Gov. Newsom Signs Measure Repealing California Law on Separate Schools for Orientals

SACRAMENTO—One remnant of California's anti-Oriental past disappeared from the statute-books on June 16 when Governor Edmund G. Brown approved a bill which required that the state's anti-Oriental code be amended to permit separate schools for children of Chinese, Japanese and Mongolian ancestry. The bill was sponsored by Assemblyman Glenn Anderson, D., Hawthorne, a member of the Assembly's Education Committee.

The bill, which was passed by the Assembly in May, becomes law immediately upon approval by the Governor. The law, which was signed by Governor Brown, is the last remaining piece of anti-Oriental legislation in the state. The law was enacted in 1924 to prevent the entry into the state of Orientals who were not naturalized citizens.

The bill would permit parents of soldier dead to petition for naturalization on behalf of their children.

Sixty-Year Old Law Stricken from Statute-Book

WASHINGTON--Sixty years after it was enacted, the law which provided for the establishment of separate schools for Oriental pupils was repealed by the State Legislature last week. The law, which was passed in 1909, required that separate schools be established for Oriental pupils in the state of California. The law was enacted in response to a series of court decisions which held that separate schools were unconstitutional.

The bill, which was sponsored by Senator John J. Linn, D., Los Angeles, and was signed by Governor Brown on June 16, was the last remaining piece of anti-Oriental legislation in the state. The law was enacted in 1924 to prevent the entry into the state of Orientals who were not naturalized citizens.

California VFW Votes Down Resolution Supporting Rights For Parents of Nisei GIs

State Encampment Passes Resolution to Seek Amendment of State Alien Land Law to Protect Property Rights of Japanese American Servicemen

SANTA CRUZ, Calif.—The California state encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars last week voted down a revised resolution which would have put the California VFW on record in support of naturalization rights for Japanese alien parents of Nisei servicemen and veterans.

The opposition to the naturalization resolution, presented by Nisei VFW Post No. 3895 of Sacramento and supported by the Golden Poppy Council of the VFW, was led by members of the Americanism committee of the California state VFW, which was charged that the naturalization of Japanese American servicemen would lead to the removal of present internment laws against Japanese aliens.

Abe Hagiwara, VFW national representative of the Los Angeles, Calif., VFW, argued that the proposal affected the rights of the Japanese American servicemen and the Japanese American Legion through its legislation. In Washington, it is argued that the bill which will open citizenship privileges to alien parents of Japanese Americans killed in World War II.

The resolution was defeated by a vote of 34 to 12. The California state encampment of the VFW will not accept the membership of persons under the age of 30 as the committee, Masaoka declared that only the resident alien parents of Nisei servicemen and veterans are eligible to vote on the naturalization resolution.

Nisei War Veterans Face Job Discrimination Upon Return

To Civilian Life, Says Masaoka

Ex-GIs "Tragically Disillusioned" on Coast, JACL-ADC Director Tells Senate Subcommittee; Urges Revision of Federal Land Laws

WASHINGTON—American war veterans of Japanese ancestry, returning from European battlegrounds and from combat intelligence and intelligence units, have been "tragically disillusioned" on the Pacific Coast by wage job and occupation blocks against their return to their homes and the employer's rejection of them as "political reasons" are the basic cause of unemployment, said James K. Hayashi, director of the Japanese American Citizens League (JACL) at a Senate subcommittee hearing on discrimination.

"I was shocked to learn that the Army has discriminated against my son and his co-workers, and that the attitude of the Army is that they won't have Japanese Americans work for them," said Mrs. Masaoka, whose sons returned from the Pacific Coast.

The JACL-ADC representative declared that the job situation for Japanese war veterans still remains "grim" and "bleak." He said that the government's policy of employment discrimination and the "No Japs" signs caused the situation to persist.

"We are asking that the law be revised to allow Japanese American veterans to work in all jobs, including those in which they served in the armed forces," Hayashi said.

Mr. Hayashi urged the Senate to enact a law providing for employment opportunities for all returning veterans, regardless of race.

The committee, which is investigating the effects of discrimination in the employment of returning veterans, was shown a letter from a returning soldier in the Pacific Coast who said: "I was refused work as a gardener, clerk and laborer in the construction business, and had to work as a garage mechanic for 80 cents a day."

"We have had many reports of discrimination in the Pacific Coast area," Hayashi said. "In fact, at one time we were refused work as gardeners, clerks and laborers. We were told that we were not good enough for the army engineers but not good enough for any other work."

Hayashi said that the government's policy of discrimination was "inconsistent with the spirit of the law and the hope of a new world."

"We are asking that the law be revised to allow Japanese American veterans to work in all jobs, regardless of race," Hayashi said. "We are asking that the government provide employment opportunities for all returning veterans, regardless of race."
Housing Dilemma

As far as non-Caucasians are concerned, the housing crisis on the west coast is complicated by another kind of discrimination, that is, the efforts of school boards to establish separate facilities for children of Indian, Chinese, Japanese, and Mongolian ancestry.

This law never was used to any great extent in California, although separate schools did exist at one time at Courtland, Walnut Grove, and Florence, but in practice the law, however, that the San Francisco school board precipitated what became an international incident when it moved to segregate children of Japanese ancestry in a separate school in 1906. Observers of the period believe that the segregation of Japanese students is a symbol of racial intolerance and prejudice. Mr. Ferguson concludes in his book, "It is a part and parcel of the whole sacrilegious act of anti-Japanese agitation in California."

Examining the Supreme Court's 1923 decision which upheld the California law, Mr. Ferguson adds: "...it should not be enough to induce in speculative justifications of the law as the Supreme Court did in California to plead ignorance of local conditions and the 'possibility' of its operation under the legislative judgment. Restrictive legislation, originating from racial prejudice, particularly against a minority that has developed political power and political calls for more searching judicial inquiry. Such an inquiry would reveal, it is submitted, that the law directed against resident aliens of Japanese ancestry, and that it clearly violates the rights protected by the Fourteenth Amendment."

Open House

The integral role played by specially trained Nisei soldiers in the war effort and the heritage of the Japanese American community is a testament to the contributions of these citizens. Open Houses, such as the one mentioned in the text, serve as a way to remember the sacrifices made by these soldiers.

During the war the security measures were so stringent that the government, particularly those outside the Japanese American community, could not comprehend the important role of MISLS and its graduates in shortening the war and the struggle in the Pacific. The activities of combat and liaison officers exposed them to many dangers and the war has caused the occupation job in the nearly two years of V-J Day.

The importance of the personell is attested to by the fact that the army has instituted an intensive recruiting campaign to ensure that a sufficient number of trained soldiers will be available to finish the duties of occupation. The full story has not been told, although individual exploits have been published.

Little Tokyo Childhood: The MARGINAL NISEI

BY JUNCO ASAKURA

So much has been said about the marginal Nisei, but very few admit being one. Perhaps you can classify me as a marginal Nisei. My birth certificate problem number 159641 was brought up in the ghetto of Los Angeles, enjoying the voluntary segregations of my race. I attended Amelia Street school where I fought with rows of books and magazines and I was pouting and quartering the seats. During the war I went to work for WRA and I was a marginal Nisei. When WRA folded, I opened a photographic studio in Benson. He named it the Whirble and Bergie Press. Today he is in partnership with Pat Cofie, one of the city's leading architects, and they have just about all the business they can handle.

Within did the photos this year for the annual meeting of the high school alumni association. The firm also has industrial contacts, designing and building model homes for one of the city's leading architects on an exclusive basis. These jobs, and when the film situation allows, I shall do odd jobs from time to time.

Vagaries

I have a passion for photography, particularly when it comes to promotion work. Take that shot and I will stimulate interest. I offered him prizes for those having photographs taken for the WRA's free first-day trip to Chicago. A radio and a camera were to be given as prizes. A young man was seen taking up photography.

I am a young man going places. I'll con- tinue to go if I can ever learn to get up from the floor.

The Kawakita Case

Tomoya Kawakita's desire to get back to Japan was understandable. He was uncomfortable and he had his gravity and a scowl. He was one of the few who acted properly. There were other Nisei Jews, but very few admit being one. Perhaps you can classify me as a marginal Nisei. Washington Report:

A DAY FOR THE NISEI!

By ESTHER I. L'CLERC

It was a big show for the Nisei last week in Washington. Normally Nisei is a little “pond”—being just a sub-committee-hearing—but there were three senators present, plus wide representation from the press, and a jammed hearing room.

And a Nisei stole the thunder. Even from such seasoned and respected listeners, Senator Fong’s, C. D. Reed, rank in the backing of the Anti-Discrimination legislative director for appearing.

Set for an outline of the National Act Against Discrimination in Employment but before Masaoaka was through, the legislators heard about the magnificent record of the 442nd, and several points particularly affecting Nisei and Issei.

He was the color and you could taste the tension. Antagonism hid flared between some of the senators and some of the speakers and the room was buzzing with indignant comments and knee-jerk, suppressive looks.

Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana had been bawling witnesses with loaded questions on segregation laws and issues, as well as everyone else, was wondering what questions would be thrown his way.

He started it all, mentioned on the veteran and what he had done and what he had discrimination now and he had handed the senators on nothing new.

Nothing looked for that.

For Senator Ellender made the first comment at the conclusion of Masaoaka’s testimony. He said in part, “I think Mike should have been a lawyer.”

There were no questions at all. And there was a good feeling once again in the room.

Masaoaka had done a simple thing. He had taken the emphasis away from the conflicts between white and black and had put it on a patriotic one. And everyone responded.

Yes, it was a great day for the Nisei.

Kawakita, Charged With Act Of Treason, Will Demand Trial Be Held in Tokyo

LOS ANGELES—Tomoya Kawakita, charged with treason for his mistreatment of American prisoners of war in a Japanese prison camp, will demand trial be held in Tokyo rather than in Los Angeles, where he was employed too recently to have the necessary papers prepared.

"We will contest," Lavine contended, "there are facts which he should be tried in Japan where he can subject witnesses to his own defense. The entire theory of American justice is that a defendant charged with an offense should be tried at the place where the alleged offense was committed."

Lavine added: "This theory was further expounded by Supreme Justice Jackson declaring that war papers prepared too recently to have the necessary papers prepared.

Kawakita, a native of Calexico, Calif., is accused of torturing and mistreating American prisoners while foreman of a nickel mine there as Munose. He went to Japan in 1939 to attend school and the FBI has charged that he had no part in the Japanese war effort.

Lavine noted a report from a former prisoner at the POW camp that he was working in a Los Angeles store.
