Tokyo, Japan

QUICK LOOK—The outward changes that have taken place since I was in Tokyo eight years ago are immediately apparent. Tokyo is dressing better, eating better, has more money to spend and has more to spend it on, building and blooming.

The Japanese masses have discovered the gasoline engine and the result is near-chaos. Imagine Los Angeles today without freeways. That is roughly the situation today with roads clogged with automobiles, tricycles and scooters of all sizes and shapes. Many of the drivers seem to be frustrated kamikaze pilots with scant regard for either the courtesies of the road or the police. Eight years ago, many men were dressed in what were obviously cut-down castoff G.I. khakis and threadbare jeans worn in Tokyo today without a conduit to oppressive Indian summer heat, clothing is neat, well-cut, of good quality, attractive.

Another matter that has Westernized the appearance of Tokyoites today is their eyeglasses. A large percentage of wear glasses and their frames used to give them quite as much the perusers of it, it seems frame manufacturers suddenly have become style conscious and taking a page out of the American book, are outfitting their glasses with expensive appearing frames.

Result of that is it is virtually impossible to distinguish young Tokyoites today from well-dressed Nisei men in tuxedos or the legalities of driving.

The Chapter allocates all other chapters, the national organization, and most of us in JACL look on. This year's celebration will mark the official formation of the Chapter in 1932. Due perhaps is an attentive following of the footfalls of the tall form in fashioning San Francisco. A surprise visitor at the show was the former special JACL reporter, George Ohashi, former Chairman, who accompanied his famous aunt during his participation in our bowler's Pan-Pac, meeting.

FALL FASHIONS

A big hand to the sale of the San Francisco Chapter Women's Auxiliary led by Mrs. Tomoko Takashima for self-organizing, self-appointed, self-managed, self-help show. This annual event of theirs gives us a chance to see the outfit, and believe that coeds-foolishly get only or did. Another one of the original chapters which came together to form the National Council, the National Women's Auxiliary, will be installed at the annual chapter meeting in Portland.

STAGE TALENT SHOW TO BOOST SCHOLARSHIP PLAN

Cleveland — Last year a community talent show was staged by the Cleveland JACL to encourage and sustain the community's interest in Japanese culture. This year, the show will be even more spectacular.

Ken Asamoto, talent show chairman, has approached local Nisei clubs and churches to participate and support the show. The proceeds from the show will be used to award scholarships to outstanding Nisei students.

Ken has set up a steering committee, which includes representatives from various Nisei organizations. The committee is working hard to make the show a success.

This is a very important event for the JACL and the community during this period of recession. The money raised will be used to support the JACL's scholarship fund.

This year, Detroit JACL president Charles Yats and board member Mr. Jack Kishimoto decided to remedy the situation. They first planned a Keiro Kai in the spring, at which time over 100 JACLers and friends gathered to entertain the Issei elders with a Japanese banquet and a two-hour program.

The success of this Issei program encouraged other organizations to get their own on with assistance from the chapter during the organization of their similar organizations.

Social security benefits can play a significant role in helping families achieve long-term financial security. It is vital for families to understand how to make the most of their benefits to ensure a secure future for current and future generations.
When we all cross Saburo Kido at the Imperial Gardens door one evening last week it reminded us to much of the time we were in 1929, which is now almost a half a century ago in San Francisco. This time, it was the new Japan Food Cooperation which invited the gyozis to receive the salutes from the members of the Japanese American Impersonators' Company in the United States, the Modern Impor Co. of Los Angeles and the Pacific Mutuals, Inc. of San Francisco. With a capitation of $1 million, the Japan Food Cooperation is to be the first to set up its office in the U.S. in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago and New York. The merger is effective immediately.

Of course, the bulk of our story came from Wesley K. Oyama, president, Modern Impersonators Co., who introduced the importing business with James amount to several million dollars. Oyama, who will be executive vice-president of the new company, expected a wholesale food business in Denver during the war and was among the first to import Nipponese food here after trade was resumed with Japan. As George Morikawa, owner of the Imperial Gardens, said once before, "It is now fashionable, or almost a necessity in many cases where a Caucasian businessman must sit down on the floor and have awkward with his Oriental clients if he wants to make an impression." The treatment works both ways. A non-Nisei can't afford to hesitate just because he's never had Oriential food before.

Oyama is confident that in the future importing of Japanese food will not be limited to the Nisei and Nisei consumption but the various items will be used by nation's leading restaurateurs and connoisseurs of good food.

Joe Sugahara, head of the Pacific Mutual Sales, Inc., will serve as the new president of the corporation which will handle the Hime, Daimaru, WestPic and Sea Rich brands. The New York warehouse facilities have already been expanded three times in order to cope with the now increasing in business.

Civilian Liberty Officers include George Nakatani, vice-president; Hisako Inouye, secretary; and Takeno Hamai, treasurer. They will also form a committee with the members of the Kanyakos of the Pacific Mutual as the sixth member. Managers for the four companies are: Mariko Talli, Los Angeles; Kentaro Yonezawa, Los Angeles; Tsunie Shimoto, Chicago and Eizo Sugahara, New York. East San Francisco will be the head office.

The four companies have already taken sales of the two firms last year amounted to over $1,000,000 and this year the figures are running 25 per cent over that of 1957.

"Our aim is to effect this merger is to expand our operation. This is after the entire American consumer market for specialty foods," Oyama emphasized, however, not forgetting the vital Japanese American dealers with the regular lines of canned and other foodstuffs.

General J. Lee Straub, before the Supreme Court on Sept. 21, 1957, filed his final brief for enforcement in the case for enforcement. "In conclusion, let me say that on this Supreme Court, I have found an ideal Justice Under Law," All Americans take pride in this controlling principle of government and I congratulate the members of the great objective of this court in all its decisions.

In cities in the country there are challenges to constitutional rights, I respectfully suggest that each time it becomes an issue, the earnest men, inasmuch as can, must misunderstand between the lengths and breadth of this hand.

Buddhist leader appeals to Nisei, Sansei to fuse best of U.S.-Japan cultures

HONOLULU — An appeal for Hawaii's Nisei to combine the best in American and Japanese cultures at a means of promoting better understanding between the East and the West was made by Bishop Charles Morikawa, of Honolulu.

He was principal speaker at a reception in his honor. He is the new bishop of the Honolulu Hawaii.

Hawaii, the bishop said, in the ideal place where the two cultures can be made into one.

And those best suited for this important task, he said, are the Nisei and Sansei Americans.

Morikawa, who was president of Ritsumeikan University in Kyushu, for 18 years before coming to the Islands four months ago, said, "There is a great need for more English-speaking Buddhist ministers in Hawaii."

He added, "It will be largely through the efforts of these ministers that Buddhism will continue to grow in these Islands."

WASHINGTON. Attorney General J. B. Rogers last week made a statement in Washington making financial awards to more than 1,000 American citizens who served as guerrillas or as members of the Free French Forces during World War II.

The Department of Justice, under Attorney General J. B. Rogers, has announced the administration of a program under the Lane-Hillings Act of 1956 and the Myers Act to make compensation to American citizens for losses incurred in support of the forces of the United States during World War II. The program was created by an act approved by Congress on Dec. 17, 1943, which provided that the President might make such awards in respect of services performed for the United States during World War II.

The program provides for an award of $500 to each American citizen who served as a guerrilla or as a member of the Free French Forces during World War II and who has not received under the Act or under any other law any payment for support of the forces of the United States.

The program is administered by the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice and is presided over by Chief Judge J. B. Rogers.

Rogers said that the Japanese American, 65 per cent of them native born, were basically by abandonment sale at sacrifice prices or inadequate care of the businesses, and per cent of them native born, were basically by abandonment sale at sacrifice prices or inadequate care of the businesses, and per cent of them native born, were basically by abandonment sale at sacrifice prices or inadequate care of the businesses, and per cent of them native born, were basically by abandonment sale at sacrifice prices or inadequate care of the businesses.
