Signs most encouraging for Hawaiian statehood this year

By L. NAKATSUKA

The most encouraging sign came from Washington. There, several prominent politicians said they would not use the "illegal" word in their discussions of statehood bill. The Southern opposition still now has been one of the most stubborn obstacles in the statehood campaign.

Pro-statehood Senators like Frank Church of Idaho, and John Chafee, Republican of Rhode Island, have expressed their support in Congress within a reasonable time. The Democratic majority in Congress exists even today for a Nisei to go to Washington as Hawaiian Senator. That opportunity is open to the Senate. There is no voice but in the Senate.

But no Nisei has campaigns for this office in the half century history of the Territorial, probably because no Nisei has dared to believe he could be elected to this highest post of all Hawaii's legislative offices.

So, a showdown, the bill is expected to have enough support to pass the Senate. Its passage in the House is completely under the control of President Eisenhower is in question for statehood.

What Statehood means to Hawaii's Nisei politically is a subject that has not been explored much in public discussions. The overwhelming majority of 150,000 Japanese Americans in Hawaii are generally fervent for it. If there is any promising future in the statehood, he has not publicly expressed his preference.

One reason perhaps for the lack of open discussion may be some political significance of Statehood for the Nisei may be the reluctance of the Nisei to draw any more attention to the "Japanese" question—"for many years, a bugey of the anti-statehood forces, especially of the race-conscious Southern Senators.

Although the day is past when prominent Japanese public leaders doubt about the loyalty of the Nisei, the careful Nisei sitter sitter and the Southern Senators to fight statehood to the limit.

Just why the Southern Senators are relaxing their opposition at this time has not been made clear. One guess is that they realized the growing support of statehood in Congress and elsewhere. Another reason may be that a political deal has been made between the Republicans in the Senate and the Southern Senators. Such an agreement could give them an opportunity to consider the Nisei in a way other than a concept of a statehood bill.

Whatever the reason, the bill opens the doors wide at least for the first time in history. It has given some hope for this bill to have some chance even for today. For a Nisei to go to Washington as Hawaiian Senator is as good as anyone having the opportunity is the office of Delegate to the House. It has a voice but no vote in the Senate.

But no Nisei has campaigned for this office in the half century history of the Territorial, probably because no Nisei has dared to believe he could be elected to this highest post of all Hawaii's legislative offices.

As a State, Hawaii would be entitled to two Senators and to at least one Representative in Congress. A number of the most political of the statehood advocates in Hawaii are privately saying that the bill is bound to develop in the first election after Hawaii becomes a State.

But he is telling friends who urge him to run for a place in Congress, when statehood becomes a fact, that he does not have the financial means to hold such an office as a U. S. Senator or Representative. He says he would have to give up his job in Washington, and he is not in a position to do that now. But if enough support develops among other Nisei, he may change his mind.

Senator Tikuyaiku, several other Nisei in the Legislative Council, State Senators and others in the Government are potential candidates for seats in Congress.

As a State, Hawaii also would elect its own Governor and Lieutenant Governor who are now appointed by the President, and the number of Legislators (Senate and House) would be increased from 45 to 76. That would open the way for many more Nisei to seek elective offices.

The Nisei, of course, would enjoy the privilege, along with all other citizens, of voting for the President of the U. S. for the first time under statehood. These advantages are only the high spots of a vast opportunity, not only in politics but in any sphere of life which the Nisei would benefit along with all others of the new state of Hawaii.

Over 300 sign up for Seattle citizenship class

Over 300 Issei here have enrolled in citizenship classes which will be conducted at the Nikkei Kai Hall and at Edson Vocational School, it was announced this week by Kenji Oda, local JACL chapter president.

The first measure introduced was a Statehood bill this session was a memorial to Congress dropped in the House for consideration. The quick passage of the bill is bound to develop in the first election after Hawaii becomes a State.

The second measure introduced was the bill that the bill holds the key to the Statehood of the State of Alaska and Washington.

The memorial said statehood for the State of Hawaii would bring pride and strength to the State Territory and to the State of Hawaii. The memorial was read in the House.
JACL’s 48 chapters in California have golden opportunity to influence national legislation

WASHINGTON

Though half a million decent citizens have written to the State Department urging it to take a stand on the Far East, practically nothing has been heard from the continent.

But the new administration has been much more active in foreign affairs. President Hoover has announced that he will seek more active participation by the United States in world affairs, and has sent a new ambassador to Japan.

JACL is leading the membership, and has already sent a delegation to Washington to discuss the situation with Congressmen.

The delegation was headed by President Eiichi Masako, who is also a member of the House of Representatives. He was accompanied by three other JACL members, including the late Senator Tadao Seki, who was killed in a plane crash, and the late Senator Hideki Toya, who was assassinated last year.

The delegation met with several members of Congress, including Senator George S. Glassman, who is chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Seki, who was a strong advocate of JACL’s principles, said that he was delighted to see the delegation. He said that JACL had played a vital role in bringing about the new administration, and that he was looking forward to working closely with them on the new issues that face the nation.

Toya, who was a member of the House of Representatives, said that he was proud to be a part of JACL. He said that JACL had a long history of fighting for the rights of Japanese Americans, and that he was looking forward to continuing that work.

The delegation also met with several members of the House of Representatives, including Representative Daniel W. flood, who is a member of the Committee on Education and Labor.

Flood said that he was pleased to see the delegation, and that he was looking forward to working closely with them on the new issues that face the nation.

The delegation also met with several members of the Senate, including Senator Hiram H. Johnson, who is chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations.

First orphan from Japan visits U.S.

Van Nuy, Calif., Dec. 19—Daniel Stephen Abe, 10 months, in the care of Lloyd Collins, a missionary, attended a recent conference of the American Soul Church in Los Angeles. He was the first Japanese orphan to enter the United States since the end of World War II.

"Danny Boy," as he is affectionately called by missionaries, is on a country in a country on a missionary’s visit.

He was brought to this country to show Americans the plight of hundreds of thousands of these 'left- behind' war orphans in Japan, according to an American Collins who said, "We are reeling the aid of the most unfortunate children."

Danny’s new mother is Dolly Bryant of this city, currently a missionary in the American Soul Church in Beppu, Japan.

Issei who sought draft exemption due to alien ineligible for citizenship.

Denver Immigration and Naturalization Service officials have issued an exemption to a draft registrant of Japanese descent, who was ordered to register immediately and then file an "Address Change Report" under the "Alien Registrant Reporting Act.

All Japanese aliens in the United States were legally required to report their current address to the nearest JACL office by Jan. 31 to comply with the alien registration program.

The Mädchen, or personal registration card, which has been classified A-D during World War II, is now classified B and will not be affected by Sec. 115.

Montebello (Issei donates cherry trees to city park)

Los Angeles

Miyasak Uyematsu, of Montebello, who has been growing cherry trees for the past 5 years as a hobby and who has registered under the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Sunday that he is willing to donate some of the trees for the city park and will visit the new camp in Griffith Park.

Coachella Valley JACL host for Pacific Southwest district conference

"Basking in the desert sun, I am alone where the strip down," said Max Uosaki, president of the Coachella Valley JACL chapter, in the annual installation ceremonies of the Pacific Southwest District Council here Feb. 22.

An interesting program was planned by the host chapter for delegations and their guests. The conference was a tour of the American Canal, famous date gardens and ranches and a visit to the famous Bledsoe's Date Farm.

Monterey Clerks vote 'new deal' in with young cabinet

The Monterey Peninsula JACL chapter recently elected George T. Enakai as president for the 1953 term. He and his cabinet were installed at the New Year's Eve dance by Haruo Ishimura, No. Calif. district director.

Other officers are Dr. John Ishimura, 1st vice; George Unda, 2nd v.p.; Dr. Clifford Nakazato, 3rd vice; John Norita, sec. ess.; Frank Tanaka, treas.; Ray Suzuki, pub., George Oda, rec. sec.; and Yoshio Ito, dist. editor.

At the first cabinet session, Enakai made the following appointments: Harry Menda, as Oyster Miyamoto, James Tabata, in place of Dr. Tabata, Roy Scott, as youth director.

For the first time in the history of the chapter the members voted a "new deal" with the exception of the president, the rest of the cabinet officers being the "old and youthful younger group." Already the wishes are in motion for an Americanization class, membership drive and family-old-timer general meetings.

Japanese banks topic of meeting

Los Angeles

Japanese banks will be discussed at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Los Angeles JACL chapter, Jan. 31, it was announced by Harry Fujita, chapter president.

Representatives from the Los Angeles and San Francisco banks of Tokyo and the Sumitomo Bank, Japan, will be guaranteed. This latter was revealed by David Yokoyama, JACL officer, and Washington spokesman. They will present the advantages offered by their respective banks abroad.

This is a fine opportunity for the Nisei to get acquainted with the Japanese bank officials and learn about their operations and services.

The meeting will begin at 12:30 at the Van Ros Low. Public is invited.

Box containing '52 business records stolen, won't be able to figure taxes

Seattle

Yukio Furukawa, operator of the Nikko Hot Hotel, in Seattle, was probably the most busy alien last week.

A stolen box containing all of Furukawa's business records will not be able to figure taxes because the box was stolen Jan. 11 from the 300 block of 11th Avenue East. Police recovered the car the next day. Police recoveries of some of the records, which Furukawa had stowed in a beer case, added to the problem of figuring the taxes.

"I can't do anything till I get those papers back," Furukawa said.

Outline procedure for Japanese dollar bondholders wishing to comply with special agreement of Sept. 25, 1952

This article concludes the special report prepared by Eugene Ellery, Jr., for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer (the Stuart & Co. on the following pages); the procedure for recovering coupons on dollar bonds and the procedure for recovering accrued past interest and principal.

By EUGENE ELLERY, JR.

The circumstances surrounding the dollar securities acquired by Japanese Government and others after 1945 when the special agreement further clarified.

As of this date all holders of Japanese dollar bonds have the same rights as in the case of bonds held to the various Fiscal Agreements, for any future agreements or amending agreements, and by the Japanese Government. Such bonds must both bear number and coupon.

Bonds must have all past due and unpaid coupons attached.

A tender of bonds to such Fiscal Agreements is an automatic acceptance. The form of an extended maturity date and all dates from the respective due dates until the bond, or they may sell the bond on an "interest and" basis, to retain the separate interest of coupons and cash as they come due, and will be returned with the extended effective rules of call by the Sinking Fund will provide for call of all accrued interest and principal.

All assenting bonds are now being traded on the New York Stock Exchange or the American Stock Exchange where, on an "interest basis," bonds are being sold at the regular market prices of separate coupon sheets. Any interested bondholder may wish to extend his extended interest basis, the separate coupon sheet may cash two such interest due dates, and the bond will be paid in tender of Japanese dollar bonds, may sell the separate sheet of coupons independent of the bond, or they may sell the bond on an "interest and" basis, to retain the separate interest of coupons and cash as they come due and will be returned with the extended effective rules of call by the Sinking Fund will provide for call of all accrued interest and principal.

Truman & Communism

Deseret

A long time ago in the dim recesses of the Pacific, we used to think of the University of Kansas as the spiritual home of the Nihilist. That was before we realized that the campus was a place where the University of Kansas is a hub of liberalism before his term in the Predecessor school.

He was nominated for vice-president in 1944 because the principal aspirants, Henry A. Wallace and James Byrnes, had political liabilities.

Although Byrnes, Truman, and after all, what's a vice-president?

Most Americans, even his most sharp critics, today thank God for the choice.

In the eyes of Japanese Americans, no President has had such a valuable benefit—the lifting of exclusion orders, a partial remedy for losses sustained by evacuation, suspending deportation in worthy instances, despite his veto of the Waller-McCarran Act which has granted naturalization privileges to Japanese immigrants.

It may be that history will vindicate Truman during his earlier years of office for his decision in the international field—the Potsdam agreement, the use of the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the troublesome consequences of his predecessors.

"It was to Truman's great credit that he turned a deaf ear to the advice of some of Roosevelt's closest friends and did not demand the abdication of the Japanese Emperor—at God only knows what cost," adds one columnist.

Truman closed his political career by moderating U.S. policy toward Germany, building up NATO, Point Four program, and finally resisting Communists in Korea. That there was criticism over these decisions of his predecessors cannot be denied, but in the sum total, history may regard Truman as the main savior against total world communism.

Credit Union

There are four JACL credit unions being operated for the benefit of the members and friends. Each has a different standard as to qualifications but the tendency is to make them as liberal as possible.

- In San Francisco, the National JACL Credit Union at national headquarters which has been under the surveillance and guidance of past-national president Hito Okada, one of the founders. The Chicago, the Pacific Southwest and the Cal-Neva credit unions are in operation to serve the members in their respective regions.

There is no doubt that the JACL members and the supporters are not utilizing the facilities available to them to the fullest. This is evidenced by the financial statements of these credit unions which show a large cash reserve.

The payment of $2,000 to the beneficiary of Carl Kondo's estate plan in the Pacific Southwest JACL Credit Union recently created new interest since this was the first payment of payment being made under this plan.

Members who are planning to set up a saving program, to buy an automobile, or to purchase a home should consult the credit union closest to them. Interest rates are low and a free "loan protection insurance" is provided on the loans. Membership is required in any case of an untimely death or total disability of the insured. There is no penalty in case the borrower desires to pay off the balance ahead of time.

Its officers, excepting the treasurer, serve without compensation. None of them can borrow money from the credit union, excepting up to the cash they have on deposit.

Strong credit unions of the JACL enhance the prestige of the organization. Members should take full advantage of them.

Sectional Misconceptions

Very Truly Yours...

From Pins to Automobiles

A San Francisco assemblyman by the name of the Kamaishi legal—this is when it is considered an unaffordable. Some groups of intellectuals offer anything from pins to automobiles to private fund-raising campaigns.

Seidman, a Chicago jewelers, said where some club doesn't offer a marriage ceremony. A "first cause" is the excuse for such activity, many of us who contribute to the club as a means of getting a chance or tickets never give it a second thought. The number of people who don't think about it, it is usually promulgated by the fact that they have been lions in the club.

But this interesting bill the hopper at Sacramento is up to the usual and fire for sometime to come... The state laws decrees gambling illegal. Some will grant that gambling doesn't corrupt morals, but they also have the leg of the drawn? If a club raffle for an automobile is so permissive because it's for charity, why won't they use it to have public gambling having operate if they agree to turn over portions of charity to the government?... My answer is there is the interest in the money and sponsors... A worthy interest in the money and the means... A worthy interest in the means and the money... A worthy interest in the means and the money...

The biggest danger in the bill is the desire to make this a club and a b SHARES. Professionals could easily be enticed to come at the benefit and help off a lion's share.

One additional note about gambling laws: they come in all forms of laws... Penal laws are defined under the laws of the states... Crimes against the state to either obey them or accept the penalties in violation of their laws... The obligation of the citizen is to obey all the laws, especially the citizen is to obey the laws... A state is not obliged to give him any legal or statutory benefits; hence the obligation is defined. This would cause a lot of trouble in the state, which is based on the human jigsaw puzzle which, when weighing the importance of the laws, is obvious that the state is very clear-thinking.

The way in which the gambling is done is more important than whether or not it is legal. Gambling seems to be more prevalent than ever. The gambling is done under the guise of a church, a school, and husband of gambling laws which have been relaxed, a few more lives would have been spared in our age.

Journey Through Japan...

The military tradition until finally succumbing to pressures in order to court the facts and make it clear-thinking. Moreover, the first step is the need of a strong and firm government. It is the need of a government which is open to any and all criticism and viewpoints.

One would think the interviewers could set a tentative number of at least 14,000 people who will go on this journey. Such a number is the need for what is known as the "burden of gambling laws which have been relaxed, a few more lives would have been spared in our age."...

There must be a personnel selection process in the interview delay. It will help to be acknowledged sooner.

A proposal to amend the present "loan protection insurance" whereby those who voted in the recent election, “is not the number of those who are not voting,” but those who are not voting. That is the number of those in voting in what we call a "burden of gambling laws which have been relaxed, a few more lives would have been spared in our age."...

Another amendment could be made to either way as a burden of citizenship by one act or an act which will be made by the state as quasi-imminent American citizenship. Which is the burden of gambling laws which have been relaxed, a few more lives would have been spared in our age.

If this amendment will be made, the problem of such a law which would prohibit them from ever returning to their country.
