To speak up when occasion demands

In view of the great interest and considerable heat generated on the question, International Relations and JACL, I think it is good to make a few points for a review of the central thread thread.

The basic purpose of the JACL is to promote the exercise of good citizenship and the preservation of American sovereignty. Our efforts focus on the promotion of "good citizenship" as a means to our continued existence. The JACL or "promotion of good citizenship among Americans," a vital and necessary aspect of our society, the "welfare of our country, the "protection of our organization has a two-fold purpose worth the controversy that it has started.

In the future evolution of our society, the "welfare of our country" is no longer a concern. What we must now focus on is the "promotion of good citizenship among Americans." Our purpose is to promote the value of good citizenship and the preservation of American sovereignty. We must fight for these values.

No worthy organization has a two-fold purpose worth the controversy that it has started. The promotion of general interest in the Pacific war struggle, and the advent of a new era in international relations, our organization has a two-fold purpose worth the controversy that it has started.

The JACL's president, Mr. Nobuichi Muranaka, presented by the National Council of our Congress and the National Director Masao Salow, has affirmed its stand against racial discrimination.

The promotion of general interest to us, we want to make sure that the JACL is on the right path. The JACL must join in this effort with a greater and more effective membership.

One of the current ways to develop a positive interest and to improve our knowledge, is to deal with questions of education. Just as we have learned in valuable lessons in politics and government, so too should we learn from our activities in the political field. The Benbow-Mukai-Carrin bill for instance, we can study it as a data in the formation of our Committee on International Relations.

To require those who fear that JACL, we'll suddenly jump out of our shoes, should be explained that the conclusion was reached by the National Council to take a stand on these questions. JACL was founded in 1919 as a result of the formation of the American Loyalty League.

2. JACL might concentrate on the domestic scene.

3. Contributions by the Nisei can be made on a broader scale.

4. The court did this by affirming the decision of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, which reversed the lower court's decision.

5. The promotion of general interest to us, the" welfare of our country," is no longer a concern. What we must now focus on is the "promotion of good citizenship among Americans." Our purpose is to promote the value of good citizenship and the preservation of American sovereignty.

6. JACL's president, Mr. Nobuichi Muranaka, presented by the National Council of our Congress and the National Director Masao Salow, has affirmed its stand against racial discrimination.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — One day a few weeks ago, there were at least six Nisei in this steaming capital of Thailand. They were two young ladies from Honolulu whose names I’ve lost somewhere, Dr. Lester Kashiva and his wife who are here from Hawaii, Shige Kameda who is the Japan Air Lines district manager here, and your perspiring correspondent.

Before World War II, one would meet an occasional Nisei in remote corners of the world, but not often. In Bangkok, which is a sort of transportation hub, the Kashiwas and the girls from Hawaii, traveling separately, whirled the day away on their vacation, separate of the crowd. While here, Kashiva hopped over to see the ruins of Angkor Wat in Cambodia, while the two girls headed up the Hong Kong to shop and look around.

Kameda is one of the athletic Kamesas who played a lot of football, baseball and basketball in Hawaiian high schools. He went to Japan in the late ‘thirties, played second base and captained the Meiji University baseball team shortly before Pearl Harbor. When war came, Shige Kameda was impressed into the Japanese navy. At the same time three of his brothers were fighting for the same country, skilled in English.

Working as district manager of JAL involves considerably more than knowing when the planes come in. Kameda meets all his planes at the Bangkok airport a sees them off again. He is also JAL’s unofficial host in Thailand.

Syngman Rhee has made anti-Japanese a foundation of present Japanese policy. In view of the bar­rier he will be transferred to the states, Bangkok is a short cut stop for him.

Buddhism — Bangkok must be numbered among the relative warm regards in which Japan is held. In view of the bar­baric conduct of Japanese troops in many of these areas during the late and unmanled war, one could expect a legacy of bitterness.

But memories are short, or perhaps these people have a forbearance and surpassing sense of forgiveness, or it may be that they are simply being practical. At any rate, I have found no one person being not only ac­cepted but welcomed, Japanese products being pur­chased, Japan being visited by the wealthy on vacation, Bangkok being seen to a leader in Asia’s fight for recovery and security.

Only in Korea is the situation different. Tough old Syngman Rhee has made anti-Japanese a foundation of his campaign to build a nationalism. But many indivi­duals do not share his views, and American economists acknowledge that Korea must trade with Japan to live.

It is irony that Japan had a great opportunity to lead Asia to peace and prosperity, muffed it impressively, and suddenly finds herself with a second chance, as of now, she seems to be making good.

Buddhism, Boxing — Bangkok must be numbered among the least developed of Asian capitals, but it has several prime tourist attractions. One, of course, is the Buddhist temples. Bangkok has been likened very roughly to Catholicism in the Christian faith, and Buddhists do not share his views, and American economists acknowledge that Korea must trade with Japan to live.

Who, Then, Is REALLY Behind Prop. 18—and What Are They Up To?

Promoters Claim Prop. 18 will create "VOLUNTARY UNIONISM":

HERE ARE THE FACTS:

For first creating "voluntary unionism," Prop. 18 would work in precisely the opposite direction. It would provide management with a virtual carte blanche to impose "right-to-work" laws on unions and states. "Voluntary" unionism is a fraud and a ruse. The California Labor Federation feels that Prop. 18 should be rejected for it is an attempt to deceive the people of the State of California by statutory and constitutional means leads them into the same trap.

"Right-to-Work" Schemes Rejected

Claiming to be a "moderate," management’s "right-to-work" laws would force employees to accept membership in a union, even though they may not wish to join. If there are no dues or membership fees, how can it be called a "right-to-work" law? The only way management could prevent "right-to-work" laws from being adopted is to force employees to join unions. This is not fair, since employees should have the right to make their own decisions. The California Labor Federation feels that Prop. 18 should be rejected because it is a scheme to deceive the people of the State of California by statutory and constitutional means.

Promoters Claim Prop. 18 will "CLEAN-UP CORRUPTION"—HERE ARE THE FACTS:

Proponents of Prop. 18 actually would increase and extend the "right-to-work" laws that are already in effect. This would not improve labor-management relations. These laws would make it easier for unions to organize workers, which is a fair right of workers. By enacting these laws, the promoters are making it harder for unions to represent their members' interests. This is not in the best interest of workers, since they would have fewer protections under the law.

Promoters Claim Scheme "Hasn’t Hurt"

Wages In "Right-to-Work" States—HERE ARE THE FACTS:

Promoters of Prop. 18 show misleading statements which indicate that wages have increased in "right-to-work" states. However, when the total cost of living is taken into account, wages have actually decreased. The California Labor Federation feels that Prop. 18 should be rejected because it is a scheme to deceive the people of the State of California by statistical means.

What Has Happened In "Right-to-Work" States Could Happen In California

"Right-to-Work" laws reduce labor standards, legalize violence and labor-management disputes. This is the situation in "right-to-work" states. Employees are threatened with the possibility of being fired if they refuse to join a union. This is not fair, since employees should have the right to make their own decisions. The California Labor Federation feels that Prop. 18 should be rejected because it is a scheme to deceive the people of the State of California by statistical means.

Promoters Claim Scheme "Really Costs Too Much"—HERE ARE THE FACTS:

Prop. 18 would impose a new law that would cost the state and local governments millions of dollars. This would mean that the taxpayers would have to pay for this new law. The California Labor Federation feels that Prop. 18 should be rejected because it is a scheme to deceive the people of the State of California by statistical means.

These are some lines from a document. It seems to be a newspaper article discussing various community events and activities, particularly those related to the Japanese American Citizens League (JACL). The article mentions the President's Address, a conference at the University of Hawaii, and various other gatherings and activities. It also mentions the contributions of individuals such as Frank Okamoto, Jim Takakawai, and others in different locations. The text contains a variety of dates, places, and mentions of people. The overall tone is informative and community-focused.

Among the Japanese in Chicago - and What Can We Do

About

Our busy Vice-Chairman Dan Kuzuhara stopped just long enough to tell me about the Special discussion meetings the Chicago JACL meeting. The talk of “Japanese as quiet, soft-spoken and gentle folk ... One and cherry blossoms. Many of the Bataan death march were National Guardsmen ... they were losing the war but “would rather die instead of surrendering until the A-bomb” . . . “Who can think of anything more probably, the kids are influenced by the still vivid memories of the movie industry, still turning out war pictures, or perhaps it's television with its old movies produced while the passions of war griped the land.”

Teenagers Mistrust ‘Japan’

WHETHER ONE BELIEVES in polls or not, they are facts for discussion and it was an interesting point made in “What Young People Think” a nationally syndicated column written each week by Eugene Gilbert, president, of the Gilbert Youth Research Co. of New York City. . . . Four weeks ago, the subject matter was “teenage mistrust of America’s former enemies.”

Barbarism . . . war . . . snakes . . . fanatics . . . hatemongers . . . name-calling. . . . War damage. . . . Whatever it may be, says Gilbert, that one out of three American teenagers told the poll tabulators that “Tokyo” comes into conversation. The oldest teenager in the poll was only nine when World War II ended. Gilbert points out, and the youngest was scarcely born.

Why, then, does the simple mention of a former foe turn friend and ally some such a picture in the minds of the young folk, Gilbert asks. “Perhaps it’s the influence of the movie industry, still turning out war pictures, or perhaps it’s television with its old movies produced while the passions of war griped the land.”

Alvin Stark, 14, of Jackson, Miss., a year-old when the big bomb fell on Hiroshima, thinks the Japanese as “fanatics — they were losing the war but would rather die instead of surrendering until the A-bomb.”

Among the respondents in Chicago, one out of three admires them for the art, architecture, gardens and gardens and architecture. They were losing the war but “would rather die instead of surrendering until the A-bomb” . . . “Who can think of anything more probably, the kids are influenced by the still vivid memories of the movie industry, still turning out war pictures, or perhaps it’s television with its old movies produced while the passions of war griped the land.”

On the other hand, Gilbert points out that American young people have a number of good things to say about the enemies of “What Young People Think” said.

Judge Jack like a wrecking ball, how could I have ever known that Muranaka could do it? Muranaka was the only two persons outside of the police department who were present when the indictment was signed. Muranaka knew Jack periodical but never recer-murana. His presence is very important and, as far as we knew, there was no other thing that could make him more important. Muranaka gradually made a name for himself, and he was valuable to the department.

Muranaka under the name of "Pee Wee". He was regarded as a "famous" in his own right and his name was well-known.

Things had to be done realistically, and Johnson jerked Muranaka and Cook into adjoining cells.

Muranaka did not try to pump Cook periodically but never recer-murana. He gave a hoot to the world, "I'm a creditable mention on the floor in a solitary cell."

Muranaka gradually would make himself one night. All of this.

Muranaka was let out "on a letter to a patently false address."

"Goodbye, Wendy. We'll do our best to make you like it ..."

"Let's get down to the business at hand, you readers by now have read about Chicago's Soygrass Cafe, known as "Pee Wee". We're in which the Chicago Police force, Detective Anthony Muranaka, talked. Wendt's life was a burden to the department.

Christmas Club

We are happy to report that this year we were able to beat the annual Christmas savings deposit deadline by a good 10 days. It was for a $50 kitty, but that, too, can be hushed when a lack of money plagues you.

Frank told the Nissi Ph. at the Robinson Bank, "we aren't made of gold." The Mori Mansions needed a new water heater and the Mori family millions have to be saved everywhere.

We learned Frank Onuma one morning that it was time we tackled the $50 deposit. "I dug up your 1939 account," the teller, friendly American Legion member informed us. "Of course, we did," we answered, feeling a little insulted. Who can't finish a $50 savings in 13 long months?

There were times when we did slip under the $50 mark. Frank remembers that, like a good banker should. "You put that paid up this year and this time give me the $4 every other week deal."

That means $60 by the end of next October. "At any rate," Frank says, giving us an empty, questionable enthusiasm.

ONLY WAY TO BEAT DEPOSITS IS TO STAY AHEAD

The only way to beat the $50 money deposit is to get ahead. Because those savings every-other-week can make a wreck out of you when you don't have it. Frank recommended the $50 a month deposit. We might say here that we do pay an interest. Save 50 cents a week on the deposit and it's 50 cents at the end of the year and this year and the next year and this year give me the $50 kitty but that, too, can be hard.

We frankly admitted that he didn't do so well during the past few years, "Kido lamented. Who thought a $50 savings in 12 long months?

"We assured Frank Omatsu one morning that we were paid up this week. Now that... have a 30-day jump on the Christmas savings magazine." Frank didn't even turn around?

Although WFC were unable to attend the 10th anniversary celebration, it was a wonderful affair. Kido, in charge of program.

Located at Raider Ave. and King St., the store is still unknown to many people. However, the store will be opened by Bob Teran, well known here as a tavern owner.

The way things stack up, the store will be a credit to Seattle's growing list of superior restaurants, and will fill a great need for a sushi-wise showcase that really puts the Japanese culture and the sushi dishes in good food but limited in seating capacity.

IN ADDITION to the congressional resolution which were commented on in last week's Newsletter, there are a number of other senatorial campaigns that are of considerable interest to Americans of Japanese ancestry in this country.

Among those contests which will be climaxned by the November 17th elections are those for the Senate in New York, Virginia, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, and Washington.

In addition, the Democratic gubernatorial contests in South Carolina, Illinois, and California are expected to be closely watched by JACLers, as they are the races in which the JACL has been most active.
