WASHINGTON — A group of Japanese American Citizens League leaders urged today that the civil rights legislation passed the House be revised and strengthened.

"The enactment of a comprehensive civil rights bill," they said, "is the major legislative goal for this year." visit his home anytime that weekend. The convention came to a close with a show in the Opera House. We were certainly pleased to congratulate Dr. Kashiwabara, the next president of the JACL, and all those who attended the convention. A huge United Airline taxied into the unloading zone,

It Happened in Poplarville

LYNCH LAW RETURNED to Mississippi last week when a Virginia-born Negro was lynched in Poplarville, D.C., by a mob that included a former minister. The victim, 26-year-old Robert J. Woodard, was described as a "manly Negro" by those who knew him.

What happened at Poplarville happened because too few people have decided that they wished to eliminate a growing force of lawlessness that erupted into the lynching of a young Negro citizen.

We Americans—of all colors—ought to know the meaning of "equal protection of the laws," for all too vividly we can recall our days of fear, of bullets in the night, of harassment and threats. We must remember that it took only a few individuals to break the wall of Japanese ancestry in the days following the outbreak of World War II. Those few were too few, but through their persistence and determination, they made history.

The lynching of Robert J. Woodard, a 26-year-old Negro, has come to symbolize the growing forces of lawlessness that erupted into the lynching of a young Negro citizen.

The resolution itself reads:

WHEREAS, the freedmen's hope and dream of equality remain unfulfilled, and the Negro, as a citizen of the United States, is denied basic rights in the South;

NOW, THEREFORE, we, the people of the United States, do ordain and establish this Act to make certain that never again will the sale of Negroes be the custom or the practice of any man, and that the Congress shall have the power to enforce this Act by appropriate legislation.

Dependence on racial bloc voting in Hawaii unrealistic—Tskiyama

MOULAIRO—Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., in an interview last week, said that it was impossible to gauge the effect of the racial bloc vote in Hawaii, if any.

"It would be difficult to say that the votes of the Japanese Americans are not decisive," Mondale said. "But it's difficult to say that they are decisive.

Mondale said that in the past, the Japanese American bloc vote was decisive, but that in the future the elected representatives of Hawaii would continue to work with the South's representatives for the greater America and a peaceful world.

The legislative act is entitled "The Right to Equal Protection and Opportunity in the United States," and it is fitting and proper that the appreciation and gratitude of the people of Hawaii and all Americans be made known to those individuals who have stood up for the cause of civil rights.

WHEREAS, Mike Masaoka, of California, a former member of the 42nd Regimental Combat Team of the United States Army and a former legislator of the American Citizens League. In the words of the San Francisco Examiner, "he represented the highest public and private interest.

The resolution reads:

WHEREAS, the resolution confirms our hope and dream of equality and equal protection for all Americans, and the national interest should the resolution be passed.

NOW, THEREFORE, we, the people of the United States, do ordain and establish this Act to make certain that never again will the sale of Negroes be the custom or the practice of any man, and that the Congress shall have the power to enforce this Act by appropriate legislation.

The resolution also states:

WHEREAS, the freedmen's hope and dream of equality remain unfulfilled, and the Negro, as a citizen of the United States, is denied basic rights in the South;

NOW, THEREFORE, we, the people of the United States, do ordain and establish this Act to make certain that never again will the sale of Negroes be the custom or the practice of any man, and that the Congress shall have the power to enforce this Act by appropriate legislation.

The resolution is now pending before the Senate. The bill is now pending in the Senate.

The children were not present at the time of the lynching, and a young gypsy dancer, Genie Yamauchi, was killed in the attack. Her husband, who was ill at the time, was not present when the rest of his family was killed.
