WADES, JACLT
Driver
In where we sit—amidst the daily mountain of Colorado, isolated from the main body of events—we survey the JACLT situation. It is not that sad eyes... we, in the Mountain-Plains region, are only a few hours away from either where, suddenly, Japanese issues involving tremendous and the best talents of daily occur—yet, to us, it is comfortably by a thousand it seems only a lot of nothing, but little... and touch not at all... in critical self-analysis recognize our own up-hill climb and small triumphs as more the insignificant auto-bugs—those slaying dragons on either the East or West.

How can we best pool our common solutions, so we won't stumble over the same obstacles in the left-hand road when we must travel too?

The obvious answer is that we must pool our talents and develop JACLT programs, modified to best fit our local needs.

NATS JACLT ORGANIZATION
Long-time JACLTers, loyal and faithful—even today, where there is no great crusade for rights of AJAs—continue to join local efforts, to meekly pay their dues, and to give at least lip-service to national JACLT projects—almost as a matter of habit—and then go off on their individual lives to find out the serious business of living and supporting their families.

Paradoxically, the Japan-Japanese community frequently gives JACLT far more credit, as a militant, cohesive, effective organization, than articulate spokesmen and a spirit of dedication—those we do not have as AJAs.

The other evening, we sat around with Riki Hasegawa, the Denver Post and with Tak Takashi, talking to a small group of Samuels, discussing the JACLT.

Bill Hasegawa is a most knowledgeable AJA whose perspective and background in national and international in scope.

Paradoxically, the Japan-Japanese community frequently gives JACLT far more credit, as a militant, cohesive, effective organization, than articulate spokesmen and a spirit of dedication—those we do not have as AJAs.

We got to discussing the History of the Japanese in America... and we concluded that it is not a "make-work" project for the JACLT.

Washington Newsletter: Seattle JACLT National Convention

By Mike M. Masaga

Washington, D.C.
The forthcoming 17th National JACLT Convention will be held in Seattle July 26-30.

That the outstanding membership, enjoyable, and worthwhile more than assured by the participation and detailed planning of Chairman James Matsuzaka and his Convention Board.

The unanimous assessment of National President Frank Chazotte, National Director Masaga, and Washington Representative Mike Matsuzaka—all of whom met last weekend in Seattle and discussed the final details of the national convention which will be held in conjunction with the first post-war World's Fair to be held in the city.

Under the inspired leadership of businessman Matsuzaka, the dedicated and energetic members of the Convention Board have prepared a national convention worthy of the occasion.

The years after the enactment of the Immigration and Nationality Act and a decade after the coming of the Japanese Peace Treaty, more than a thousand JACLTers from all over the United States are expected to convene in Seattle.

The plans are ready to be announced at the greatest convention in JACLT history.

JACLTers are taking for granted the excellent dinner last Friday at the Four Seasons Restaurant in tribute to the California Youth Authority member.

Recently appointed by Governor Brown, the 33-year-old son of the youth of the Western Admitted to the Society, Methodist Church, Judge Melvin I. Cronin of Seattle is taking along with the master-city youth worker to appear before him.

Dr. Oso, San Francisco JACLT president, representing all the sponsoring groups for the dinner, was the guest of honor.

Portland—David Onagaki, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Wanda Onagaki of the Society, Methodist Church, represented the Portland JACLT chapter at the PNWC regional contest last Sunday.

Ohio Judge halts adoption because wife is Japanese

CLEVELAND—The adoption of a little girl by a Cleveland man and his Japanese wife has been disapproved by Probate Judge Louis S. Frost.

The couple, Mori H. Baker, 38, and his wife, Yoshiko, 36, of 3638 West Blvd., are appealing his decision. Their attorney is Ben Lecky.

His ruling was based on the grounds that mixing of races is unwise in adoption.

The girl was born a mother of English descent and a Puerto Rican father who surrendered her to the adoption agency. She lived in a foster home for a year until children's services arranged for the Bakers to adopt her.

The Bakers met while he was in the Army in Japan. They have been married 12 years and are childless. The wife is an American citizen. Baker is a machinist.

In explaining his ruling Judge Frost said he was not sure if the wife was of pure Japanese blood and if he intended to have only one, he would have to wait until he was sure.

Reaction against judge's ruling quick, may deplore bigotry sensed in opinion
BY THOMAS BRYAN (Special to Pacific Citizen)

The above story broke in the early Thursday, May 10. By evening, the reaction was so strong that the judge's opinion was being deplored.

Commentary, leading news commentator in Cleveland, said he is 15 minutes TV time to denounce the judge's opinion.

The NAACP talked about starting a drive to get the judge's opinion changed. The National Association of Social Workers issued a strong statement deploring the judge's decision.

By Saturday, both Cleveland newspapers had editorialized against the judge's decision.

There should be mixed. As the girl becomes older, he said, it could be hard on her to have a mother of a different race.

"I don't think our community is ready for this," the judge said. "Maybe it will be in 20 years but not yet. The incident of the Korean family trying to adopt a girl in Bay Village is an example of the trouble that may arise."

William D. Schmidt, director of Children's Services, said, "Our responsibility is to do the best we possibly can to find a home for a child. When we suggest a couple with the capacity and desire to adopt her, we believe this is better than having her grow up in a foster home."

Bakers Perplexed
Baker said he did not understand the judge's ruling because the girl already is of a racial mixture.

"We associate with both Caucasians and Oriental races and all children, whatever their race, love me," he said.

"If we had a child of our own, he might have looked like me. My wife and I have had friends of both of us. Some of our relatives have thought that Judge Frost was wrong."

Human Relations Commission Asks for State Investigation
LOS ANGELES—Investigation by the state attorney general of "hate propaganda" in this area was urged by the County Commission of Human Relations last week.

The commission said that the Human Relations Commission of the County of Los Angeles should investigate the activities of such "hate propaganda" and the extent to which it has been disseminated within the framework of federal and state constitutions.

Judge Frost suggested that perhaps Children's Services could permit the couple to be foster parents while retaining legal custody, so that the girl may be removed later, if necessary. The couple could make her their heir and otherwise treat her as their own child, he said.

From the Frying Pan

Denver, Colo.

PERSON TO PERSON—At the airport in Denver this week the governor of the state of Colorado warmly embraced the governor of Japan's Kanagawa prefecture. There was genuine affection in the canon, born of mutual respect and admiration developed during the tour of Japan last month by a group of American governors.

Now, six Japanese governors were in the United States to return the goodwill visit. Colorado's governor is Steve McNichols, Democrat. Kanagawa's elected chief executive is 71-year-old Iwato Uchiyama, an urbane, articulate (in English and Spanish as well as Japanese), charming and lively old gentleman.

Later, McNichols was moved to call Governor Uchiyama "one of the great men of Japan." Recalling his two-week tour, McNichols referred to the Japanese as "ingenious, industrious, friendly" people. The governor was addressing a gathering of perhaps 150 leading Denver citizens at a luncheon held at his mansion in honor of the Japanese visitors. A more friendly, warm, hands-across-the-sea speech couldn't have been delivered by an ambassador.

McNichols' new-found interest in Japan is largely the result of his visit to Japan and the opportunity to talk with, visit, work and relax with a people with whom he has had little previous contact.

The jet age makes this sort of person-to-person relationship more easily possible these days. There's a need for more of it, on the private citizen as well as official level.

SOMETHING TO PONDER—Over the years it has become increasingly noticeable that those of Japanese descent in the United States are more interested in their Japanese visitors than vice versa. Perhaps this is a purely personal observation. Yet it seems that the stream of guests from Japan—politicians, editors, reporters, radio and television broadcasters, businessmen—who have dropped in for a chat are primarily concerned with their particular professional interests. They want to know what their counterparts in the United States are doing, and why.

After they get that out of the way, they are interested incidentally, and only incidentally, in the Japanese Americans. It seems they consider the Issei as expatriates, and the Nisei as foreigners with Japanese faces, and mutual racial origins means little.

Their main interest in the "Japanese" in America seems to be in the restaurants where they can get rice, pickles and fish dishes prepared in the old country manner. In other words their concern is gustatorial rather than sociological, ethnic, historical or whatever.

This is something to ponder, especially in view of the lengths to which many local Issei and Nisei put themselves out to entertain an apparently endless flow of visitors from Japan.

COUP—The week must not be allowed to slip by without taking note of the JACL-UCLA agreement to co-sponsor the writing of the history of the Japanese in America. The project is a monumental task, something that is bound to grow in scope as it progresses. Getting an institution of the stature of the University of California at Los Angeles into the act as an equal partner is assurance that the job will be completed, and done thoroughly and well.

Granted that the project is a worthy one, it took a certain amount of persuasion to get UCLA interested in it. Such steps are not taken lightly by a university. Credit for this belongs to two men, Ralph Merritt, a former University of California official and former project director of the Manzanar WRA camp, and Frank Chuman, JACL president.

There are many others who laid the groundwork that helped convince UCLA the project was sound. Scott Miyakawa, who worked up an impressively comprehensive first draft outline, for instance. Kim Toyokuni who set about to raise money while the project was still an idea. Shige Wakamatsu who as chairman coordinated everyone's efforts. They all deserve a hearty well done.

Now, the real work begins.

JACL aids in writing FEPC pamphlet for minority youths

SAN FRANCISCO—Pamphlets designed to encourage minority group youngsters will be distributed soon in California, the Fair Employment Practices Commission said here recently.

The pamphlet, "Success Story," will be given free to youth groups, school counselors, and civil rights organizations.

It was developed with the aid of the United League, the JACL and the Council of Mexican-American Affairs.

The pamphlet contains 20 pictures illustrating the success that members of minority groups have attained in a wide variety of fields and professional jobs in California.

Showing the success of others in similar circumstances can stimulate children in minority groups. The pamphlet was told by the information officer, Fred Gansky, of the FEPC, San Francisco.

The commission also was told that all school districts in the state will soon be sent letters reminding them that the law forbids discrimination in the hiring of teachers.

Among other things, the letters will point out that requests for teachers to submit pictures of themselves with job applications are a discriminatory practice, said Edward W. Howden, chief of the state division of fair employment practices.

The incorporators of Merit Savings and Loan Association were George Akashi, George Maruya, Joe Lee, Prelli, Kyo Maruyama, George Kambara, Walter Nagata, and Joseph Li. Tsuba Wakabayashi acted as the adviser and consultant in the application of Merit Savings and Loan.

Over 2,000 join in Apalo celebration

SAN FRANCISCO—More than 2,000 people attended a gala party last week at the Palomar Hotel to celebrate the fourth anniversary of Apalo, Inc., real estate developer.

According to the hotel, 1,800 guests, mostly of Japanese descent, were served dinner. This was one of the largest all-day banquets in the history of the hotel. Another 800 persons arrived at the hotel for the dinner for dancing and entertainment.

Tadashi Nakamura, president of Apalo, Inc., in welcoming the mammoth throng, said the celebration was the firm's way of thanking the hundreds of California residents for their faith and support which enabled them to be the success that they are today.

Thomas S. Nakano, speaker, traced the growth of the Nakamura Realty Company and its affiliated companies from their inception in Mr. Nakamura's home to the state of affairs it holds in real estate development today.

Nakamura noted that approximately 12 per cent of the apartment houses erected last year in the Berkeley area alone were directed by Apalo, Inc.

Harris Ishihara, master of ceremonies, introduced the guests at the speaker's table to the following:

The Rev. and Mrs. Frank Yamaoka, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cross, of El Cerrito, and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cross, of El Cerrito, managing secretary of Japanese American Community Center, Mr. and Mrs. Tatsu Kanno, v.p. Bank of California.
