Japan ambassador to U.S. to speak at EDC-MDC parley

NEW YORK - Koichiro Asakai, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, will be one of the principal speakers at the EDC-MDC JACL Convention, scheduled for the Sheraton Hotel here Monday afternoon. The Japanese ambassador is expected to address the convention on "The Administration and the Chancellor of the University of California." The convention is sponsored by the Japanese Student Association of America, which has a membership of 10,000 students from 100 American colleges and universities.

Mr. Asakai is expected to discuss the problems of higher education in Japan and the role of the Japanese government in the development of the country. He will also speak on the relationship between Japan and the United States, and the importance of cultural exchange in promoting peace and understanding.

"The new Japanese Ambassador to the United States, Mr. Asakai, will be one of the principal speakers at the EDC-MDC JACL Convention," said JACL President John Flatley. "We are looking forward to his address on the role of the Japanese government in the development of the country and the relationship between Japan and the United States."

The JACL, which represents Japanese Americans, has a long history of supporting returning private property to Japanese Americans who lost their property during the internment during World War II. The JACL has worked to ensure that Japanese Americans have a voice in the political process and that their rights are protected.

A brief but profoundly significant ceremonial was held last Wednesday at the office of the Attorney General of the United States in the presence of U.S. Attorney General, Mr. J. Edgar Hoover. It marked the end of a long series of measures taken to restore citizenship to the Japanese American citizens who were forcibly sent to detention centers during World War II. During the dark days of the war, some 12,000 Japanese American citizens were taken to a detention camp at Tule Lake in California or to camps in other states. The measure was not enforced against Japanese Americans of American ancestry, and many were deserted regarding its effect upon the status of the U.S. Constitution.

As a result, Mike Masaoka and other well-known leaders of the Japanese American community worked hard in Congress through the Congress of Racial Equality and other organizations to have these people's citizenship restored. The measure was not enforced against Japanese Americans of American ancestry who were forcibly sent to detention camps, and many, including some in the military, were satisfied with the measure.

NISEI AND THE MARAUDERS — Fifteen years and a Korean War later, a famed fighting outfit that wore a legend in the jungles of North Burma; it is itself a subject of a major literary effort. It was written by Charles L. M. Merrill, formerly a Navy officer with the unit, "The Marauders" brings to the reader an intimate glimpse of American volunteer troops engaged in desperate encounters with the enemy and the experiences through 800 miles of impenetrable and impossible terrain.

In a little known war in an all but forgotten theater, the Marauders were the first American ground combat troops to fight on the Asiatic continent in World War II. Merrill's Marauders carried out one of the most celebrated short actions in American military history, infiltrating behind enemy lines, raiding and destroying troop concentrations, supplies and communications.

Of interest to Japanese Americans was the presence of 14 Nisei individuals, who were among the 3,000 volunteers for this "hazardous and dangerous" mission. It was perhaps the absence of an uniform policy that permitted such participation. The Nisei volunteered to fight as a full-fledged and possibly created in a haphazard fashion by the Chinese-Burma-India Theater command. The unit was under the command of the 58th General Hospital. The Nisei were considered to be of greater value in the medical services than in combat under the conditions of the war.

The Marauders were composed of the 320th Regiment. By December 13, 1943, the Marauders had landed near Akyab and entered into combat against the enemy. By January 23, 1944, the troops were in the vicinity of Shwegyin, which was captured the following day. The Marauders had advanced over 150 miles. By March 30, 1944, the Marauders had crossed the Chindwin River and had advanced for 160 miles. By May 1, 1944, the Marauders had crossed the Irrawaddy River and had advanced for 200 miles. By June 25, 1944, the Marauders had crossed the Salween River and had advanced for 300 miles. By July 22, 1944, the Marauders had crossed the Chindwin River and had advanced for 400 miles. By August 22, 1944, the Marauders had crossed the Irrawaddy River and had advanced for 500 miles. By September 22, 1944, the Marauders had crossed the Salween River and had advanced for 600 miles. By October 22, 1944, the Marauders had crossed the Chindwin River and had advanced for 700 miles. By November 22, 1944, the Marauders had crossed the Irrawaddy River and had advanced for 800 miles. By December 22, 1944, the Marauders had crossed the Salween River and had advanced for 900 miles. By January 22, 1945, the Marauders had crossed the Chindwin River and had advanced for 1,000 miles.

San Francisco:

On the Street Where I Live—A Nisei dentist and his wife locked over a horse for purchase in a Bay Area community where they observed this phenomenon with the owner and found he was indeed willing to sell in an Oriental, face-to-face manner. Many inquiries were made by telephone. A bombing threat convinced the Nisei they should look elsewhere. A local group of several, goodwill and an adjacent community are highly disturbed.

While there are those who insist upon seeing their neighbor's interests, "isolated" by fears and misgivings, dedicated to the democratic way and are expressing themselves through organized bodies, a number in the Bay Area have been formed in Marin, Contra Costa, Solano, Sacramento, and Santa Clara counties, and in Berkeley and Hayward. The San Francisco Council for Civic Unity has initiated a program of community building, with the support of three groups comprising the housing subcommittee of the Bay Area Human Relations Clearing House, of which JACL is an active member. A two day conference has been planned in San Francisco in September on ways and means of encouraging integration in housing. State Attorney General Mock will head the panel of the newly elected public officials who will be discussed.

We have been in touch with JACL's concern. The Northern California-Nebraska District Council has gone on record to establish a DC Housing Committee under the suggestion of San Mateo President Hiroshi Ishii, who assisted in the recent Yoshinaka issue. The function of this committee and its membership makeup will be designated at the August meeting. An important aspect will be related members of the Committee to the local community units looking toward housing equal opportunity for all minorities.

NC-WNC—At the coming meeting the NC-WNC chapters will be eligible for the right to elect an NC-WNC member to the Board of Directors. Several minority members have been elected president and vice president of these chapters. The Nisei writer, Mrs. Hiroshi Ishii, will be the president of the Nissai People's Club, a new club organized by the Cable News Clearing House. The lighter side will be the annual DC golf tournament, the selection and coronation of the 19th National Convention Queen, and the 20th anniversary celebration.

Midwest DC Chairman Kenji Nogaki has indicated that the DC chapter will be an active host to considering JACL's immediate future program at the Labor Day weekend and in the fall with the San Francisco Joint Convention. The Midwest DC has again been appointed the executive secretary for the 1961 National Convention. The Community Relations Committee is looking forward to the annual DC golf tournament, the selection and coronation of the 16th National Convention Queen, and the 20th anniversary celebration.

OC—At the coming meeting the OC chapter has elected an NC-WNC chapter Nisei writer, Mrs. Hiroshi Ishii, to the NC-WNC Board of Directors. The club is looking forward to the annual DC golf tournament, the selection and coronation of the 16th National Convention Queen, and the 20th anniversary celebration.

ND—At the coming meeting the ND chapter has elected an NC-WNC chapter Nisei writer, Mrs. Hiroshi Ishii, to the NC-WNC Board of Directors. The club is looking forward to the annual DC golf tournament, the selection and coronation of the 16th National Convention Queen, and the 20th anniversary celebration.

VA—At the coming meeting the VA chapter has elected an NC-WNC chapter Nisei writer, Mrs. Hiroshi Ishii, to the NC-WNC Board of Directors. The club is looking forward to the annual DC golf tournament, the selection and coronation of the 16th National Convention Queen, and the 20th anniversary celebration.

With the arrangements for the August meeting in the good hands of the Montery chapter, with DC Chairman Jerry Enoo as host, the members have been watching the 80-100 people expected to attend. The lighter side will be the annual DC golf tournament, the selection and coronation of the 16th National Convention Queen, and the 20th anniversary celebration.

The following members of the Executive Board with their over-all responsibilities, there should be a mad scramble for positions on the Board of Directors. The chapters may want to make up a list of those persons who are running for the Board, the qualifications of the candidate, and their qualifications for the position they are seeking. The board members automatically committed to at least eight Sundays of the year for DC meetings to be held.

BY THE BOARD—(Continued from Front Page) will possibly prove the greatest obstacle. The oft observed observation that JACL has outlived its usefulness may be threatened by an attitude reflected. It is unrealistic to believe that JACL in its short history has accomplished so much that only the occasional member who has not noticed the need for it can be reached in time to be included another time. This is of course the course that JACL's chart for the future, we hope that it will be looking forward-looking and imaginative.
