We feel that the Ambassador misunderstood the question. At any rate, his statement was unfortunate and regrettable.

Many Americans make little distinction between Americans of Japanese ancestry and persons from Japan. Further, many of us Nisei are judged by our physical appearance and automatically classed as being "Japanese" rather than Americans. Moreover, too many cases the term "Japanese" is shortened to "Jap" either through ignorance, or underhanded or malicious purpose.

The only way this derogatory and sometimes insulting term can be eliminated is through education and public relations.

Very excellent work done by the JACL in eliminating this word from a California textbook a few months ago shows the effectiveness of a well organized, concerted effort.

Although elimination of the word "Jap" on a broader basis presents far greater problems, this goal is worthwhile. No Nisei would want his son or daughter to be called "Jap".

We must remember that apathy and indifference are seeds from which racial abuses grow. Firmness in opposition and use of this word are in order.

When the National JACL Board meets in Chicago during the EDC-MC convention, ways and means of effectively carrying out a national program to eliminate the word "Jap" will receive a high priority.

Dr. Roy Nishikawa.

PRESIDENT'S CORNER:

Should our children be called 'Japs'?

National JACL's campaign to eliminate use of the word "Jap" from the American vocabulary was given a setback when Ambassador Koto Matsudaira to the United Nations, was quoted on John Win- gate's television show in New York City as not objecting to the use of the word "Jap."

FIRES ON THE PLAIN — Latest Japanese novel to be published in English is "Fires on the Plain" (Alfred Knopf, $3.50). This is a historical novel about the Japanese soldiers on Leyte during World War II. The story is told through the eyes of a Japanese soldier who, after the war, returns to the island to find his former comrades. The novel is a powerful reminder of the human cost of war and the need for peace.

The novel is written by Shimazaki Toson, a Japanese novelist known for his realistic portrayal of war and its effects on individuals and society. "Fires on the Plain" is a gripping story that explores themes of survival, the impact of war on the individual, and the search for meaning in a world that has been turned upside down.

The novel is a valuable addition to the canon of Japanese literature and a must-read for anyone interested in understanding the complexities of war and its aftermath. It is a testament to the power of literature to transcend time and place, and to give voice to the experiences of those who have lived through the atrocities of war.

The novel is a work of fiction, but it is based on real events and experiences. The author, Shimazaki Toson, was a Japanese soldier who fought in World War II. He returned to Leyte after the war to find his former comrades, and the novel is based on his experiences.

"Fires on the Plain" is a poignant and thought-provoking novel that will stay with readers long after they have finished reading it. It is a powerful reminder of the human cost of war and the need for peace.
Nisei Behind Footlights

Two of the most successful theatrical properties in recent years, "Teahouse of the August Moon" and "The King and I," will be presented by the Teahouse Company for four weekends in September. Dick Akagi, former Chicago representative for the JACL, will produce the show. The company plans to cast all the roles as authentically as possible, according to Dick Akagi.

The production of "Teahouse" will be part of a national tour by the Teahouse Company. The company has been touring the United States and Canada for the past three years. The role of Teale Hori will be played by Nisei actors on Broadway, but two Nisei, Shigemi Katsuki and Reiko Sato, will play the roles on the road. The Nisei actors will be selected for the role of Mr. Hori, a part which is written for a character who has been through several marriages.

One member of the company, incidentally, is Dick Akagi, former Chicago representative for the JACL. Dick Akagi will produce "Teahouse" on four weekends in September. According to Dick Akagi, "We want to cast all these roles as authentically as possible," said Dick Akagi of the Alameda Little Theater, acknowledging the challenges of casting the show.

ESO 10th Anniversary

We were very proud to have been able to represent JACL at the 10th Anniversary celebration of the Community Service Organization, during its convention here last week at the Biltmore Hotel. It was very similar to JACL, and it has chapters throughout California, Arizona and Nevada.

At the convention banquet, City Councilman Ed Roybal, host of the Los Angeles Times, spoke on behalf of LACCCR. During his speech in response, Roybal and the people of the area expressed their pride in the Skyline Toastmasters, of San Gabriel, who are composed of about 30 men who meet every other Monday at the Biltmore," said Roybal.

When the chapter of governors sanctioned the project, it was envisioned that a Speakers Club among the citizens of the various JACL chapters will be able to arrange for the participation of all the JACL chapters in the country this year in a detailed memorandum from Jimmy Kunitomo, national chairman of the program and organization.

On March 25, a nucleus of San Pedro JACL members went to develop the principles and programs of Toastmasters. They wanted to know if there was already a Toastmasters Club. The club was set up, and the members were happy to learn that the Southwest L.A. Chapter had already contributed to the cause. The chapter was set aside, feeling it might cause some to "try away" at least some to "try away". The question was raised as to their interest and the needs of the program.

In this way a "core group" was established. A method of persons already acquainted with others was used, and a "bunch" of "bunches" which would guarantee a successful launching of this program.

The idea of setting up a "bunch" of "bunches" is like planting the seeds of friendship and understanding among our coming generation.

Since he bought a local newspaper in 1947, he has contributed to the cause of understanding of Japanese Americans. It is only a by-product of his work as a cartoonist for the "Los Angeles Times".

SPEAKERS CLUB ALONG the lines of the Toastmasters Club is aiming to develop a maximum degree of self-confidence and self-reliance, and to open the doors of leadership to other non-Japanese Americans for others on social and business levels. Through active participation in public oratorical ability, the club provides another source for the expression of thoughts and feelings. It will be enjoyed and valued by the entire force of the community with worthwhile productive activity for the chapter.

It was decided to devote the time to the cause of Japanese Americans, and the problem of whether to participate in the cause of Japanese in America was decided to be held Sept. 3, at a meeting of the board. The question was raised as to their interest and the needs of the program.

VERY TRULY YOURS:

We are indebted to persons unknown for having arranged this chapter's program. "Where's all the news spread of JACL chapter items for one big splash."

FALLS chapter? "The result: "Where's all the news spread of JACL chapter items for one big splash."

Very happy for printing now still adhering to a basic principle in journalism that "pictures never lie."

A housewife recently commented that she enjoyed the PC because "often we have been in print" and "we have lost track of and not seen for years."

So the "semiannual" reports from chapters which haven't been in print a year or more should remember this tip.

We are heartened by the response thus far for our Call to the Calendar feature. Twenty-five issues for $1 to new readers. Chapters are cooperating with us and we think our readers can help. Details will be announced next week.

And let's close by calling attention to the Calendar of Events in each feature. We try to list chapter sponsored events and meeting notices at least once a month in advance.

A postcard listing the particulars is all that is needed. Street addresses as well as mailing addresses should be noted. If a speaker is engaged, his name and subject should be included. Auxiliary events also quality for this popular PC feature. Tentative dates are also considered for insertion, but we let know when they're definite.

Seattle

When the good old summer time comes around, life in the evergreen state seems to flow with the same continuity as the rivers - through the thriving population of outdoor and outdoor fun. Where each city has its own type of major events, and Los Angeles for Nikia Week, Seattle has its own spectacular events of the season... and only fun call the Seattleite, which will be well under way by the time this edition is put to bed.

Davy Jones and his pirates take over the city, busting King Neptune's crew in a high old time in general. Parades and sports events, overflowing the roaming hordes in the streets, will transport the Land of Tidbits with the Storks and the competition of some of the city's top socialites. Well, maybe not socially, but that is where the name of the minor sport will have to be changed in order not to offend its followers.

The first issue were received very favorably, we feel that we will stand the test and we go along.

The recently concluded do-nut-to-door Stumie fund drive was successful in raising more than $1,000. Financially, we exceeded all expectations. Further, this gave us the occasion to work closely with other groups in our area as a team. The teamwork was wonderful. It fills us with great pride to think that we were partially responsible for the extra-smile that we see often.

The Hollywood chapter numerically is a relatively small organization, but, most likely, will remain small. Nonetheless, we hope to expand our activities, especially on the community level.

A few weeks ago, PC Editor Harry Hendra nearly gave us the jitters of having, Harry commended our record of international membership. This timely praise gives us further incentive to increase our rolls, if only by one. By many more, we hope. Vacation's over! Dues, Membership VP, we have 30 more members.

One of the club president is fun.You delegate all the work and others do the rest, which is what we want. The Wall was part of this half-column, Miss Mary Yamada and our Publicity VP, will get the blame. She refused to ghost-write for me.

Storm Drain Hazards

Two weeks ago Japanese American residents in the newly developed, ultra-modern community of Lexington Gardens, southeast of downtown Sacramento, learned that the county lake, which drains into the Garden River, would be closed. The lake, which is considered to be in “critical danger” of failing into the poorly guarded excavation 25 feet deep and 20 feet wide, was the location of the new community. The contractor, in order to prevent the lake from overflowing into the excavation, ordered the contractors to place a fence four feet high against the single wooden guardrail that had been placed as a precaution for pedestrians and motorists.

Banks, meeting with a committee composed of the town residents, agreed that some work be done on Norvan Ave. early in the future after the installation of “kirk barriers” just five days earlier.

The efforts of residents in this nearly all-Oriental Community of 30 families is likely to set a precedent in that similar construction hazards in the area may be lessened by such action. Among residents was Iwao Tanaka, the president of the community, which has been established in the town. Many of them plan to move there since the working westward where such facilities are available.

Dr. Irem will undertake a limited practice in internal medicine and will continue scientific research involving functioning of the heart, circulation and kidneys. He began his medical education in Japan and is a graduate of the University of Tokyo.

Legislation that has been cut out of the bill, Muscardo said that no further congressional action is expected from the Southern opposition so that at least a modicum of understanding will be required by this Congress.

Pointing out that there are no constitutional guarantees of a journal in Congress, the Washington JACL representative said, since 1861, all contempt procedures would be the “judicial purpose” of the bill. In most Southern states, negroes are not registered as voters, therefore, could not be members of any jury that would be in a position of denying voting rights to other negroes. This could make some Negroes in sympathy with these efforts of Congress would be the losers.

Among homeowners who worked for the contractors, the Washington Post reported that a limited Orders of California were at hand with a desire to purchase a home in the new Lexington Gardens. The project is not confined to Norton Ave., between 20th and 22nd Sts., but will gradually extend westward where such facilities are available.

There must have been at least a dozen picnic parties last Sunday morning. Illust not affected by veto of Calif. old age pension bill

SAN FRANCISCO — A measure which would have expanded state old age pensions, passed as a measure sponsored by Governor Knight 17, but its failure does not affect the measure.

The governor killed the bill and 27 others that would have been signed to refuse them by the July 17.

AB 178, introduced by Assemblyman Bruce McIver, was to have a clause to extend old age pensions to all those ineligible for citizenship prior to the 1920 U.S. immigration and the naturalization acts.

There were reports last year that there has been no less been reduced for pensions because the state has been the same for 25 years. In order, to carry the matter forward, McIver last January introduced AB 178 to clarify the word “living” to “residing.”

Meanwhile, Assemblyman Bruce McIver has not been able to pass a bill to extend pension rights to all citizens, who are over 60 years of age.

Both McIver and Allen bill, which has been favorably and combined in the Senate, which holds hearings on the bill, could not afford to show any annual that they had intended to gain American citizenship.

As far as to citizenship, applicants who have been citizens of other states, if their state or national agency has filed their papers with the state, and the governor’s secretariat, the Senate has passed the bill, and the governor’s secretariat, the Senate has passed the bill.

The bill, which was sponsored by Senator M. S. Smith, was passed by the Senate and the governor’s secretariat.

Any similar cases of state pensioners, the state secretary, who is the only person, may be referred to the state, which has been denied any of the local chapters.

Voting Rights Bill

Washington

When the Senate on June 24, by a decisive margin, 62 to 38, voted to eliminate all federal enforcement of the guarantee of the Fifteenth Amendment, it effectively reduced the bill from that for the furtherance of human dignity to that for the safeguarding of the rights of the franchise, as it was called by the amendment.

When the House was considering the original bill, the President, President Roosevelt, introduced it, the provisions of which were minimum and meaningless civil rights. Administration support was with the President on the floor.

In the Senate, however, with a month of consideration over, what was once called the Eisenhower civil rights bill is now being reduced to the Southern bloc and after a fight with Richard B. Russell, Georgia Democrat and who has so successfully managed the all-white policy of coalition right-wing and liberal Democrats that it now appears virtually certain that the final Senate legislation will be confined to voting rights and, even then, with some concession to jury trials for possibly involving "criminal contempt." The bipartisan civil rights commission and the new Assistant Attorney General to head up a new Civil Rights Division in the Department of Justice will be included in the final Senate version with Russell sponsored amendments, since the Senate does not consider their provisions to be major ones.

The lostordial fillisitter-to-the-deax by the Southern bloc has failed to make even a vain but a registration in the South is gaining their points without having to resort to this desecration that.

And, if they occur some kind of compromise authorizing jury trials for "criminal contempt" this week, the Southern blocs will probably allow the voting rights bill for that it is now to come to a vote and be passed, possibly even with a token fillisitter.

As a result of the Southern victory that it appears that the bill that will be sent to the House for presidential signature and enactment is a highly humiliated one. The Senate will debate and which will probably outline House-Senate Committee amendments in accordance to accepting the Senate's week and then some concession to jury trials for possibly involving "criminal contempt." The bipartisan civil rights commission and the new Assistant Attorney General to head up a new Civil Rights Division in the Department of Justice will be included in the final Senate version with Russell sponsored amendments, since the Senate does not consider their provisions to be major ones.

JURY TRIAL AMENDMENT

The debate this week concerns amendments extending the right to jury trials in criminal cases. The House-passed bill carried no such assurance—authorization for the Southern bloc to insist on an amendment that the Senate to the right to a jury trial for the end of racial discrimination in employment, as it was called by the Supreme Court relating to the desegregation of public schools and in public places of entertainment and in public transportation were considered better than the present provision. It was recently considered as minimum civil rights. It was just a mile or two toward assuring a hue of American black and white of that goal.

The congressional struggle over civil rights will only be enhanced with this session.

Since it is understood that the House will act on the Alaska bill before it considers the Hawaii last week's action shelves Hawaii Statehood for at least another year.

On the Senate side, the Interior Subcommittee on Territories and the Senate Committee on the Interior, consisted of Sen. Henry Jackson (D. Wash.), has approved both a bill for Hawaii and for Alaska Thrice the bills are currently pending before the full Interior and Indian Affairs Committee with a chairman in James Murray (D. Mont.), a long-time advocate of statehood for both of the remaining territories under the American Flag.
