Thousands of patriotic Americans across the country last week proclaimed the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Just as patriotic were the thousands of other Americans-during the same week-organizing freedom marches, sit-ins, pickets to proclaim their protest against racial discrimination.

President Kennedy proclaimed this year's Fourth of July motto or slogan as "Make Freedom Really Ring" and and cities and towns across the nation conducted bell-ringing ceremonies that lasted a four-minute period beginning at

The echo of one bell-the Liberty Bell which proclaimed the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776has a hollow, warped ring in the light of our present situation in the area of civil rights. Instead of serving as a reminder, to friend or foe alike, that freedom is the essence of the American way of life, the echo of the Liberty Bell today is telling the world of the appalling dearth of freedom for millions of Americans of darker skin in voting, in employment, in housing, in education, in public accommodation and in the administration of justice.

Until our legislatures-federal, state and local-consider this issue as the most critical and urgent domestic problem in the United States, and until such discrimination is eliminated, our words about Equality and Freedom for all our citizens will have a hollow and hypocritical sound to the people of the world.

We are told that the Civil War was fought to free the Negroes, but this seems to remain as "unfinished business." Unless we recognize that this is a moral issue and acknowledge it within our individual heart and conscience, the problem will continue to remain as "unfinished business."

I urge every JACLer to consider this issue as a personal and individual matter. Do some personal soul-searching. President Kennedy has called the civil rights problem a moral problem that needs the support of the entire nation as well as positive congressional action. The National JACL Board is studying the President's civil rights program and is planning ways and means not only of implementing the program but reviewing our position in the light of recent developments.

I wish to point out to those who seem to think that our National Organization has no national policy on civil rights of the success we have had in one area of civil rights in abolishing the laws against interracial marriage in several States since the 1962 National Convention, when a clear-cut statement as to JACL's stand on civil rights was issued.

There is no need to repeat that JACL position here, since it appeared in the Washington Newsletter by Mike Masaoka in the June 28 PC. But I wish to state clearly and loudly that our National JACL has had, and does have now, a comprehensive and unequivocal policy on Civil Rights.

In "making Freedom really ring," we can rededicate our thoughts and actions in the true spirit of brotherhood and try to live up to our Japanese American Creed.

THE 1963 CALL OF PATRIOTISM

Surely, the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence realized that patriotism in their time called for heavier demands of their lives, fortunes and sacred honor than at others. They had much to lose had the Cause been lost, most of them being successful lawyers, businessmen or farmers. Four of them were physicians.

Today, with super-patriots abounding, it is hard to know what patriotism asks. At least to the Nisei in time of WW2 when the crisis was most acute, the call was clear: to prove our loyalty and love of country, despite the super-patriots of that era who claimed "once a Jap, always a Jap'

However, events in recent weeks shout out the answerfor today. Racial turmoil, both North and South, forcefully calls for an urgent patriotic need within ourselves: to eliminate whatever bigotry, superiority complexes or suspicions that may be concealed in our own souls, and thus make all Americans truly independent.

Unlike the battles in Italy and France where only Nisei in uniform with the 442nd Combat Team participated in the call of patriotism, today's struggle asks for no skill in arms -just a "Go for Broke" spirit. Each has a task, even if it varies from place to place. We can repeat what Fred Hirasuna of Fresno suggested in the June 28 PC:

There are many other ways to help the Negro in his the teaching of one's own children to judge struggie people as individuals, by their worth and not their color or . Talking quietly to individuals who are quick to creed condemn the Negroes as a group."

And professional men can exert leadership. Teachers can say the appropriate word at the appropriate time. Doctors can demonstrate their interracial principles. Lawyers can take on civil rights cases. All can write to their senators and congressmen.

Whatever is done and whatever it costs, the risks are small compared to those brave men who signed the Declaration of Independence or those who faced the bullets and shells on the firing lines. By so doing, those noble words-"Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness"-can become a reality for all men, regardless of race, color or creed.

the second second second MORE IRONS IN THE CIVIL RIGHTS FIRE

Other ethnic groups and individuals were expressing themselves on the Negro civil rights issue with individualistic flair this past week.

Both national wire services carried Howard Imazeki's straight-from-the-shoulder editorial appearing in the June 29 Hokubei Mainichi across the country. It also was reprinted July 4 in the San Francisco Examiner editorial page.

Imazeki's frank piece called upon San Francisco Negro leaders to "do a little soul-searching" of their own and "make a concentrated effort sincerely to better themselves"

Local headlines tagged it as "Nisei advice" and we can hardly wait for Negro press comment this week.

It is evident that the Negro needs to develop better press besides sports and entertainment. So much of what we read on the other pages of the dailies about the Negro is unflattering or stereotyped. We know there are Negroessincerely trying to better the lot of their own, though it seldom reaches the public eye. There was a Negro weekly which tried vainly to clean up prostitution and dope-peddling in Southwest L.A., when the dailies ignored the condition. (And that paper went bankrupt).

Something good and dignifying about the Negro in the press everyday, especially of those who are trying to elevate their own, may be a step in the right direction to show it has been "soul-searching"

Recent developments in the Negro's struggle for civil rights has provoked the conscience of Mexican American leaders as well. They are meeting tomorrow with the L.A. County Commission on Human Relations, of which Frank Chuman is the chairman.

Across town in Anaheim, the League of United Latin American Citizens held its national convention last week with 500 delegates from 17 states present. It called for "vigorous militancy" to improve their lot. "Let's face it." one spokesman declared, "a lot of it has been our fault. We've been too timid to rock the boat. Let's rock the boat the American way" (Almost sounds like regional director Isaac Matsushige speaking.)

The Spamsh-speaking Americans are not alone in taking a good and profound look as a group. As stated in Pat Okura's column this week, JACL is preparing what we hope shall be a simple statement reaffirming our concern in the current civil rights struggle that individual members and chapters can stand and implement with firm understanding.

Before the summer is over, other ethnic groups can be expected to state their case on this great American challenge. This is the time we feel all America will listen to sympathetically, the Deep South included tince it may affect their pocket book.

UNDER THE SIGN OF THE DOLLAR - Only a handful of Issei ever became wealthy. Perhaps it is a wonder that any Issei amassed fortunes, for they were aliens in a strange and hostile land. Few were trained in the intricacies of finance. They faced language handicaps and restrictive laws aimed specifically at them. And so the majority of them worked out their lives trying to make ends meet while feeding, clothing and educating their children. Not many ever got past the point where they no longer had to work for money, where they could put money to work for them

The Issei came to seek their fortunes in this citadel of capitalism, but not many ever understood it. Most toiled with sweat and muscle for every dollar they ever earned, and only a notable few made the shrewd investments through native wisdom, courage or just plain luck - that lifted them out of the working class. Not that many didn't try. But many, oh so many, through naivete and lack of education and experience, fell victim to bunco schemes and just plain impractical ideas in which their hard-earned money disappeared.

The Niser have been somewhat more fortunate. They came into economic maturity in a time of inflationary prosperity and racial acceptance. And so it is not surprising that many of them - not nearly all, of course - are both living well and-making their money work for them.

What brings this to mind is the opening here on July 1, in a still unfinished building, of the Gibraltar Savings & Loan Association, brainchild of Taul Watanabe of Los Angeles who is cutting an impressive swath in S&L circles. But if it was Watanabe who planted the seed for Gibraltar some 27 months ago, it was a group of local Nisei and some of their non-Nisci associates who made the institution a reality.

ETHNIC MINORITIES - The first meeting of Gibraltar's stockholders was held in Denver's leading hotel a few nights ago and it was an emotion-charged gathering. Kody Kodama, a produce broker opened the session as chairman of the board. Dr. Morris Kaplan, physician, presided as president. Other officers are Gordon Slatkin, secretary, and Sam Kumagai, treasurer. In addition to these four, members of the board are Dr. Selsuo Ito, dentist; Frank Torizawa, fish broker; and Dr. Charles Fujisaki, physician.

As is evident from the above names, Nisei dominate the board which also includes two men of Jewish extraction. But among the some 155 stockholders are Negroes, persons of Italian descent, and a substantial number of just plain Anglo-Saxon types.

So stringent are Colorado's requirements that Gibraltar is the first savings and loan association to be granted a state charter since 1958, this during a period of unprecedented growth in the Denver area. The meeting was emotional in the sense that a feeling of fulfillment and triumph over enormous odds was evident, and Watanabe added to it with one of his rousing pep talks. It was an impressive occasion.

A SENSE OF CONFIDENCE - The launching of Gibraltar marks the founding of the first predominantly Nisei financial institution in the Denver area. That they have the capital to make it a reality is an interesting commentary on their economic progress.

But more significant than that is the fact that Nisei financial leadership has the backing of a wide cross-section of the community, and the promise of even wider support. And this is something to make note of in this community which, until World War II, had only a tiny handful of Issei and Nisei.
