EQUALITY IN DEATH - One of the last fields of legalized EQUALITY IN DEATH — One of the last fields of legalized estimination is about to disappear in Colorado. The state gate last week adopted a House-approved amendment assemn licensing and regulation of cemeteries, and there-oulawed racial discrimination after death. The amend-ent specific: "There shall be no limitation, restriction or consenant other state state."

There shall be no initiation, restriction or convenant and upon race, color, mational origin or ancestry on the a placement, location, sale or transfer of any cometery are space, niche or crypt or in the interment of a deceased

At this writing the bill has not been signed by Gov. John Lore, but he is expected to. Love, a Republican, has a good al rights record. His official driver provided by the State right moderntally, is a Nisei, will Kagohara and Love has red, incidentially, is a Nisel, Will Kagohara and Love has dan highly of him on several public occasions. The bill, if approved, could place a cemietery's license jopardy if discrimination is practiced. The presence of eminatory practices in contenteries was dramatized some ants ago when a young, well-respected state legislator, a gro, died unexpectedly and his widow found she could have the bit of ther choice. He was buried in a federal mil-ry emetery, but not before the situation had been welly-

At least one of the larger cemeteries in the Denver area denied space to persons of Oriental extraction, but its ators have contended their hands were tied by covenants which tens of thousands of lot-owners were partners. The entors had said they would welcome a law that would der these covenants invalid. So now they are about to get ir law.

OOR DOOR SALESLADIES - In Tokyo last summer a We'de told me Tuppervare home partics had invaded Land of the Rising Sun. New, the Wall Street Journal Wes this firm is so successful it has 90 per cent of the se market in plastic kitchen containers after less than ars of effort. Some 4,000 Japanese saleswomen are and the parties where the hostess invites her friends is and listen to a demonstration. Average sale per wit is about $40 (14,400 yen), the story says. The high cost food motivates Japanese housewives to save leftovers. The big reports the company has built a plant in Japan and is indering designing a container especially for fish. Might well in the Nisei market.
