INALIENABLE RIGHT — In 1879 the people of the State of California adopted its Constitution. Article I, section 1 of this Constitution states that all men are by nature free and independent, and have certain inalienable rights among which is that of acquiring and possessing property.

The above important fact alone should be enough reason to make Prop. 14 unconstitutional. As you can see, at the very start this measure is incorrect. Our State has always been in the forefront in the improving of race relations. If Prop. 14 is not defeated, California will find itself going backward while the rest of the Nation is progressing making good progress in this field.

We in Northern California, are well into the campaign to defeat this constitutional amendment. I am very gratified to see how our chapters have responded to actively support this worthy cause.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to the following members who have been instrumental in getting our groups mobilized: Tad Masaoka, District Committee chairman; Bill Matsumoto, Northern Area supervisor; George Matsukoshi, San Joaquin Area supervisor; Joe Yasaki, East Bay supervisor; John Enomoto, West Bay supervisor; and Grant Shimizu, Coast County Area supervisor. Of course Jerry Emoto, our Statewide chairman, Mas Satow and Jack Mayeda have given us excellent leadership and guidance.

By citing the above individuals, I do not want to imply that the fight is over. To our friend, Mr. Jones, once said, "We have just begun to fight."

I would like all JACLers in California to give us your utmost support. By support, I mean financially, too. Availability of funds is the key to carrying out a successful campaign. Please send any contributions to our National Headquarters. This Segregation Amendment must be defeated.

1968 CONVENTION SITE — At this point I would like to discuss one other subject that might be of general interest. At the recent National Convention, you may recall this writer submitted a bid on behalf of our District to host the 1968 National Convention.

Well, after returning to my District, I was disappointed to find that none of our 25 chapters seemed to be very enthusiastic about this opportunity. You can see I have my work cut out for me for the next few months. I am confident, though, that several chapters are very qualified to undertake this project and that I will not have to "use face" to get it done.

Plans are to have the following chapters give serious consideration to this matter: San Jose, one of our East Bay groups, or Reno. Reno may be a nice site, but I will make one prediction now. The attendance at the Council meetings will drop. Do you want to put up a bet?

Tally-Ho Tour

SEATTLE—As the days are becoming longer and warmer, the northwest end of the country is warming up. The impressive Seattle skyline, no longer a huddle of snow-covered buildings, comes into view. The realization that it has been a hectic day faded. The old timer just seems to never tire.

There are several things that are a yearly "must". The JACL picnics, Nest veterans voting and picnics, and this year was no exception. The annual meeting of the Japanese residence and the October JACL metropolitan outdoor affair. To our regret, we missed them all.

Nor did we go along on the trip to Victoria, capital city of British Columbia, Canada. We were invited to the event of the fourth day of the Nest Vets reunion. But coming up to this one last Sunday and found out at a delightful dinner party all the details. It must be noted that in all these years we had never experienced the thrill of swimming some of the old world wonders of the sea. Victoria is a city of Victorian houses, tall trees, and the peace and serenity of old world signs and sounds and voices. All the same city.

At Victoria, the compact arrangement of the historic center impresses the visitor. The season's blossoming of the famous pink peonies, the great magnificence of the Empress Hotel, almost crowding the water edge despite any impression of the solitude and spaciousness of the building, lured us up in the park-like waterfront area, make the city a favorite for Americans seeking a change of pace.

Democratic Convention

WASHINGTON—Through the One-year-round national tour, the JACL, when a week's rest at the Democratic National Convention, to try to complete its "most" legislative program as quickly as possible and concerned that Atlantic City could be a week earlier, when, among other matters, President Lyndon B. Johnson and Vice-President Hubert Humphrey were nominated for the presidency and the vice presidency, respectively, of the United States.

Because of the widespread newspaper, radio and television coverage given the Convention, there is little need to recapitulate the proceedings since most readers were present, heard, and learned about the whole story.

At the same time, however, we wish to make the point that, as with watching a football game over TV, or a political speech over radio, it is the words in the news section, rather than personal attendance in that huge auditorium, that actually tell the "feeling" of the whole story.

Moreover, because of the rugged competition between the three major network and because there was relatively little excitement in the news section, the public was given two evening sessions, television devoted so much time and attention to the musical controversy over the Loyalty oaths and the seating of Senator George Smathers of Florida, that we believe most viewers received a distorted picture of what actually took place.

The most important single item in terms of the Democratic Party, was the nomination of Senator George Smathers of Florida as the vice presidency, but reporters that he thought Senator George Smathers was the definite candidate for the vice presidency at about the same time, he was nominated for what has become known as the Walter-McCarran Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 that extended and strengthened the existing laws concerning the admission of Japanese ancestry. As Senate Democratic Leader, he was responsible in great measure for the introduction of the bill, and for his strong opposition to those of the Senate.

At the same time, after Senator Humphrey had been nominated as Vice-President, he withdrew as a candidate for the vice presidency, but reported that he thought Senator George Smathers was the definite candidate for the vice presidency at about the same time.

Although he is completing only his first two years of his first six term, Senator George Smathers is considered one of the most outstanding senators in the Senate. He is known as the "father of the Civil Rights Act" and as a good friend of the President.

At the same time, he was the chairman of the President's Committee for Equal Employment Opportunity and as a member of the Senate Select Committee on Small Business, as well as executive action, not to mention major liberalizations in the immigration law.

Even since he was a Senator Majority Leader, George Smathers has been close to JACL and Americans of Japanese ancestry. As one of the leading leaders in the Senate, he has worked for more legislation to help Japanese Americans, Majority Leader, among others, and though he enjoys little popularity with the leadership popularity with the Japanese, he is an outstanding person for his high responsibility. That he should be even considered for such a high post speaks well of his record.

From the standpoint of past associations with those of Japanese ancestry, and their record of being living in the Golden State was represented, including two Nisei—Tad Masaoka of Los Angeles and Kuni Fuji of Hayward.

While Senator Hubert P. Humphrey was nominated for the presidency as a favorite son of Hawaii at the GOP Convention six weeks ago, Senator George Smathers, also of Hawaii, played a prominent role in the Democratic Party's proceedings in Atlantic City last week. He not only was honored as a senatorial favorite son of Hawaii, but was nominated for the vice presidency by the delegation from the Western Mountain of northeastern France, an action that caused all veterans of the 44th to be named Honorary Presidents.

While the JACL has been interested since the end of World War II, both as a member of the House of Representatives and of the Senate, in giving maximum support to the pledge of allegiance to the flag at the opening ceremonies on Monday evening.

At a press conference, Senator George Smathers, who withdrew as a candidate for the vice presidency, told reporters that he thought Senator George Smathers was the definite candidate for the vice presidency at about the same time.

politicians, and the Aborigines themselves as a vehicle for sharing votes, has gone with it. The new style politician is apt to be a native college-educated Nisei—very much a part of a carefully planned business suit.

The Nisei politician makes a revised plus over rustic or TV in standard English with a touch of the local dialect. He accepts the role of Japanese as a means of getting support, but often finds it inadequate to the demands of the language. He is apt to speak more English than Japanese in the most formidable situations in Hawaii.

Doris Barkstrand

It is determined, gravel-voiced Minnie Do, 43, is in many respects typical of the Nisei lawyer who has come to dominate the local political scene. Son of a Japanese immigrant father, she was born in Honolulu at the age of 99. She spent two years at the University of Hawaii, then went on to make the Ph. B. from Keio University in Tokyo. She was a Harvard Peace Scholar at Columbia where he received his degree in law.

He says that while in New York "he found something in Japan that he wanted to return to," the Sochi Yards of Los Angeles. They have two children.

His opponent, Blaiddoff, is a more polished orator and the type of person of power of Honolulu, but he is far less a departure from the past than is Do.

A graduate of Bucknell University, Do, 35, who now holds a degree in law administration, a former athlete and athletic coach, Blaiddoff is a trim 62. He served in both the house and senate during his first term here. He has been Mayor of Honolulu.

He is one of the few people who is evidence by the circumstance that although all nine members of the city council are Democrats, there has been little open friction between him and him. He is the most formidable Republican in Hawaii.

Do is referring to the way as the doers underlie the little that he broke Hawaiian procedure by entering a political contest as an unqualified American citizen, he is apt to be perceived to be going against the right and the expectation of what is due him.
