of persons of Japanese ancestry from the West Coast. He is a favorite speaker of bitterly prejudiced groups on the West Coast, many of whom now propose to retaliate against the returning evacuees with boycotts. Yet Dr. Lechner, as Togo Tanaka, former editor of the Los Angeles Japanese Daily News, points out, approached the Japanese American newspaper in January, 1942, and asked for a donation in the printing of some cards he said he needed for his projects. It appears that Dr. Lechner was not averse to dealing with Japanese Americans if he could get something for nothing.

John R. Lechner, as the record will show, staged a patriotic rally in Hollywood in May, 1940, to dramatize the Nisei's loyalty to America. These are the same Nisei he now hints may be potential saboteurs. Dr. Lechner and his Washington counterpart, Kilsoo Haan, have built themselves up as "experts" on the Japanese American. But neither Lechner nor Haan have ever made a straightforward statement regarding the great and positive record of loyalty made by the Japanese American group in this war. The Lechners and the Haans prefer to deal in whispered rumors and ugly innuendos.

The current issue of Time Magazine (Jan. 15) offers proof of the sort of irresponsible statements in which John R. Lechner specializes. It is obvious that Dr. Lechner is out to give the California hate mongers and their misguided followers the sort of hate-provoking and suspicion-inciting material that can be used against the returning Japanese American. This single paragraph from Time Magazine is enough to expose Lechner's reckless disregard for truth:

"Farmers crowded into the flag-draped town hall at Gardena, Calif., and applauded vociferously as Austrian-born John R. Lechned shouted: 'We know the Japanese have super-submarines which carry 1,000 menthey're waiting for the return of California Japanese to start their invasion. They'll come in through the fog banks, led by 10,000 officers trained in American universities.""

It is not the Nisei who are the saboteurs, but the John R. Lechners and the Kilsoo Haans who are the saboteurs of national unity, who seek to undermine our American principles of fair play and decency farm communities between the Sierras, the Cascades and the sea, from Bainbridge south to San Diego, the first evacuees have come home. All anti-evacuee propaganda to the contrary, these re-turning families have been received and entertained by their neighbors. In Fowler, Calif., an ex-ser-viceman returned with his wife and children a day or two before Christmas and neighboring fami-lies brought gifts for the children. Down in a Southern California town a Methodist church congre-gation welcomed their Japanese American neighbors.

Up and down the coast it has been like this, despite the angry shouting of the race - baiters. Friends and neighbors have dropped in on these returning evacuees to say how glad they are to see them back home again. There has been a vocal opposition to the re-turn of the evacuees, but daily it becomes more apparent that these oppositionists consist largely of the lunatic fringe of West Coast reaction, who are reminiscent of the Ku Klux Klan of another day. The people who came down to the evacuation trains to see the evacuees off to their assembly centers and relocation camps, the women who wept with evacuee women when the trains pulled out, are welcoming their friends home again.

It is significant that many public officials who were in the fore-front of the opposition to the return of the evacuees have accept-ed the Army's revocation order with singularly good deportment. Here is proof that democracy lives, that the people believe in the Constitution, for these offi-cials, whatever their personal prejudices, do not dare oppose the will of the majority. This generally cheerful compliance with the Army's decision on the part of the servants of the people and on the part of those officials whose duty it is to enforce the laws and to maintain order has created an atmosphere which is amenable to the return of the evacuees.

In a State in which so many political careers have been fashioned from the terra-cotta of anti-Orientalism it is interesting to note that Governor Warren has gained rather than lost political stature by his open avowal of the constitutional nights of Americana constitutional rights of Americans of Japanese ancestry. As Carter, Costello, Rolph and other Tories have gleaned from the lessons of the 1944 elections, anti-Orientalism in California, expressed these days against persons of Japanese ancestry is a dead issue. It is to be hoped that the new West Coast delegation to Congress, clearly weighted now on the progressive side, will be less disposed to listen to the another soft the more beiter to the rantings of the race-baiters in their own bailiwicks.

It becomes increasingly apparent that if there is any last-ditch opposition to the reacceptance of the returning evacuees, this opposition will come from those selfish economic groups which have profited most from the evacuation. These economic interests, and the professional race mongers who work for them, and the Hearst newspapers which speak for them, have refused to go along with the majority of the people in accept-ing the Army's decision. Included in this unholy brigade are those who have been described by the WRA's Dillon Myer as "redfaced patriots," men who owe money to the evacuess or who hope to profit from the continued absence of the evacuee group. The friendly reception enjoyed by most of the relatively small number of evacuees who have returned undoubtedly will be a fac-tor in decisions of others in the relocation centers to go home. But it should be noted that these families who have returned or are in the process of returning are those who have retained their lands and homes. The majority of the evacuees, however, are a dispos-sessed group, having lost whatever business, property or employ-ment interest they may have had during the wholesale jettisoning which was forced by evacuation. The resettlement of this landless and homeless majority outside the relocation camps bids to be a back-breaking job for the War Re-location Authority and its coop-erating Federal and private agen-

In a score of cities, towns and cies. This job of wholesale reloca-tion of some 70,000 persons into normal communities is one which will require even more than the tremendous energies which were necessitated by the original evacuation.

> The return of evacuees to their West Coast homes is also complicated by the fact that, even in the cated by the fact that, even in the cases where the Japanese Ameri-cans may own their homes or farms, these dwellings are in the majority of cases occupied at the present time. In the urban cen-ters of San Francisco, Los An-geles, Portland and Seattle many of these homes are occupied by war workers, largely of minority groups, who found that the homes left vacant by the evacuees were the only ones available. In many the only ones available. In many cases commercial buildings left empty by the evacuation have been cheaply converted into dwell-ings where slum conditions pre-vail. Since most of the property, even in the so-called Little Tokyos of West Coast cities, was not owned by Japanese Americans, it is not to be expected that property owners who have profited through the need of war workers for any type of shelter would consider reverting to the pre-evacuation stat-us quo. It has been estimated that the population of Los Angeles' Little Tokyo, largely an industrial district before evacuation, has in-creased fourfold with the conversion of stores and office-space into dwellings.

The situation is one which calls for considerable tact and under-standing, both of the desire of the evacuees to return to normal homes from the barrack life of the relocation camps and of the problem faced by present occu-pants of evacuee-owned dwellings. In urban areas many of these homes have been rented to members of minority groups who have found it difficult to obtain other housing because of restrictive covenants and other obstacles to house - hunting for non-Caucasian Americans.

There already have been two cases which have been seized upon by the anti-evacuee press in an effort to organize widespread op-position to the return of the Japa-nese Americans. One revolved around the effort of a religious group to serve notice upon its present tenants of its church and business properties to vacate. The other concerned an eviction notice allegedly served upon a family with four sons in service, al-though it is not clear whether the evacuee owners desired immediate possession of the property. These Negro tenants and the other a family of Mexican ancestry, have been utilized by the Hearst press in Los Angeles to arouse resentment along racial lines among the large Negro and Mexican populations of the city. The effort is not succeed-ing, largely because of the refusal of Negro leaders in the city to succumb to this anti-Nisei hate propaganda, but the situation is one that has dangerous implica-

Restrictive Covenants

The viciousness and all-embracing nature of racial discrimination is brought into focus again with a news report from Fresno, California, in which it is reported, a complaint is being filed against Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Keoseyan, asking that they be banned from living in a certain residential district because they are of Armenian descent.

In this district, however, owners of 74 lots signed an agreement stating that none should ever be occupied or used by "any Negro, Chinese, Japanese, Hindu, Armenian, Asiatic or native of the Turkish Empire," which is defining one's racial discrimination pretty well.

It must be noted that in Fresno, where anti-Japanese American sentiment is not entirely quiescent, has had a general bias against persons of Armenian descent for quite some time, a fact which may be surprising to other Americans who have found that the Armenian Americans are thoroughly desirable neighbors.

But racial discrimination is seldom long confined to one group. With the virulence of a contagious disease it spreads rapidly, and those affected by it are both the oppressed and the oppressor.

one that has dangerous implications.

In view of the tremendous dislocations occasioned by the evacu ation, it was not to be expected that the return of the evacuees would not be without its inconveniences The housing problem is one which calls for government action, par-ticularly in view of inability of non-Caucasian families to obtain any kind of shelter, decent or otherwise, Negro leaders on the Wost Coort area or taken West Coast already have taken the lead in recommending Feder-al interracial housing. The tight-ness of the housing situation in urban areas can be relieved only through a large-scale Federal program, whether or not the evacuees are returning. Despite the obvious difficulties, however, there is no time more propitious than the present for the reabsorption of the evacuee group into normal life. The manpower needs of a war economy insure employment opportunities whereas in the period of reconver-sion and industrial readjustment which may follow the end of the war they may face a drugged la-bor market. And it has been stressed that evacuees leaving the camps at the present time can help meet critical manpower shortages as evacuees who have relocated previously have done in ordnance depots, industrial plants and on western farms.

From the Frying Pan By BILL HOSOKAWA

By now it should be evident that the War Department experts knew of what they spoke when, at the time volunteers were stressed the publicity value of an all-Nisei military unit.

There is something about the striking power of a unit as large as a regimental combat team that hits the public's imagination, especially when it is a racial unit. Thus the Nisei working as a team and spearheading the Allied drive up the Italian

We realize, of course, that publicity is the farthest thing from the minds of the Nisei G. I. that Joes slogging through the mud and ice of Europe's bloody battle-fields. Yet the publicity factor entered strongly into the forma-tion of the 442nd, and this is something that cannot be denied. Thanks largely to the men of the 100th and the 442nd, the word Nisei is synonymous with Jana-

Nisei is synonymous with Japanese American in most of the nation's leading newspapers. Press dispatches refer to both these units as "the famous 100th" or "the famous 442nd," and stories about these outfits are "must" copy for many newspapers. And yet this favorable development has not been without a dear price. As a combat team and spearhead outfit the 442nd and especially the 100th have suffered appalling casualties. These losses appear magnified, and strike home with more than ordinary impact, because the homes of the personnel are concentrated in a few areas on the main-land and in Hawaii.

The situation is the same as that which exists with some national guard divisions. Certain small communities, like Salinas, Calif., and areas like New Mexico have suffered disportionate casualties when an entire national guard company or battalion, recruited from a small geagraphical area, was wiped out or cap-tured as in the Philippines early in the war. The famed 34th Division, with which the 442nd and the 100th fought in Italy, originally was a national guard outfit from Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota Al-Minnesota and South Dakota. Almost an entire battalion was lost at Faid pass in Africa in one of its earliest actions. Since then, as the 34th went on to pile up a record of more than 400 days under fire, the original personnel gradually was replaced by men from all over the nation. The 34th is no longer a midwestern division, for the Iowans, Minne-sotans and South Dakotans have suffered heavily in dead, wounded and medically discharged.

We remember a meeting at one of the relocation centers soon after the call had gone out for volunteers. An army officer was answering questions, and one ches are occasionally quoting un-identified "spokesmen" of this or-ganization or that as "fearing" that the return of these people that the return of these people will lead to disorders. They seem to be saying it with a wishful to be saying it with a wishful to be saying it with a wishful from making cannon fodder out of the Nisei?" he said. "How do we know that the Nisei won't be given suicide assignments and blamed if they fail to do the im-possible."

A Short Story: THE MENACE

The almond-shaped brown eyes, set slantingly in the sharp brown face, looked intently through a break in the clouds at the ground passing leisurely by five thousand feet below. To Onishi l'akashima the terrain was familiar. Many times during the past month had the huge bomber gone over this same route on its way to an enemy target. Each time Onishi had been hunched over his machine guns in the tail of the plane.

Until the flying giant got over the enemy territory, he could relax and daydream. He could conjure up pleasant visions of his nome and his girl; of fishing in the blue waters, of playing games with other Japanese boys and girls. He thought warmin of school where he had learned to paint and to make things of clay. He had been taught other more practical things, too, but his favorite studies had always been the art classes. Then he thought of his mother and nis brow furrowed. His mother was in America. She was in a relocation camp in Arkansas. Denison-or Denson-the name of the town was. Absently he reached down and snapped the satety of his machine guns to off position. Absently he checked the cartridge belt. His sister was in that camp, too. His father and mother had left Nippon to go to America many years ago but his father was dead now.

The staccato voice of the co-pilot, sibilant over the interphone neadset, broke into his reverie. Enemy fighter planes, about two dozen of them, were approaching the bomber from the starboard Onishi tensed and looked over his left shoulder. He could see them now, about a half mile away and coming in high. His hands tightened on the grips and he could feel his palm getting wet and sticky. He thought how strange it was that he was always frightened by enemy planes or flak when they were still at a distance. As soon as the bullets began buzzing around his section of the plane and he could line up something in his sights and press on the trigger buttons, he'd lose that fear. It was always that way.

trigger buttons, he'd lose that fear. It was always that way. Now the enemy were roaring in with their guns clattering. Three planes sped below the tail of the big bomber. 'Iwo of them executed a tight wingover, climbed, and came in above the little glass house where Onishi was trying to get them in his sights. He could see the red tongues of flame standing out from their wings and hear bul-lets cutting into the metal body above and behind his head. Firmly his thumbs pressed down on the firing buttons as one f the planes appeared in his sights. At first the fighter didn't seem to be hit. Onight followed him with a stream of bullets until he was out of Onishi followed him with a stream of bullets until he was out of range of the guns. Then he heard the pilot congratulating him. He gritted his teeth and moved closer to his guns. The pilot was calling the top turret now. Three or four times he shouted, but there was no other voice over the headphones. Onishi's mouth uttered a curse and then formed into a thin tight line. The top turret gunner had been his good friend.

Another fighter was speeding straight at the little Japanese. Onishi opened up with his guns and the other plane dodged below the bomber. Suddenly he heard that tearing of metal through metal, the force of the impact knocking him over against the side of the momentment He has the size in the shead the side of the compartment. He lay there, the pain in his shoulder preventing him from trying to rise. Looking at the plexiglass across from him he could see three holes in it. He could hear the fighters still swarming around the bomber, and over the interphone came the pilot's voice calling him. He knew that with the top turret out of action and his guns silent the plane would be at the mercy of the enemy ships.

The loss of blood was beginning to make him feel dizzy. Then he thought about his home again, he pictured the ocean tinted red by the sun, and he could almost feel the sea breeze on his cheek. He loved that country along the sea with fanatical devotion.

With his left arm he struggled to a sitting position and opened his first aid kit. Gauze and adhesive tape stopped the flow of blood. An enemy fighter, apparently noticing that the rear guns were si-lent, was closing in on the bomber for a kill. He was holding his fire until he got in close where the bullets would do the most good. Onishi got him in the center of the sights but he, too, held his fire. When the plane was not more than a hundred yards away, its guns began to blaze.

At the same instant Onishi's thumbs pressed their triggers. The pain in his right arm was excrutiating but he held the button down until he saw the other plane burst into flames and begin a slow glide to earth. Another fighter came at the tail of the bomber but veered off to the left when the guns nicked his wing.

The pilot's voice came to Omisi's ears again. They were approaching the target and what was left of the enemy fighters were withdrawing. Afraid of getting hit by their own flak, he supposed. Onishi slumped forward. He wanted to close his eyes, but he

Nisei vs. Nip . . .

From William Hipple's "New Year's Report on the Pacific" in Newsweek Magazine for Jan. 1: "Nisei vs. Nip—This friendship in the war zone isn't restricted by color, race or creed. I remember several Marines who went around together constantly. One was a together constantly. One was a Nisei accredited to the Marines, an American of Japanese ances-try. He was actually an interpretry. He was actually an interpre-ter, but he liked to take part in the fighting and go on patrols. The others watched out for him, and he stuck close to them so he wouldn't be shot as an enemy soldier. One day he saw a Jap crawl out of a hole and sneak up on one of his unsuspecting buddles. He raised his rifle and killed the enemy soldier instantiy.... He was the first Nisei to kill a Japanese soldier."

Nisei Service . . .

"We have been extraordinarily "We have been extraordinarily stupid, as well as cruel, in not publicizing widely the American-ness of our fellow citizens of Japanese ancestry," writes Owen Lattimore, former Deputy Director of OWI in charge of the Far East-ern Division, in an article, "The Sacred Cow of Japan" in the Jan-uary issue of Atlantic Monthly. Mr. Lattimore adds: "... Amer-icans of Japanese ancestry... Mr. Lattimore adds: "... Amer-icans of Japanese ancestry. ... have shown themselves capable of being Americans of the finest kind. They have been guilty of no sabotage either in Hawaii or on the Pacific Coast, and without their loyalty and labor in Hawaii the demage at Pacific could the damage at Pearl Harbor could the damage at Fear Harbor could not have been repaired so quickly. Their military units in Italy are the most decorated in the Amer-ican Army, and individuals on special duty in the Pacific have shown outstanding heroism. There is a lesson in the fact that the spirit shown has been better in Hawaii, where there is less econo-mic and social discrimination, than among the Pacific Coast Japanese, who have been the victims of de liberately incited and organized prejudice."

Double Boycott . . .

The Sumner, Wash., Standard, whose editor and publisher, Cory-don (Nifty) Garrett, is the mov-ing spirit behind the Remember Pearl Harbor League, is intimi-dating Sumner business houses into supporting its boycott of re-turning Japanese Americans. The Standard threatens to publish a list of "loyal" and "disloyal" business firms. Loyal businesses are those which subscribe to the Remember Pearl Harbor League's double boycott program. The double boycott is explained as refusal to deal with evacuees or with persons who assist or have any dealings with the evacuees.

Sono Usato . . .

According to Time Magazine, Sono Osato has met with only one inconvenience because of her Japanese ancestry. That was back in 1942 when she was refused permission to go to California as a member of the Ballet Theatre, but it was the result of that incident that she is today one of Broadthat she is today one of Broad-way's brightest new stars. She left the peregrinating Ballet Theatre and went into the musical show, "One Touch of Venus." In "On the Town" Miss Osato sings and acts for the first time in addi-tion to her dances. The plot of "On the Town" revolves around three sailors on furlough who three sailors on furlough who come to New York City. In a subway car they see a picture of Miss Turnstiles, the girl-of-the-month of the New York subways, played by Miss Osato. The search of these sailors for Miss Turnstiles from the Brony Jose to Concer Island the Bronx Zoo to Coney Island makes a tuneful tour of New York and what critics have called the best musical show of the year. . Sono Osato has a brother with the Japanese American Com-bat Team on the Western Front. One of the young Osatos has appeared as a member of the fam-ous Chicago Quiz Kids of the radio.

The inevitable has happened with the Western Defense Com-mand's announcement that persons of Japanese ancestry whose loy-alty has been proven may return to the Pacific coast to take up their former residences and livelihoods

Aside from the constitutional guarantees, we look upon this latest decree as a tribute ' to those thousands of loyal Nisei now ser-ying in the armed forces of the United States. Many have given their lives and literally thousands are up there in the toughest fighting areas on all sides of the world. They deserve to feel that their families are not to be pena-lized further and that they too may have a posterity and a fu-ture to fight for wherever they may be.

We cannot recall the officer's exact answer. But it was some-thing to the effect that the Nisei would have to accept the challenge to their ability as soldiers, to their courage and patriotism, on the same basis as other American soldiers.

It was an opportunity, the officer said, to meet a test, an op-portunity for the Nisei to show their mettle. And weren't the Nisei asking for a chance to prove their right to be called Americans?

"How do you feel?" she asked. "Not too bad." He managed a buck-toothed grin.

"Want anything?"

"Want anything?" "No, thanks . . . oh yeah, could you tell me something? If I were to get killed up there some day, would Mom get my insurance even if she's in a relocation camp?" "Why certainly, Uncle Sam always pays off his debts. But don't worry about it, you're not dead yet! They tell me you shot down two FW-190's on that last run." "Yeah," he grinned again and drank the water she held to his line "Thanks."

"Mugwump's Progress" II: Dr. Lechner Once Opposed Evacuation of Coast Nisei

Statement Made After Pearl Harbor

Editor, Pacific Citizen:

To your editorial of last week, "Mugwump's Progress," referring to John R. Lechner, you may be interested in additional evidence supporting the conclusion that the little red-faced man with the big cigar works both sides of the street.

For instance, on January 20, 1942, Lechner asked the Rafu Shimpo (L. A. Japanese Daily News), through one of its editors, for a donation in the printing of some cards he said he needed for his projects. He made the request in writing. On January 21, 1942, the metro-politan Los Angeles Daily News reported: "Practical steps to eliminate potential dangers must replace hysterical emotionalism in solying any Japanese problem in California, Dr. John R. Lechner last night told members of the junior cnambers of commerce of San Fernando Valley.

San Fernando Valley. "Dr. Lechner, executive di-rector of the Americanism Edu-cational league, declared mass evacuation of all Japanese, both aliens and citizens, to some point in the interior would only come heardering to heat the Len cause hardship to both the Japanese and to the other residents of the state . . . The govern-ment can meet the danger with-out resorting to evacuation, Dr. Lechner stated."

His performance since then is a matter of record. This is the man whom you correctly describe as the person "more than any other single individual" responsible for stirring doubts, suspicions, and hatreds against American victims of wartime hysteria. Professional hate mongering, whether directed against one group or another, invariably emits the same stench. But for a pro-facesional practitioner to about fessional practitioner to about-face a second time is less surpris-ing, is it not, than revolting?

The Editorial Digest: Nation's Newspapers Welcome Revocation Order by Army

The revocation of exclusion orders-so bitterly fought over in the editorial columns of the country's newspapers-was, when it finally came, welcomed almost without exception in the newspapers of the nation.

On the West Coast where few papers dared to ask outright for the return and sometimes advised "caution" in regard to the return, the large majority of editorial comments recognized the right of the revocation orders and recommended sanity and complete compliance on the part of the West Coast population. Only a few newspapers, notably the Hearst papers and the Los Angeles Times, were angered by Angeles Times, were angered by what, to the larger section of the country's press, was a return of constitutional rights to a minor-ity group. These few exceptions carried their editorial policy of anger and race hate into their news stories and headlines.

But far outweighing such journalistic irregularities were edit-orials from coast to coast, from, papers large and small, which carried editorials from which exwhich cerpts are given below:

Exile's Return NEW YORK TIMES The Supreme Court has ruled that under the war powers it was constitutional to remove Ameri-or citizens of Lappace descent can citizens of Japanese descent from their homes on the Pacific Coast after Pearl Harbor. Whether it was right and necessary to do so is another story. Of about do so is another story. Of about 100,000 men, women and children ordered out, about two-thirds were citizens. Many of the younger men displayed their patriotism in combat in Italy and elsewhere, as did Japanese Americans enlisted in Hawaii. In Hawaii, which was for a long time an actual war zone it was not considered neces zone, it was not considered necessary to deport law-abiding inhabitants of Japanese descent. The task might have been physically impossible, on account of the ship-ping shortage. Still, no harm seems to have resulted.

Now, by order of Maj. Gen. H. Conger Pratt, commanding on the Pacific Coast, the mass exclusion of persons of Japanese blood from that area will and on Jap that area will end on Jan. 2 . . The obstacle to the homecoming The obstacle to the homecoming of those whom General Pratt calls "loyal or harmless" is not a military one. It is the attitude of the communities in which they formerly lived. Those who pass the Army's screening tests have as much right to go home to Cal-ifornia, Oregon or Washington as a resident of California would have to go home to Iowa. For the sake of America's reputation for fair play, let us hope that this right will be cheerfully recog-nized.

Return of Loyal Japanese SAN FRANCISCO NEWS

SAN FRANCISCO NEWS In meeting this new turn of events, California and the other coastal states are confronted by a great responsibility to the ma-tion as a whole as well as to them-selves. These states are respected members of the union of states that constitute our great liberty-loving nation, the nation that was founded on "the proposition that all men are created equal." How the people of California react to after the war. A big job of edu-cation in fair play and tolerance needs to be done on the west coast, to assure these American citizens of their rights.

After 33 Months ST. LOUIS STAR-TIMES

It is encouraging that we are ready to restore the evacuees to ready to restore the evacuees to full rights of citizenship while the war is still going on. After 33 months they have undergone hard-ships and discomposure of mind for which it is impossible to make full amends. Men and women against whom there was not the slightest evidence of disloyalty were caught in the same net that picked up the few suspicious and openly defiant characters. Fair treatment in the future will be small compensation for what they small compensation for what they have endured. We owe it to ourselves as a people respectful of civil liberties to see that they get it.

Lessons in Americanism

THE CHICAGO SUN

It is by no means certain that, after the war, we will look back with pride on the country's war-time treatment of Japanese Amer-icans. The Supreme Court has up-held Gen. DeWitt's 1942 order excluding all Americans of Japa-nese ancestry from the West Coast states, though Justice Black's opinion admitted that it would be inconsistent with the Constitution "except under cir-qumstances of direst emergency and peril." The fact, is that we were frightened in 1942; we had been struck a heavy blow by Ja-pan, and rumors were rife of sab-otage and espionage in Hawaii. We can suspect today that econ-omic rivalry and sheer racial an-tagonism on the coast may have-played a part in influencing the excluding all Americans of Japaplayed a part in influencing the Army, but then we had the wind up.

Back to the Coast PITTSBURGH COURIER

Again the Supreme Court has righted a great wrong in uphold-ing the return of American citi-zens of Japanese extraction to their homes on the Pacific coast from which they were ruthlessly snatched in the spring of 1042

There was never the slightest valid reason for this disgraceful step, unless the race prejudice of reactionary West Coast interests reactionary West Coast interests which spurred the Administration to humiliate these citizens can be regarded as a valid reason. Now that this hateful chapter in American history has been closed, it is to be hoped that these worth citizens more control will worthy citizens never again will be subjected to such fascistic policy.

A few of the superintendents, it was reported, took a pessimistic view, although they said they thought they could handle the situation in the classrooms.

STATE OFFICIALS REAFFIRM STAND ON PROTECTION

SACRAMENTO-A California State advisory committee on law enforcement, composed of sheriffs, police chiefs and judges, reaffirmed on Jan. 4 a previously adopted resolution that local enforcement officers "consider it our sworn duty to fully cooperate with the Army authorities in dealing with the return of Japanese residents of this State."

The resolution stressed that "all persons, regardless of race, are entitled to the full protection of the law."

WRA Director Castigates Four Groups Opposing Return of Nisei Evacuees to West Coast

"Red Faced Patriots" Stirred by Economic Motives, Charges Myer

PORTLAND, Ore .- "We do not expect any trouble in the recep-tion of those of Japanese ancestry who choose to return to former West Coast homes," Dillormer west Coast nomes," Dil-lon S. Myer, national director of the War Relocation Authority, was quoted by the Journal as de-claring on Jan. 5 in a speech be-for the City club.

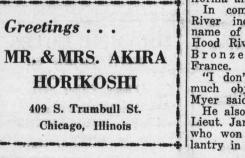

"I think the opposition from certain groups is 'mostly talk," he added.

Mr. Myer hit sharply at those who "would devise some means to exclude those of Japanese an-cestry from the West Coast." The WRA director divided the opposition to the return of Japanese Americans into four groups, Mel Price, Journal staff writer reported.

In the first group are those ho would make political capital who and newspaper circulation out of loud abuse, Mr. Myer said. Included are certain segments of the Coast press, Grange officials and some American Legion posts.

"Persons like Dr. John Lechner and Jess Edington, Legion com-mander at Hood River, all peddle un-American racism in a package labeled 'old-fashioned Americanism'," he said.

The second group is made up of well-intentioned but misled persons, who do not want to harm anyone, but imagine that all evacuees are a menace to national security.

In the third group, "which in-cludes the Gresham farmers," Mr. Myer said, are those stirred to action by economic motives. They would take the same pains to squeeze out any group that threatened their interests.

The fourth group is best de-scribed as "red-faced patriots," the WRA chief said. They took advantage of evacuation to forget that they owed money to the evacuees, to damage their prop-erty and to trick them in many ways.

Myer said that the relocation will be gradual and that a good many of the evacuees will not return to their former homes.

"We are encouraging them to settle elsewhere, although they are free to go where they wish. Dispersion of any minority group seems advisable to us."

He said he did not know of any families who have returned to Oregon, but, since Dec. 17, a total of 26 have returned to California and four to Seattle.

In commenting on the Hood River incident, Myer cited the name of Pvt. George Akiyama, Hood River, recently awarded a Bronze star for gallantry in

"I don't believe there will be much objection to his return," Myer said.

He also mentioned the name of Lieut. James Kanaya of Portland who won a Silver Star for gallantry in action in Italy.

AN OPEN LETTER To Pfc. Hoshinao Omiya

PACIFIC

By KENESAW MOUNTAIN LANDIS II (Columnist, The Chicago Sun, on Dec. 22, 1944) To Pfc. Hoshinao Omiya, U. S. Army Hospital: You have been on my mind since I read that you had landed at an East Coast port with both your eyes blown out by a German land mine. I suppose you know that the U.S. Supreme Court has just decided that it was constitutional for you to be born with slant eyes.

eyes. The decision was unanimous, and whenever the Supreme Court decides anything unanimously, you can be pretty sure it is it is the law of the land, even though it took a long time to find out.

Your home is Honolulu, which is lucky, because your folks haven't been penned up in concentration camps for over two years as they would have been in they had lived in California.

In Hawaii, your people have been treated like all other Americans. Although they constitute the largest group in the Americans. Although they constitute the largest group in the population, there has been no question about their loyalty. They Gave Their Lives Instead of making trouble, they gave their blood, their la-bor and their lives. And in May, 1943, the Army told us: "There have been no known acts of sabotage, espionage or fifth column activity committed by the Japanese in Hawaii either on or subsequent to December 7, 1941."

But in California, where your people were only 1 per cent of the population, we decided we couldn't take any chances on their loyalty. This was the official reason, and technically sufficient.

Of course the real reason was the slant eyes, and it was dangerous for Chinese and even Fillipinos to walk the streets of Los Angeles.

Our eyes were bloodshot, and your people had to be locked up for their own protection. It made no difference that most of them were native-born

Americans, many of them with sons in the Army. The American Legion demanded that the soldiers be discharged and locked up, too. Good News for Christmas

The other day, as you may have heard, the Legion post in Hood River, Oregon, erased the names of 16 Japanese American soldiers from its roll of honor.

But the Supreme Court has decided that your kind of eyes are as good as bloodshot eyes. All loyal Americans of your ancestry now have a right to take their chances on the streets. You will be glad to hear that over a hundred fathers, wives and sisters of Japanese American soldiers have been released from the Poston, Arizona, concentration camp so that the sol-diers fighting abroad can be notified in time for Christmas.

It will make a real Christmas present for your comrades of the 100th Battalion in Italy, which the War Department has called "the most decorated unit in the entire Army." And Merry Christmas to you, even if you can't join the American Legion.

He declared that all substantial and responsible citizens, in work-ing toward a solution of present racial problems, should demand of public officials that the laws of the United States be enforced, and thus forestall unnecessary trouble and bloodshed.

Judge Murphy Dissents: Coast Exclusion Orders Went Beyond Constitutional Power, Says Justice of High Tribunal

By A. L. WIRIN Special Counsel, National JACL

(Continued from last week) In the Hirabayashi case Justice Murphy had declared that the curfew orders went to the "brink of constitutional power"; the ex-clusion orders, however, to Just-ice Murphy, went over that brink. This is how he put it:

"This exclusion of 'all persons of Japanese ancestry, both alien and non-alien,' from the Pacific Coast area on a plea of mili-tary necessity in the absence of martial lar workt net to be an martial law ought not to be ap-proved. Such exclusion goes over 'the very brink of constitu-tional power' and falls into the ugly abyss of racism."

Justice Murphy too recognized that at time of war the judgment of the military authorities is to be accorded great respect. He thus explained it:

"In dealing with matters re-lating to the prosecution and progress of a war, we must accord respect and consideration to the judgments of the military authorities who are on the scene and who have full knowledge of the military facts. The scope of their discretion must, as a matter of necessity and common sense, be wide. And their judgments ought not to be overruled lightly by those whose overruled lightly by those whose training and duties ill-equip them to deal intelligently with matters so vital to the physical security of the nation.

"At the same time, however, it is essential that there be de-finite limits to military discretion, especially where martial law has not been declared. In-dividuals must not be left im-poverished of their constitutionpoverished of their constitution-al rights on a plea of military necessity that has neither sub-stance nor support. Thus, like other claims conflicting with the asserted constitutional rights of the individual, the military claim must subject it-self to the judicial process of having its unreasonableness dehaving its unreasonableness de-termined and its conflicts with other interests reconciled. 'What are the allowable limits of military discretion, and whether or not they have been over-stepped in a particular case, are judicial questions.'" He then considered the proper indicial test of the logality of the judicial test of the legality of the military action, outlining it thus: "The judicial test of whether the Government, on a plea of military necessity, can validly deprive an individual of any of his constitutional visible is his constitutional rights is whether the deprivation is reas-onably related to a public dang-er that is so 'immediate, immi-nent, and impending' as not to admit of delay and not to per-mit the intervention of ordinary mit the intervention of ordinary constitutional processes to al-leviate the danger."

Of the Civilian Exclusion Or-der which resulted in Korematsu's evacuation, he said:

"Civilian Exclusion Order No. 34. banishing from woys. It is difficult to believe that be marshalled in support of such an assumption," he noted. He an assumption," he noted. He called the assumption erroneous, explaining: "That this forced ex-clusion was the result in good measure of this erroneous as-sumption of racial guilt rather than bona fide military necessity is guideneed by the Commendian is evidenced by the Commanding General's Final Report on the evacuation from the Pacific Coast area."

At this point Justice Murphy refers to the now well-known slur by General DeWitt upon all perby General Dewitt upon all per-sons of Japanese descent when he testified before a House Naval Affairs Committee in San Fran-cisco: "It makes no difference whether he is an American citi-zen; he is still a Japanese." (The press generally reported Concret press generally reported General DeWitt as saying "A Jap's a Jap.")

Returning to General DeWitt's report and challenging its basic assumptions, findings and conclu-sions, Justice Murphy said:

"In support of this blanket condemnation of all persons of Japa-nese descent, however, no reliable evidence is cited to show that such individuals were generally disloyal, or had generally so con-ducted themselves in this area as to constitute a special menace to to constitute a special menace to defense installations or war industries, or had otherwise by their behavior furnished reasonable ground for their exclusion as a group.'

"Justification for the exclusion is sought, instead, mainly upon questionable racial and sociologi-cal grounds not ordinarily within the realm of expert military judg-ment, supplemented by certain semi-military conclusions drawn from an unwarranted use of cir-cumstantial evidence. Individuals of Japanese ancestry are con-demned because they are said to be 'a large, unassimilated, tight-ly knit racial group, bound to an enemy nation by strong ties of race, culture, custom and religion.' They are claimed to be given to 'emperor worshipping ceremonies' and to 'dual citizenship.' Japanese language schools and allegedly pro-Japanese organizations are cited as evidence of possible group disloyalty, together with facts as to certain persons being educated and residing at length in Japan. It is intimated that many of these individuals delib-erately resided 'adjacent to stra-tegic points,' thus enabling them 'to carry into execution a tre-mendous program of sabotage on a mass scale should any considerfrom an unwarranted use of cirto carry into execution a tre-mendous program of sabotage on a mass scale should any consider-able number of them have been inclined to do so.' The need for protective custody is also assert-ed. The report refers without identity to 'numerous incidents of violence' as well as to other admittedly unverified or cumula-tive incidents. From this plus certive incidents. From this, plus cer-tain other events not shown to have been connected with the Japanese Americans, it is concluded that the 'situation was fraught with danger to the Japanese population itself' and that the general public 'was ready to take matters into its own hands.' Finally, it is intimated, though not directly charged or proved, that persons of Japanese ancestry were re-sponsible for three minor isolated shellings and hombings of the Pa shellings and bombings of the Pacific Coast area, as well as for unidentified radio transmissions and night signalling." In careful and precise foot-notes to the opinion, Justice Mur-phy answers General DeWitt's claims by referring to the carefully documented material fur-nished to the Court by the Japanese American Citizens League in its brief as "a friend of the Court." Thus Justice Murphy an-swers General DeWitt's claim with respect to the unassimilabil-ity of the Leaguese neuroption. ity of the Japanese population: "To the extent that assimilation is a problem, it is largely the result of certain social customs and laws of the American general public. Studies demon-strate that persons of Japanese descent are readily susceptible to integration in our society if given the opportunity." Again, Justice Murphy rejects what he dubs the dangerous doctrine of protective custody re-lied upon by General DeWitt. Of it he said: "This dangerous doctrine of (Continued on page 12) area of the Pacific Coast 'all persons of Japanese ancestry, both alien and non-alien,' clear-ly does not meet that test. Being an obvious racial discrimination, within its scope of the equal protection of the laws as guaranteed by the Fifth Amend-ment. It further deprives these individuals of their constitu-tional rights to live and work where they will, to establish a home where they choose and to move about freely. In excom-municating them without bene-fit of hearings, this order also deprives them of all their constitutional rights to procedural due process. Yet no reasonable relation to an immediate, immi-nent, and impending' public danger is evident to support this racial restriction which is one of the most sweeping and complete deprivations of consti-tutional rights in the history of this nation in the absence of martial law."

He concluded, therefore, that the exclusion of "all persons with Japanese blood in their veins" had no reasonable relation to any military danger on the Pacific Coast in the spring of 1942; he rejected the assumption that "all persons of Japanese ancestry may have a dangerous tendency to commit sabotage and espionage and to aid our Japanese enemy in other

Ann Nisei's Column: "Born Free and Equal" Is Photo-Book About Mananzar

BORN FREE AND EQUAL, photographs of the loyal Japanese Americans at Manzanar Relocation Center. With text and photographs by Ansel Adams. Published by U. S. Camera. 112 pp. $1.00.

Possibly because photographers are trained to see with a discriminating eye, because they turn a sharp focus wherever they look, and because they are trained to see clearly and without bias, pelling social document of the evacuation.

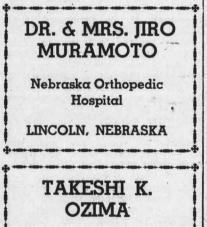

Though he writes in his pre-face, "This book in no way at-tempts a socialogical analysis of the people and their problem," and that it "is addressed to the average American citizen and is conceived on a human, emotional basis," it is nevertheless more probing, more sharp and more telling than any number of books could hope to be.

Explaining his belief that nat-ural environment reacts strongly upon mental and spiritual growth, Adams lays some stress, in both words and pictures, upon the nat-ural surroundings of Manzanar.

"I believe that the arid splendor of the desert, ringed with towering mountains, has strength-ened the spirit of the people of Manzanar," he writes. "I do not say all are conscious of this influence, but I am sure most have responded, in one way or another, to the resonances of their environ-ment. From the harsh soil they have extracted fine crops; they have made gardens glow in the firebreaks and between the bar-racks. Out of the jostling, dusty confusion of the first bleak days in raw barracks they have modulated to a democratic internal so-ciety and a praiseworthy personal adustment to conditions beyond their control."

Following a short text and many photographs of the mountains and valleys surrounding Manzanar, Adams goes directly to the residents of Manzanar.

With many pictures, and with short but pointed biographies, he

I brings the reader an intimate picdaily lives. He manages to bring into the picture the story of the Manzanar co-op, the farms, and the arts as they have been de-veloped at the center.

He lays much stress upon the guayule project, which may some-day prove its importance in the rubber industry, and stresses, too, the importance of the Japanese American men in service.

In a final summation Adams presents the problems today facsee clearly and without bias, photographer Ansel Adams has turned out in his book, "Born into the possibilities of reloca-Free and Equal," the most com-pelling social document of the and all race discrimination.

He effectively denounces the "cheap labor" charge often made against minority group members with these words:

"Many times we hear the state-ment that 'Japanese labor is cheap labor.' Unfortunately Mexican, Chinese, and Negro labor has also cheap labor. 'Cheap labor destroys opportunities for "Americans" to work; the white man can't com-pete with it.' And so on, ad nauseum. The question of cheap labor and low prices for products when selling goods and services at equal prices, the Japanese-American suffered from racial discrimination; only by selling at markedly lower figures, or by working for substantially lower wages, was there any possibility of maintaining existence. These Japanese Americans, in e q u al competition, with equal standards of pay and living conditions, would hold their own, and would not be compelled by discrimination to underbid their competitors, or to work longer hours to earn comparable amounts; for, after all, no one wishes to be 'cheap labor.' But any group, in seg-regated rural or city areas, con-scious of 'racial difference' (meaning 'racial inferiority') and with a reduced scale of wages (meaning 'racial inferiority') and with a reduced scale of wages and living conditions, will give rise to the age - old problems, which create attitudes and hat-reds potentially destructive of our way of life. The answer is, or should be simple—the establish-ment of a minimum wage for all, and the selection of labor on a basis of capacity and ability, coupled with a personal, 'rather than a racial approach.

"Again, there has been opposi-tion to Hindu labor, and, in ser-ious proportions, to Mexican labor. It is significant that Mexican labor, although specifically un-trained in many agricultural fields, has been sought and welcomed since the evacuation on the basis of sheer economic necessity. There is no need to speak here of the Negro problem, which tops the list, to our shame, and to the danger of our civilization. In the light of history certain basic facts are clarified; the dominant clari-fication rests on the fact that, treated as individuals human be

Rare Meteorite Discovered Near STATE LIQUOR Topaz Camp by Two Evacuees

WASHINGTON-A rare meteorite discovered in the mountains of Utah by two evacuees of Japanese ancestry from the Central Utah relocation center at Topaz went on display at the na-tional museum on Dec. 21.

The 1,164 pound meteorite the ninth largest to be found in the United States. It was discovthe United States. It was discov-ered by Akio Ujihara and Yosh-io Nishimoto, members of the lapidary class at the Topaz camp. Ujihara and Nishimoto were searching for rocks to be cut and polished for ornamental purposes when they discovered the meteorite last September on the north slope of the Drum mountains, 16 miles from Topaz.

miles from Topaz. "Other members of the class previously had hunted in the same spot with discouraging results," Dr. E. P. Henderson, associate curator of mineralogy and petrol-ogy in the museum, declared. "Probably several people had looked at the meteorite without recognizing it."

But Ujihara was attracted by a peculiarly shaped rock partly buried on the mountain slope near a clump of sagebrush.

Rigging up a sled the men brought the rock into Topaz where they chipped off a tiny specimen and sent it to the mu-

BOARD CONSIDERS ACTION FOR NISEI

SACRAMENTO — The question of issuing licenses to business-men of Japanese ancestry has been posed before the State Board of Equalization following the announcement of the reopening of the West Coast evacuated area. Shortly after Pearl Harbor the Board of Equalization revoked approximately 1,200 liquor licenses of citizens and aliens of Japanese ancestry.

The Board last week received a letter from a Japanese American at Fresno, Calif., who stat-ed that he had a license for the would like to have it back. George M. Stout, State liquor administrator, said the applicant will be investigated to determine whether he qualifies for a license under state regulations. It will be up to the board to decide on the application after Stout makes his recommendation.

Negro-Nisei American Nurse Weds Soldier From Bombay, India

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.-Mrs. Takyuki Y. Sato recently announced the marriage of her daughter. Takako Grace Sato, to Pvt. Di-waker Salvi of Bombay, India, on Nov. 26 at the Bethel AME church in Pittsburg, Kan.

Miss Sato who is of Negro and Japanese ancestry was a head nurse at the Boston, Mass., Floating hospital and is now a student at Boston university. She completed her nurse training as the first colored student at the Cambridge City hospital.

The maid of honor was her sister, Sadako, while the bride was given in marriage by Thomas Brown, director of a Negro USO at Joplin, Mo.

After the ceremony a bridal dinner was served at the home of Prof. and Mrs. A. B. Abington of Pittsburgh.

Pvt. Salvi was graduated from Gordon college in Boston and obtained his master's degree from Boston university. He was recently ordained in the Congregational faith. He was born in India, where his father is a prominent Chris tian minister, and he is consid-ered one of the leading authori-ties in this country on the forces and conflicts involved in shaping the destiny of his country, India.

Reedley Denies Job To Teacher With Adopted Daughter

REEDLEY, Calif. — Principal J. T. McLaughlin of Reedley High School and Junior College said on Dec. 27 the school board has withdrawn an offer of a position to C. W. Frost, Idaho Falls woodworking teacher, rather than subject the school to possible criticism because Friost might bring into the community an adopted daughter of part-Japanese ancestry. McLaughlin said the school needed a woodworking teacher and on hearing Frost was available, he wrote him two weeks ago offering a position here on behalf of the local school board.

Before Frost replied, the Reedleg trustees were informed by a local source that Frost, who has been teaching at the Minidoka re-location center, had adopted a daughter of part-Japanese ancestry.

Exservicemen's Club Formed at Poston

WASHINGTON -Japanese, Caucasians, Negroes and one In-dian make up the membership of 30 in Poston's newly formed Ex-service Club. Officers include members of each nationality.

Evacuees of Japanese ances-try compose about one-third of the membership. A report from Poston describes the organization as "pretty much of a cosmopolitan club, and perhaps somewhat typical of center life."

When the Ninth Service Com-mand set Sunday, December 3, as Memorial Day for all men killed in the service in the district, Mil-itary Police at the center asked the Ex-service Club to sponsor the program. All Poston organizations participated in the parade honoring the 13 center boys who gave their lives in World War II. A large audience attended the services in which all religious faiths took part, along with Service Com-mand Unit 1995.

Evacuee Sentenced On Draft Charge

WASHINGTON - Joe Atsumi Yamakido, 22, a former resident of Jerome, was sentenced to three years in a federal penitentiary on a draft evasion charge, following his trial in the Federal District court in Little Rock, Ark. The presiding judge stated that an application for expatriation would not relieve a person of the duties of citizenship, and that cit-izenship could not be cancelled at will by simple declaration.

Sheriff Biscailuz Pledges Maintenence Of Law and Order

LOS ANGELES - With Rabbi Magnin presiding, the Committee for Church and Community Cooperation adopted a resolution on Dec. 28 commending law enforcement agencies and peace officers' associations for their plans to maintain law and order when evacuees of Japanese ancestry return to their Southern California homes.

The group heard Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz of Los Angeles county explain that his office will cooperate with Gov. Warren and other State officials in maintaining order.

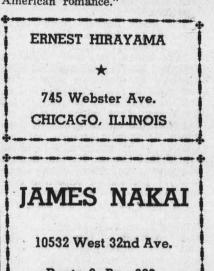

"We must realize that there is little likelihood of a change or modification of the Army's order revoking the ban on Japanese," Biscailuz said. "While we should not minimize possible dangers, we should accept things as they are. The problem will be handled much easier if we don't let alarmists drive us to extreme measures and statements."

Among Los Angeles religious leaders attending the meeting were the Rt. Rev. Bertrand Stev-ens and the Rt. Rev. Joseph T. McGucken.

Meanwhile, the Los Angeles County Committee for Inter-Racial Progress called on citizens of the county to demonstrate "our loy-alty to our country and our confidence in our War Department, and in our State, City and Coun-ty government by implicit obedi-ence to official orders, and by compliance with democratic prin-ciples and American ideals."

Justice Murphy Finds Racism In Coast Exclusion Orders

At this point, as at many others in his opinion, Justice Murphy acin his opinion, Justice Murphy ac-cepts as authoritative and fre-quently refers to Carey McWil-liams latest book, "Prejudice," and his "What about Our Japa-nese Americans" published as one of the Public Affairs Committee of the Public Affairs Committee pamphlets. Justice Murphy also points out that one of the "bombings" claim-ed by General DeWitt took place in September, 1942, "a consider-able time after the Japanese Americans had been evacuated from their homes and placed in Assembly Centers." It is, however, in his caustic condemnation of the role of Cali-fornia race-baiting, patrioteer and political pressure groups that Justice Murphy's opinion is most noteworthy. Here is what he said about them:

about them:

"The reasons" (given to justi-fy the evacuation) "appear, in-stead, to be largely an accumu-lation of much of the misinforhalf-truths and insinmation, uations that for years have been directed against Japanese Americans by people with ra-cial and economic prejudices— the same people who have been among the foremost advocates of the evacuation."

of the evacuation." Here, again, Justice Murphy notes that: "Special interest groups were extremely active in applying pressure for mass evac-uation," and cites as authority for his conclusion of his, both the To-lan Congressional Committee Re-port and Mr. McWilliams discus-sion of the subject in his book "Prejudice." Justice Murphy then proceeds to reject these reasons, declaring; declaring; "A military judgment based upon such racial and sociologi-cal considerations is not entitled to the great weight ordinarily given the judgments based up-on strictly military considera-tions. Especially is this so when every charge relative to race, religion, culture, geographical location, and legal and econom-ic status has been sustantially discredited by independent studies made by experts in these matters."

The great liberal jurist then proceeds to dispose of the "mili-tary necessity" argument thus: "The military necessity which is essential to the validity of the evacuation order thus resolves it-self into a few intimations that certain individuals actively aided the enemy, from which it is infer-red that the entire group of Japanese Americans could not trusted to be or remain loyal to the United States. No one denies, of course, that there were some disloyal persons of Japanese des-cent on the Pacific Coast who did all in their power to aid their an-cestral land. Similar disloyal activities have been engaged in by many persons of German, Italian and even more pioneer stock in our country. But to infer that examples of individual disloyalty prove group disloyalty and justify discrimination action against the entire group is to deny that under our system of law individual guilt is the sole basis for deprivation of rights. Moreover, this inference, which is at the very heart of the evacuation orders, has been used in support of the abhorrent and despicable treat-ment of minority groups by the dictatorial tyrannies which this nation is now pledged to destroy. To give constitutional sanction to that informace in this generation that inference in this case, however well-intentioned may have been the military command on the Pacific Coast, is to adopt one of the cruelest of the rationales used by our enemies to destroy the dig-nity of the individual and to encourage groups in the passions of tomorrow Justice Murphy then accepts the position urged both before the Supreme Court and at the bar of public opinion by the American Civil Liberties Union and the Japanese American Citizens League, that individual hearings should have been accorded all Japanese separating the loyal from the claimed disloyal. "No adequate reason is given for the failure to treat these Japanese Americans on an individual basis by holding investi-gations and hearings to separ-ate the loyal from the disloyal, as was done in the case of persons of German and Italian ancestry. It is asserted merely that the loyalties of this group 'were unknown and time was of the essence.' Yet nearly four months elapsed after Pearl Harmonths elapsed after Pearl Har-bor before the first exclusion order was issued; nearly eight months went by until the last order was issued; and the last of these 'subversive' persons was not actually removed until almost eleven months had elaps-ed. Leisure and deliberation seem to have been more of the essence than speed. And the fact that conditions were not such as to warrant a declarasuch as to warrant a declara-tion of martial law adds strength to the belief that the factors of time and military necessity were not as urgent as they have been represented to be. To Justice Murphy, as to many of us, the Federal Bureau of In-vestigation had well in hand, the vestigation had well in hand, the situation on the Pacific Coast as respecting possibilities of espion-age and sabotage: "Moreover, there was no ade-quate proof that the Federal Bu-reau of Investigation and the military and naval intelligence services did not have the espionage and sabotage situation well in hand during this long period. Nor is there any denial of the fact that not one person of Japanese ancestry was accused or convicted of espionage or sabotage after Pearl Harbor while they were still free, a fact which is some evi-dence of the loyalty of the vast majority of these individuals and of the effectiveness of the estab-lished methods of combatting these evils. It seems incredible that under these circumstances it would have been impossible to hold loyalty hearings for the mere 112,000 persons involved—or at least for the 70,000 American citi-zens—especially when a large part of this number represented children and elderly men and wo-men. Any inconvenience that may have accompanied an attempt to conform to procedural due pro-cess cannot be said to justify vio-lations of constitutional rights of individuals."

He then called attention to the successful British experience in according individual loyalty hear-ings to German and Austrian aliens.

Justice Murphy thus finally concluded what is perhaps his most significant contribution in support of the Constitution as a shield against discrimination because of race: "I dissent dissent, therefore, from this legalization of racism. Ra-cial discrimination in any form in any degree has no justifiable part whatever in our democratic way of life. It is unattractive in any setting but it is utterly revolting among a free people who have embraced the principles set forth in the Con-stitution of the United States. All residents of this nation are kin in some way by blood or culture to a foreign land. Yet they are primarily and necessarily a part of the new and distinct civilization of the Unit-ed States. They must accordingly be treated at all times as the heirs of the American experiment and as entitled to all the rights and freedom guaranteed by the Constitution." But Justice Murphy was not alone in dissent. As we have already stated, conservative Justice Roberts joined him, as did staunch New Dealer Justice Jackson. Justice Jackson's dissent will constitute also one of the great judicial landmarks in the struggle for the maintenance of constitutional liberties in wartime. Here are some of his words: "Korematsu was born on our soil, of parents born in Japan. The Constitution makes him a citizen of the United States by nativity and a citizen of California by res-idence. No claim is made that he is not loyal to this country. There is no suggestion that apart from the matter involved here he is not law-abiding and well disposed. Korematsu, however, has been convicted of an act not commonly a crime. It consists merely of being present in the state whereof he is a citizen, near the place where he was born, and where all his life he has lived. "Even more unusual is the ser-ies of military orders which made this conduct a crime. They forbid such a one to remain, and they also forbid him to leave. They were so drawn that the only way Korematsu could avoid violation

Johnson Offers Denationalization Proposal in House

WASHINGTON — Rep. Leroy Johnson of California submitted to the House on Jan. 4 a new bill providing for the denationaliza-tion of all persons who by their writings or sworn statements in time of war have shown them-selves to be disloyal to the gov-ernment of the United States.

Johnson indicated that the mea sure was aimed at some 6,888 persons of Japanese ancestry who, he said, answered negatively or gave qualified answers to a War Relocation Authority questionnaire.

was to give himself up to the military authority. This meant sub-mission to custody, examination, and transportation out of the ter-ritory, to be followed by indeter-minate confinement in detention camps. "A citizen's presence in the lo-cality, however, was made a crime only if his parents were of Japa-nese birth. Had Korematsu been one of four—the others being, say, a German alien enemy, an Italian alien enemy, and a citizen of American-born ancestors, convict-ed of treason but out on parole ed of treason but out on parole-only Korematsu's presence would have violated the order. The dif-ference between their innocence and his crime would result, not from anything he did, said, or thought, different then they, but only in that he was born of differ-ent racial stock." Rejecting race as a constitution

Rejecting race as a constitution-al basis for discriminatory treat-ment, Justice Jackson continues: "Now, if any fundamental assumption underlies our system, it is that guilt is personal and not inheritable. Even if all of one's antecedents had been convicted of treason, the Constitution forbids it penalties to be visited upon him, for it pro-vides that 'no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture except during the life of the person attainted.' But here is an attempt to make an otherwise innocent act a crime merely because this prisoner is the son of parents as to whom he had no choice, and belongs to a race from which there is no way to resign. If Congress in peacetime legis-lation should enact such a criminal law, I should suppose this Court would refuse to enforce

Justice Jackson's objection was

Justice Jackson's objection was primarily to the making of Kore-matsu's refusal to leave the pro-hibited area a crime. He thus ex-plains his position: "Much is said of the danger to liberty from the Army program for deporting and detaining these citizens of Japanese extraction. But a judicial construction of the due process clause that will sus-tain this order is a far more subtain this order is a far more sub-tle blow to liberty than the promulgation of the order itself. military order, however unconsti-tutional, is not apt to last longer than the military emergency. Even during that period a succeeding commander may revoke it all. But once a judicial opinion ration-alizes such an order to show that it conforms to the Constitution, or rather rationalizes the Consti tution to show that the Constitution sanctions such an order, the Court for all time has validated the principle of racial discrimination in criminal procedure and of transplanting American citizens. The principle then lies about like a loaded weapon ready for the hand of any authority that can bring forward a plausible claim of an urgent need. Every repeti-tion imbeds that principle more deeply in our law and thinking and expands it to new purposes." To the government's claim that the Supreme Court should uphold the evacuation orders because based upon the same claim of military necessity which the Court acknowledged in the curfew orders, Justice Jackson protested: "I think we should learn something from that experience Now the principle of racial dis-crimination is pushed from support of mild measures to very harsh ones, and from temporary deprivations to indeterminate ones.'

from heaven and it seemed as if God were caressing us and giving us courage to carry on. As Chap-lain Higuchi read the names of the honored and the last echo of the honored and the last echo of taps died away in the distance fol-lowed by three volleys of rifle salute, tears welled into my eyes and I could no longer see clearly. I wanted to flop on the cold snow and begin bawling like a baby. Courage remained however, and I stayed on my feet throughout the ceremony. In the list of honored men was one that was dear to me. He was my lifetime companion, and I'll meet him up in the great beyond some day. "We left the beautiful green valley with heavy hearts and our usually noisy bunch was silent. As the icy cold air struck my face on the way back, I prayed in my heart to the Lord to preserve the souls of those men who fell on the wayside in their journey toward that ever-nearing goal." Kanaya's "life-time companion" mentioned in the above letter, was his brother, Walter of Hq. Co., 2nd

Coast Guard Men Rap Hood River Legion Action

PORTLAND, Ore.-Two mem-bers of the U. S. Coast Guard, W. H. Johnson and Clarence F. Buchholtz, recently protested the action of the Hood River American Legion post in deleting the names of 16 Japanese American servicemen from its honor roll and suggested that members of the Hood River post be expunged from the Legion for their action. The protest was made in a let-ter sent to the Portland Journal. "If the Legion, as we service men have heard, wants the veterans of this war to join its or-"Our life of a few weeks ago was anything but rosy though. In rainy, misty, snowy, and cold weather, the 442nd fought in the of the Hood River post," the letter said. "Nominations should now be in order for a motion to expunge from the American Legion the members of Hood River post for their total lack of comprehension of what constitutes tolerance and fair play. If the Legion through its national organization does not do something about this Hood River outfit, it can expect little support from returning veterans of this war."

He thus concluded his views: "I should hold that a civil court cannot be made to enforce an or-der which violates constitutional limitations even if it is a reasonable exercise of military authonable exercise of military auth-ority. The courts can exercise only the judicial power, can apply only law, and must abide by the Con-stitution, or they cease to be civ-il courts and become instruments of military policy."

Temporary Haven For Tired GIs

Cpl. Shuji Akiyama of Co. A, also writes of the temporary "ha-ven": "Up here on the mountain top overlooking a lot of other mountains in a cozy little dugout, life goes on as usual. Mind you, there's a war on too! The cold breeze from the snow-capped Alps far in the distance brings on the rain and now, snowflakes. Inside our cozy hut there is nothing but activity. I'm sitting on my warm bed and busily trying to scrib-ble a few letters. The others are too interested in newspapers and
