AT CLEVELAND

I left you last week enroute to Cleveland, a trip that was enlivened by the unexpected company of Esther Hagiwara. We were met at the airport by Masy Tashima, 1966 Chapter President.

After relaxing at the home of Joe and Toshi Kadowaki, with Hiro Mayeda and his missus, we attended the Chapter's 20th Anniversary Banquet. A very nice and appropriate touch was the tribute paid to Cleveland's first President, Abe Hagiwara. A lecturer was presented to the chapter in his memory, and Esther's few words from the podium communicated articulately and feelingly.

Former National 1000 Club Chairman and two time Cleveland Prexy, Joe Kadowaki took care of the toastmaster's role in customary fine fashion. The installation marked the return to the chair of Bob Fujita, a former president and old time San Franciscan. I was able to recognize immediately his brother Yosh who, unlike many, still looks as slim as when we played basketball together for Troop 12. Mrs. Fujita, who recalled her acquaintanceship with my mother in San Francisco, before the war, looked as youthful as all the Issei present looked.

Greeting us was Deanna Tanji, a former Jr. JACLer, who I remembered from 1963 when she met me at the airport, on the occasion of the EDC-MDC Convention.

CLUB KADOWAKI

Following the dinner, many adjourned to the Kadowaki's residence where the game room provided the setting for getting better acquainted.

Frank Shiba, 1947 and 1962 Chapter Prexy, tended bar in a real professional manner, and served ginger ale to hard working and able past Jr. JACL President, Anne Bacnik (She's cute too).

Many other past presidents were on hand, Henry Tanaka, Bill Sadatoki, Dr. Toaru Ishiyama. Others I can't remember (with apologies to those I can't) were Paul Sakuma, Yoshiko Parker, Mrs. Tanji (Deanne's mom), the wives of all those previously mentioned.

The Mayedas, Esther and I enjoyed the Kadowaki hospitality, complete with breakfast the next morning with Masy. The gang then drove me to the airport for the return trip.

One vivid memory I have of Cleveland is that there is considerable JACL spirit there, despite the lack of membership potential, and the discouraging occasional migration of members back to California. Our hats off to them for 20 years of dedicated JACL service.

BACK TO CALIFORNIA

On Jan. 14, we were able to renew acquaintances with our Livingston-Merced Chapter at its installation dinner. The JACL picture was shared with the group, with the program ably chaired by Buddy Iwata. This small chapter is marked by 14 1000 Clubbers, including Buddy, a life member. Noticeable by his presence was 1900 Clubber and former Assemblyman Don Winton and Mrs. Winton.

After dinner, we were invited for a nightcap at "Minnie's" by Buddy and Marian and Livingston Chronicle publisher Walt Aird and his wife.

SUNDAY MORNING CALL

Once I got over the shock of getting up at 8 on Sunday morning, an unexpected breakfast bull session with 1st V.P. Tom Shimazaki was very timely. The coming Interim Board meeting was a major part of discussion.

Because of his belief that Nisei must be involved in political activity, he was in Sacramento for the meeting of the Republican State Central Committee. This is a healthy thing, regardless of party affiliation.

Patsy and Spark vote on Powell censure

WASHINGTON — Both of Hawaii's congressmen voted Jan. 9 to remove Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-N.Y.) as chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee.

Rep. Patsy Mink, a member of Powell's committee, said she felt the disciplining at the hands of the House Democratic caucus "was the only choice we had."

"The caucus had to do something," she said. Rep. Spark Matsunaga said if the Democrats had not taken Powell's power away, "the House would have denied him his seat." He said he felt the party had displayed "a sense of responsibility."

But both Mrs. Mink and Matsunaga voted in favor of the motion the next day to permit Powell to retain his seat in Congress while charges against him are being investigated. The House voted 305-126 to bar the Harlem congressman from his seat, making him the third man to be deprived of his seat, pending a five-week investigation of his fitness to serve.

It took a 364-64 roll call to have Speaker John McCormack appoint a special nine-man subcommittee for the investigation. If Powell had been seated before the investigation, it would have taken a two-thirds vote to expel him. As it is, a simple majority can keep him out after the investigation is completed. Meanwhile, Powell is still in Congress.

FBI searching for missing Japanese

WASHINGTON — The Federal Bureau of Investigation has launched a search for Hiroya Sugino, 25, employee of the Sumitomo Forestry Co., Osaka, who has been missing since Dec. 3 from Astoria, Ore.

A member of the firm's Seattle branch, he was in Astoria alone to buy timber for his company. Coast Guard and police have combined air and sea search in an attempt to discover his car, which was thought to have plunged into the sea, but no trace has been found. Police also suspect he may have been kidnapped, probably by hitch-hikers.

The other two excluded from taking a seat in the House were Brigham Roberts, a Mormon polygamist, in 1899 and Wisconsin socialist Victor L. Berger in 1919 and 1920 because of a sedition conviction that ultimately was overturned.

In a statement after the vote, Joseph Rauh, vice chairman for Americans for Democratic Action, said: "Instead of setting standards of ethical conduct for all committee chairmen and members, the Democrats have sought to save their conscience through one-shot reform. . . . We call upon Congress now to adopt a code of conduct to which all committee chairmen and members can be held."

New rose hybrid used on float to win sweepstakes

SOUTH PASADENA — "The choice of roses did it!" explained Tom Matsuura, president of the South Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association in referring to the selection of the South Pasadena entry, "A Voyage to Atlantis," as Sweepstakes winner in the 78th annual Tournament of Roses Parade.

The Nisei nurseryman, owner of San Marino Nursery, said "We thought that many float sponsors were failing to recognize that the basic idea of the Tournament is roses!"

Matsuura revealed that the flowers were not ordinary roses, but the All-American Rose selection of 1967, a pink hybrid named "Bewitched." His group was given the exclusive right to use the roses as the principle flower to decorate the elaborate entry, a giant clamshell graced with eight Grecian maidens, and three huge leaping dolphins.

Some 3,000 man-hours of volunteer labor and $6,000 in donation were invested in the float as a community project. South Pasadena, a previous Sweepstakes winner in 1936, has entered a float annually for the past 47 years.

Publication date of Bosworth book set for Feb. 24

NEW YORK — W.W. Norton & Co., Inc., publishers, announced the publication date of Capt. Allan Bosworth's "America's Concentration Camps" ($5.95) as Feb. 24. (The book is available at JACL offices at the pre-publication price of $5 to its members.)

A well documented study of the 1942 Evacuation, the retired naval captain exposes this "shameful and usually ignored chapter of American history," the Publishers' Weekly noted in its review. "Parts of the story are told through excerpts from moving tragic diaries of innocent Japanese Americans caught in this persecution."

Another review, the Virginia Kirkus Service of New York City, comments:

"Occasionally Mr. Bosworth's emotions do overcome his generally equitable prose. During those moments, the citations from the diary of Mr. H., an elderly gentleman whose wife died of cancer during the internment, became the most moving part of the narrative, as he calmly assesses the civil atrocity which has encompassed him and maintains his faith in that country that is executing his persecution."

Pearl S. Buck, prominent author, considers Bosworth's book "an important and timely book, accurate in its facts and just in its conclusions."

She says: "The past is our best source of guidance for present action and future planning. The story of that particular part of our past, namely the evacuation of American citizens of Japanese ancestry and their families from their lands and homes during the Second World War, is peculiarly important to us now, as we become more and more involved with Asian peoples. It is inevitable that this involvement will some day include the Chinese people either as enemies or friends. It is well, therefore, to study this book and learn how absurd and unjust our actions were in a previous era, in order that the future may not repeat the dubious past."

Mt. Olympus hosts for IDC-IDYC meet Jan. 28-29

SALT LAKE CITY — Mt. Olympus JACL will host the first quarterly Intermountain District Council session at the Ramada Inn, 1000 S. Main St., the weekend of Jan. 28-29. It was announced by district governor Tats Misaka.

JACL chapter delegates will meet in the Brighton Room from 3 p.m. on Saturday while the Jr. JACL delegates will meet in the Granite Room. Registration is at 1 p.m.

In the evening, JACLers will attend the National JACL Credit Union annual meeting starting with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. and concluding with a dance from 9 p.m., while the district youth will have its dinner and social at the Japanese Christian Church.

Business sessions conclude by Sunday noon.

Origami Planes

SAN FRANCISCO — Scientific American is sponsoring the First International Paper Airplane Competition with entries being received in any of four categories: Duration of flight, distance flown, aerobatics and origami.

The San Francisco Chronicle joined in sponsorship and said it would accept entries until Feb. 1 from throughout the west coast of the U.S. and all nations of the vast Pacific basin. Already several entries from Japan have been received.

Paint, paste, glue, paper clips, Scotch tape and any kind of paper or cardboard may be used. To qualify, an airplane must be hand-launched—no engines or devices to take or keep the craft aloft. Scientific American, 415 Madison Ave., New York 10017, has extended the entry deadline to Feb. 14.

Immigration amendments ease part of Japan backlog

(Special to the Pacific Citizen)

WASHINGTON — That the October 1965 amendments to the Immigration and Nationality (Walter-McCarran) Act of 1952, many of which were proposed and supported by the Japanese American Citizens League, were helpful to increased immigration from Japan, and Asia, is demonstrated by the record, according to the Washington JACL Office.

Among the features of the 1965 amendments proposed and supported by the JACL were the elimination of the national origins quota system, the Asia-Pacific Triangle, and the allocation of the unused quotas to countries with oversubscribed quotas, such as Japan and most other Asian nations.

Mike Masaoka, Washington JACL Representative, reported that as far as he had been able to ascertain, all of the close family relatives eligible for the new preference categories and who had been waiting for years on the "Oversubscribed list" in Japan have been issued visas under the 1965 amendments.

Since the 1965 Amendments did not become effective until Dec. 1, 1965, the Annual Report of the Visa Office of the State Department's Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs for fiscal 1966 (July 1, 1965 to June 30, 1966) covers only about the first six months of operations under the new liberalizations.

Still, total immigration (non-quota and quota) for fiscal 1966 was the greatest in the past five years—311,356 of which 129,970 was quota and 181,386 nonquota, compared to totals of 287,679 for fiscal 1965, 277,684 for fiscal 1964, 291,936 for fiscal 1963, and 278,884 for fiscal 1962.

Asian Immigrants

In fiscal 1966, for the period July through November 1965, under the old law, a total of 5,624 Asian immigrants, of which 871 were quota immigrants, were issued visas for entry into the United States. For the December 1965 through June 1966, 24,392 Asians, of whom 11,027 were subject to numerical limitations and 7,661 were not subject to numerical limitations, were issued visas.

As far as Japan itself was concerned, in the July-November period, 996 visas, 47 of which were quota visas, were issued, while in the subsequent December-June period 2,265 visas, of which 423 were subject to numerical limitations and 1,839 were not, were issued, for a grand total of 3,261 visas for fiscal 1966.

For the ten-year period ending with fiscal 1966, 2,715,107 immigrants were issued visas on a world-wide basis, with Asian visas totalling 175,414 in this same period.

From fiscal 1957 through fiscal 1966, 45,640 Japanese received visas to the United States, as follows:

JAPANESE TO U.S. (per Fiscal Year)	1957	1958	1959	1960	1961
Quota	6,563	7,079	6,626	5,244	4,060
Nonquota	1,962	1,963	1,964	1,965	1,966
Total	8,525	9,042	8,590	7,209	6,026

Prior to the 1965 Amendments, nonquota visas could be issued only to the spouses and the unmarried minor children of United States citizens. But, because the Walter-McCarran Act abolished the Japanese Exclusion Act of 1924 and extended token immigration quotas of 185 annually to Japan, while also extending nonquota status to the spouses and children of citizens, immigration was rather heavy in the period following enactment and the effective date of the 1952 law.

The 1965 Amendments extended nonquota status to the alien parents of United States citizens, established a new series of preferences for the close family relatives of American citizens and resident aliens, set up new preferences for professional people and for those with needed skills, provided for the use of unused quota numbers during the transitional period until 1968 when the new system goes into effect, etc.

For fiscal 1966, Asia was entitled to 3,883 quota visas. Altogether, the 33 quota areas used 2,796 of their allocated visas, leaving 1,087 unused. But Asians used 21,634 unused quotas, mostly from West European countries, from the unused quota pool, for a total of 24,430 quota visas.

Japan was entitled to 185 quota visas in fiscal 1966. Japanese immigrants used not only all 185 quota numbers but also 601 from the unused quota pool, for a total of 786 quota visas.

China, by the way, though entitled to only 100 quota visas, was able to secure 12,721 from the unused quota pool, for a grand total of 12,821 quota visas.

Continental Breakdowns

World-wide, on the basis of continental breakdowns, the European annual quota total was 149,472, of which 69,677 were used and 79,795 were not used, and 33,055 from the quota pool was used, for a total of 102,732 quota visas issued.

The Asian totals have been given earlier.

Africa was entitled to 4,274 quota visas but used only 1,156 and did not use 3,118. Quota pool visas issued totalled 712, for a grand total of 1,868.

The North American total was 82 with all 82 used. New World countries, with the exception of Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago, are non-quota under the old law.

Oceania had a total of 700 quota visas available and used only 475, leaving 225 unused that went into the quota pool. Out of this same pool, however, Oceanian quota areas used 210 for a 685 grand total.

129,800 Visas Issued

The world-wide totals for fiscal 1966 were 158,411 quota visas authorized, with 74,188 issued to authorized areas. The 84,223 unused quotas were placed into the unused quota pool, out of which 55,611 quota visas were issued to oversubscribed areas.

A grand total of 129,797 quota visas were issued throughout the world in the last fiscal year.

Of the November-June visas issued to Japanese under the 1965 amendments, of the 703 preference visas, 278 were deductions for adjustment of status, private bill, and similar special cases; 16 were first preference as the unmarried sons or daughters of citizens; 74 were second preference as the spouses of resident aliens and the unmarried sons and daughters of resident aliens; 7 were third preference as professionals, scientists, and artists, and the spouses and children of such immigrants; 44 were fourth preference as the married sons or daughters of citizens or children of such immigrants; 189 were fifth preference as the brother or sister of a citizen or the spouses and children of such immigrants; 9 were sixth preference as the skilled or unskilled needed workers and children of such immigrants; and 2 were seventh preference as refugees.

Winter tops for family recreation

Salt Lake City

Huch Aoki is emphatic when he talks about winter being a time for "total family recreation."

The former West High School athlete, whose given name is Hachiro—Japanese for number eight—is president of Arco Industries, Inc., 1859 S. 8th West, Salt Lake City, only firm in the Intermountain region specializing in off-highway transportation vehicles.

"I'm a real sports enthusiast . . . when I have time," the former all-city football and basketball star explained.

The firm, now about seven years old, is a product of Aoki's drive, love of athletics, and the traditional closeness of the Japanese family.

"I didn't go to college. When I graduated from high school in 1944, money was scarce but work was plentiful. There were 11 kids in the family and nine of us lived at home. We all pitched in."

Raised Lettuce

His first business venture came later that year at age 20 when young Huch rented 20 acres of farm land near Evanston, Wyo., to raise lettuce.

"I had chased deer, elk and other wild animals out of the patches during the growing season and the market looked promising," Aoki recalled. "After I had cut 300 crates, the bottom dropped out of the lettuce market and I lost everything. I couldn't even pay for the crates—let alone the lettuce."

From that time until 1959, minus two years spent as an Army ski and mountain climbing instructor at Camp Hale near Vail, Colo., Aoki worked in the orchard and produce businesses.

"I taught mountain climbing in the summer and skiing in the winter," Aoki said, recalling his days at Camp Hale. "I really enjoyed it, but I was anxious to get out because I thought it was time to establish myself in some kind of career."

In 1954, using a borrowed truck, Aoki started his own produce business, but because of the produce market's highly speculative nature, he and two friends founded Arco Marine Service in 1959.

Unique Business

"It was primarily a propeller repair business," Aoki said. "There was no bona fide marine propeller repair shop between the East and West Coast and I thought this would be an ideal type program."

As the business grew, Aoki bought out his partners and founded Arco Industries, Inc. Four years ago, the firm began making tilt trailers to haul Thiokol off-highway vehicles, and a short time later received an Intermountain region distributorship for the vehicles, equipped with tracks and wheels or skis.

While working with Vail Ski Associates during a cross-country ski race from Vail to Aspen, Colo., manufacturers of the Polaroid one and two-man power sleds asked Arco to represent them in southern California, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Colorado and Nevada.

"I've made it mandatory for all our employees to learn to ski proficiently because of our continued operations in remote areas," Aoki pointed out. "We also demand that they stay in top physical condition."

Aoki said the eight employees also are trained in snow and avalanche conditions and cold weather survival.

Attractive Area

"Without question I feel that Utah has one of the most attractive ski areas in the western United States," Aoki said. "But snow is just as good in Colorado—where Arco does 70 percent of its ski industry business—or in Wyoming or Montana, he continued."

"Colorado is ahead of Utah in winter recreation promotion. Their total attitude toward winter sports has dwarfed Utah in the past and lately organizations in the ski industry have coordinated their efforts toward one goal. That's to advertise 'Ski Country Colorado, USA.'"

Conservative

Washington
Last week, as the First Session of the 90th Congress convened (Jan. 10), most of the signs pointed to a relatively go-sluggish, rather conservative law-making session. And, the President's State of the Union message that evening, seemed to confirm this new mood.

Although the President's uninspired, overly-detailed, and comprehensive message covered many subjects, it gave only passing mention to civil rights and none at all to immigration reform, the two mandated areas of JACL's national legislative concern.

In 1964, in his first State of the Union message, he not only emphasized the need for corrective immigration legislation but he called the Second Session of the 88th Congress to do "more for civil rights than the last 100 sessions combined."

In 1967, he spent no word on the need for continued immigration reform and only 45 words on civil rights, squeezing them in between his paragraphs on beautification of the countryside and the draft. "We should continue to seek equality and justice for each citizen—before a jury, in seeking a job, in exercising his civil rights. We should find a solution to fair housing, so every American, regardless of color, has a decent home of his choice."

Though the words were few, we do not interpret them to mean that the President has abandoned his commitment to his previously announced civil rights goals, though perhaps he did suggest a tactical backing away from "extreme federal activism" in this field. He implied that he would again seek legislation protecting civil rights workers and ending segregation in jury selections, as well as perhaps new remedies, though perhaps non-legislative ones, for open housing.

We expect that the President will be sending us a special message soon on civil rights. We do not anticipate any on immigration liberalization.

As for Congress itself, especially in the House where most midwestern Republicans gained 47 seats, the once potent Dixiecrat-Democratic-Conservative GOP coalition appeared to be reorganized, though informally and unofficially, on the basis that most Congressmen of both parties from these sectors are traditionally conservative on social and economic matters and isolationist and nationalists on international relations.

After the House Democratic Caucus decided to remove New York Negro Adam Clayton Powell from his chairmanship of the Education and Labor Committee, with all Republicans and most Southern Democrats voting against the House leadership, the controversial Harlem minister was also temporarily denied his seat while a bipartisan nine-member committee holds hearings on his alleged conduct.

Then, the House Democratic Caucus approved the succession of Mississippi's Dixiecrat William Colmer to the chairmanship of the Rules Committee, although we understand that the leadership was able to extract a promise from the arch-conservative that he would schedule regular meetings on the powerful committee that clears legislation for House floor action. His predecessor, Virginia's Howard Smith, was able to block legislation to which he was opposed by simply refusing to call meetings of the committee.

The only "liberal" gains of the week in the House were when the Democratic Committee on Committees designated Hawaii's Snark M. Matsunaga and Tennessee's William R. Anderson to the Rules Committee. JACler Matsunaga's popularity among his colleagues was demonstrated in this extraordinary assignment to one of the three most powerful and influential committees in the House (the others being Ways and Means and Appropriations), an assignment that not only ordinarily goes to one with many years seniority in the Congress but ranks him as one of the leadership team. Sparky is in his third term, having been first elected only five years ago.

Then, the Democratic and Republican leadership determined on a revised ratio for most of the standing committees, thereby reflecting increased Republican strength in the House gained in the last November elections. In almost every instance, this reduction in the number of Democrats and the increase of Republicans on the various committees assure control, or near control, to the conservatives. Actual assignments to the various committee should be completed and confirmed either this week or next.

Although the Democratic and Republican leadership in the House remained the same as it was last year, conservatives retained important Senate leadership posts.

Among the Democrats, West Virginia's conservative Robert Byrd defeated Pennsylvania's liberal Joseph Clark as the Secretary of the Democratic Conference, a post given up voluntarily by Florida's George Smathers. And, among the Republicans, California's George Murphy defeated Pennsylvania's Hugh Scott for the chairmanship of the GOP Senate Campaign Committee.

Of more than passing interest in the temporary Senate committee assignments for Republicans are those returning New York's liberal Jacob Javits from the Judiciary Committee to the Appropriations Committee, from which he was bumped two years ago when the Republicans lost a seat in the Johnson landslide. South Carolina's Strom Thurmond, one of the chief segregationists in the entire Congress today, was named to the Judiciary Committee, which handles civil rights and immigration bills, among others. New committee assignments in the Senate too should be completed and confirmed within a week or two.

But the real liberal-conservative showdown in the Senate is expected later this week or possibly next when a vote will be held on whether the present Rule XXII that requires two-thirds of all Senators present and voting to invoke cloture, will be modified to the simple constitutional majority proposal advanced by California's Senator Thomas Kuchel and a bipartisan group of 14 lawmakers, or the three-fifths of all Senators present and voting suggested by Democrat George McGovern of North Dakota and Republican Thurston Morton of Kentucky, or left as it is.

JACL, deeply committed to a liberalization of the rule to stop filibusters, is active in seeking support so that a majority of the Senate, after 20 calendar days of debate, may move to prevent the frustration of majority rules by a talkative and obstructionist minority. This year, we are more hopeful than ever, believing that not only will the Vice President rule properly but that a majority of Senators will act accordingly.

Hans Pung set a new bowling league record in the Mid-Peninsula Nisei Classics at Palo Alto with a 753 series on games of 241-257-255. The So. Calif. Nisei Golf Assn. handicap board chairman John Ty Saito reported a noticeable drop in single handicap players at the end of the 1966 season with only 113 out of its 475 membership among the 2 to 9 handicap group. Glen Okano has a 2 handicap, Min Yoshizaki has 3.

Awards

George Curran, president of the Japan Society of San Francisco and long associated in international banking with Bank of America, was awarded the Order of the Sacred Treasure, 3d Class, in recognition of his two decades of effort promoting economic and cultural ties between the U.S. and Japan.

Receiving her second Outstanding Performance Award certificate recently was Ruth K. Kuroishi, prewar L.A. Nisei now with the Army Surgeon General's Office as operations specialist in Washington.

LEI PRESENTATION — Mrs. Spark Matsunaga (right) presents lei to Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg at the American headquarters of the United Nations in New York while the Congressman and Mrs. Goldberg look on. Rep. Matsunaga recently made a study tour of UN facilities and attended sessions of the General Assembly and the Security Council.

Music

Concert pianist Hiro Imamura of Berkeley, now studying in London under a UC Alfred Honda scholarship, will return for two months this fall to guest with the Yomuri Symphony which will tour the U.S. starting in October. Arthur Fielder of the Boston Pops will be guest conductor. Music student Norma Miyakawa of Reedley College was named to the all-western Jr. College Honor Band which will appear in concert at the College Band Directors National Assn. convention Feb. 11 at the Univ. of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Churches

Sage Memorial Methodist Church in El Monte dedicated its new facilities Jan. 29 with Bishop Gerald H. Kennedy presiding. The Rev. Jutaro Yokoi, pastor emeritus, and the Rev. George Nishikawa, pastor, participated. The church is named for the late Mrs. Minna Sophia Sage Yokoi.

Diane Suda, 1966 national JACL oratorical champion, of Fresno is a member of the Jr. Young Buddhist Assn. panel addressing the Western Adult Buddhist League Convention Feb. 11-12 at Fresno on "The Buddhist Youth and His Perspective." George Tezuka, chairman, said the event will be held Feb. 12, 3 p.m., at the Fresno Buddhist Church Annex and is open to the public.

The West 10th Methodist Church in Oakland has sold its 60-year-old parsonage, 50-year-old sanctuary and 37-year-old education building to the Oakland Redevelopment Agency, which gave the church notice to vacate by Feb. 15.

Politics

Mrs. Toshi Yamamoto of East Los Angeles is the first Nisei to be appointed to the Republican State Central Committee by Harold P. Collins, state senate candidate in the recent election. An ex-Seattleite she attended Univ. of Washington and Chouinard School of Art, was evacuated to Manzanar and then moved to Chicago. She is active with the Japanese American Republican and the Monterey Park Republican Women's Federation.

Medicine

Less than 1 pct. of the mentally-ill confined in Southern California institutions could be considered "dangerous, and even then, they are dangerous only to themselves", according to an opinion expressed by Dr. George Y. Abe, medical director and superintendent of the Metropolitan State Hospital, Norwalk. Psychiatric social worker Tadashi Ishimaru, 40, at Modesto State Hospital is listed in the latest Who's Who in the West. A native of Kochi, Japan, he came to U.S. as a student in 1953, attending schools in Michigan and graduating from the Wayne State University school of social work. He was naturalized in 1963. He also served with the U.S. Army counterintelligence corps for two years. He is married to Dr. Masako Nishio, an ophthalmologist, and they are parents of three children.

Earsel Hino, active San Francisco JACler, will join the professional staff of the S.S. Hope, which embarks from Philadelphia Feb. 7 for Cartagena, Colombia. A graduate pharmacist, he has been given a year's leave from Kaiser Hospital to make the 10-month trip to train native doctors and nurses. He was born in Colusa and graduated from UC School of Pharmacy in 1965.

Business

Buddy Iwata of Livingston will be one of two Central California members on the stockholder advisory committee for the Berkeley Bank for Cooperatives. The Flamingo Hotel on the Las Vegas strip has been sold to a Japanese group, the Fujiya Corp., headed by Tokyo industrialist Kenji Osano. The hotel will be managed by Sheraton Corp. of America. Magazine Editor Kitazaki

Seattle
When it comes to keeping score on Nisei Fourth Estaters, we must once more confess to being remiss on keeping up with John Kitazaki, whom we have known for many years, since 1950.

He has been on the editorial staffs of military intelligence with MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo and with the CIA in Washington. In 1950, when the Japan Trade Fair (which later developed into the Washington State International Trade Fair) was held at Edmondson Pavilion on the campus, John was a sort of behind-the-scenes man for John Haydon, who was the "organizer" of this first trade fair.

Today Haydon is port commissioner of the City of Seattle. And from the date of that first trade fair, Kitazaki has been a public relations assistant to Haydon.

The acquaintance from those days is a special memory because the two Johns were so helpful in our efforts to get pics and story for Scene Mag at the time.

Kitazaki's specialty is doing unpretentious things in efficient style, to describe the development of an editor.

Magazine Editor

Today he is the wheel behind the Port of Seattle's monthly magazine, Port of Seattle Monthly Reporter. In 1958, port public relations director Bob Fletcher started editing the Reporter, and as usual, John was handling some of the less spectacular chores. On graduating from the writing of the shorter items, John started writing longer ones, and in a few years, Fletcher had him running the mag.

It first started as a four-pager with a press run of 700. Today it is an impressive 16 to 20 pages, partly written and edited, with 6,000 readers.

And to continue with Port of Seattle problems, we should like to mention SJR 25 at the last election although PC readers have heard of nothing but SJR 20 for years.

Wheat for India

It was just by chance that we started talking about grain — the Port of Seattle facilities have developed to such an extent that the outlook for the future is bright indeed. Just a day or two ago, the great tanker Manhattan was anchored out in the middle of Elliot Bay. Why? To get out in deep water to take on 760,000 barrels of oil for transportation of its cargo, 115,000 short tons of wheat for India, and why we mention this bit is that the first 75 percent of this cargo had been taken on at Columbia River grain loading facilities, which have been leading the northwest in all grain loading, but now they have to come to Seattle to take on a full load for some of these super-ships of the type that Japan has been building.

Coal mining in the State of Washington is also due for a revival because of facilities enabling legislation which is one of the jobs of the Washington State Legislature now in session, and as an after-

From the Frying Pan

UNCLE RECOGNIZES US — Even in these inflationary times, the recent $221,690 grant to the Japanese American Research Project from the National Institute of Mental Health is an impressive sum. Uncle Sam thereby has indicated his interest in the project.

It has been announced the current grant is to underwrite the first year of a study of the social character of the first three generations of Japanese Americans. Since the study is expected to cover four years it is probably reasonable to expect that, Congress and the American taxpayer willing, additional funds will be forthcoming.

There is no hint as to how much money will be required for the remaining three years of the study. If by some wild and improbable chance an equal amount is granted for each of the four years, my somewhat shaky arithmetic indicates a total of $886,760.

DWINDLING EQUITY — Confucius, or somebody like that, once said it was most impolite to look a gift horse in the mouth. Thus we are properly appreciative of the National Institute of Mental Health's interest expressed to the tune of nearly a quarter of a million dollars. Still, the gift points up a curious situation.

The Japanese American Research Project, it should be recalled, was launched when the Japanese American Citizens League presented the University of California at Los Angeles with $100,000 for the purpose. At that time the word "co-sponsorship" was used to describe the relationship between JACL and UCLA.

Since that time, as the project grew larger and more involved, the Carnegie Corp. contributed $141,000 in two grants. Without these grants the project would have gone aground long ago. Now the National Institute of Mental Health has added $221,690, making a total of $462,690. A little bit of figuring shows that whereas the JACL was once the only cash contributor, its share is now but 21.5 per cent of the total involved and it is probable that this percentage will become progressively smaller. In other words the JACL's equity, if it might be called that, in the History Project is dwindling.

SPEED MONEY — Perhaps the $100,000 grant from the JACL served its purpose when, as seed money, it got the History Project started. Without this relatively modest beginning, it is likely that such a study as is now under way never would have been taken on, and an important part of American history would have been lost forever. And certainly the function of "seed money" is to attract additional funds.

But now the inevitable question is, what is the JACL's role, if any, to be henceforth in the History Project?

News releases now describe the study as "the UCLA Japanese American Research Project." There is no reference to "co-sponsorship" although Chancellor Franklin D. Murphy of UCLA has named Frank Chuman, representing the JACL, to a committee with five UCLA professors to "oversee" the National Institute of Mental Health phase of the project.

It may well be that the JACL completed its primary function when it helped get the project under way, and one seat on a committee of six "overseeing" the later phases of its progress is sufficient. On the other hand, if such a thing as a jointly sponsored project is possible, it may be that the JACL ought to take a larger role. And then again it may be that the JACL is not entitled to this larger role, or that this larger role is not desirable.

Puzzling questions, and perhaps embarrassing. But they are questions that come to mind and it may not be unreasonable to hope that someone will get around to answering them.

Meanwhile, the grant itself is reason enough for rejoicing. The project is much too important not to be pushed with all possible dispatch.

MILWAUKEE JACLER WILL HEAD HOLIDAY FOLK FAIR IN 1969

MILWAUKEE — Roy A. Mukai of 2242 N. 53rd St., was elected vice chairman of the Holiday Folk Fair. This means that in 1969 Mukai will head an organization of approximately 4,000 volunteers representing 40 different ethnic backgrounds, who annually produce a multi-cultural event attracting more than 55,000 visitors during the weekend before Thanksgiving.

Mukai was president of the Milwaukee Japanese American Citizens League in 1960 and 1961 and has served as general chairman of this group for Folk Fair participation. The group has taken part in 21 of the 23 years that the International Institute, United Food agency devoted to helping immigrants, has sponsored such a demonstration of good-will among its citizens of many cultural backgrounds.

Already a member of JACL when he came to Milwaukee in 1951, Mr. and Mrs. Mukai became Milwaukee members. Except for the three years he spent in the U.S. Armed Forces, the couple have actively participated.

Food Booth

Of all segments of the Folk Fair, perhaps the one nearest the heart of JACL members is the International Sidewalk Cafe. For several years the Japanese food booth has been handled by the juniors. Planning, ordering the rice cookies and cakes, the tea and other packaged goods and dispensing them have been the responsibility of their teen-agers. Purpose has been to bring these young people together, develop in them a sense of business and give them a project in which all have enjoyed vigorously pursuing.

For the younger children, the Folk Fair gives an incentive to learn and perform traditional Japanese dances. Their instructor is Mrs. Mukai. Mukai was graduated with a B.S. in mechanical engineering, from the Univ. of Washington, whence he came to the Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co. He is presently in the design department of Cutler-Hammer, nationally known maker of industrial switches. Maintenance of those in operation, experimenting and developing improvements in them and creating new devices for motor control are the functions of his department.

Sheridan, Wyo., once a lively town with 120 Japanese, now down to one

Denver — Jokichi Ono, 70, came here the other day to attend the wedding of his daughter. A few days later the old timer happily returned to his home in Sheridan, up in north central Wyoming, his hometown for more than 50 years. Now retired, his employer for many years was the Chicago Burlington & Quincy Railroad.

Ono arrived in Tacoma, Wash., from his native Okama on Oct. 3, 1914. He soon headed eastward to Sheridan where his father, the late Ichisaburo Ono, awaited him. The elder Ono, leaving his family at home, came over in 1897. When his son arrived he was employed there by the S. Ban & Co. The pioneer Issei general supply and labor contract firm in Portland, Ore., then maintained a branch plant in Sheridan.

By 1918, observing that his

South Africa's apartheid rules against Japanese wife of Hakujin ship master

CAPE TOWN, South Africa—Capt. David Cauvin, master of the South African Railway and Harbor coal carrier John Hugo will leave his native South Africa for Hong Kong shortly because his Japanese wife was not allowed to settle in the republic.

This is the first known occasion where the status of Japanese was put to an acid test under the republic's apartheid laws.

Cauvin accepted the job with the state-owned firm on condition that his wife be allowed in the country. Unable to get a visitor's permit for his wife, he has been living at Lourenco Marques, Mozambique.

Only Japanese women in South Africa at present are wives of Japanese officials or company representatives, who are considered "honorary" whites.

Mixed Marriage Hit

The Johannesburg pro-government newspaper Die Vaderland recently quoted a political spokesman as strongly denouncing repeated attempts by whites who marry non-whites overseas and then try to re-enter the republic as man and wife.

The newspaper pointed out that Cauvin's wife as of Asian origin. Recently South Africa writer Breyten Breytenbach, who married a Vietnamese girl in Paris, was refused entry into South Africa because his wife was Asian.

"These people . . . do not want to abide by the country's laws and try to visit or settle here with wives although they know for sure they will not be admitted into South Africa," it said.

Cauvin worked for eight years for a British shipping company in Hong Kong before returning to South Africa. He and his wife were married four years ago.

REP. MATSUNAGA ON HOUSE RULES COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON — Rep. Spark Matsunaga (D-Hawaii) confirmed rumors on Capitol Hill Jan. 10 that he has accepted an offer from the House leadership to name him to the powerful Rules Committee.

Membership in this committee is generally reserved for those with more seniority than the Hawaiian lawmaker who is presently serving his third term in Congress.

Vice President's move key for Senate Rule 22

Washington — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is convinced a majority of 51 Senators can modify the Senate's controversial filibuster Rule 22 during the chamber's present rules skirmish, provided they maintain that majority on all crucial tests.

Mr. Humphrey has indicated to liberal colleagues that he has no single package ruling in the works to solve all their problems, but that his decisions on specific questions as they arise, should enable a majority to "work its will."

In a word, he has assured them that under a given set of circumstances he is willing to abide by the wishes of a "constitutional majority" of 51 Senators. With that understanding, advocates of a liberalized cloture rule are prepared to embark on a course that may produce some tense and explosive moments in the tradition-bound old chamber.

Unheard Of

The right to limit debate by a simple majority is unheard of in the modern day Senate. Any projected action by the Vice President to implement such a vote is sure to bring the traditionalists storming to their feet. Even the Vice President's gavel may not be able to quell all the racket.

Rather than move to such a brink of simple majority rule some have suggested that staunch advocates of unlimited debate might be willing to accept early in the game the "middle way" settlement proposed by Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.).

McGovern has moved to empower three-fifths of the Senators present and voting, on 60 of the 100 Senators if all members vote, to invoke debate-limiting cloture. Rule 22, now under attack, requires a majority of two-thirds of those present and voting, or 67 with a full turnout, to choke off the talk.

Three-Fifths Favored

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) has declared himself in favor of the three-fifths majority rule proposed by McGovern. In fact, Mansfield was among the first to propose such a compromise some years ago.

Nonetheless, it's a pretty good bet that Mansfield will step in to try to sidetrack the rules dispute entirely if it threatens to develop into an open-end fight.

The liberals have discussed a number of procedures for quick resolution of the dispute, and Humphrey has made his own personal study of all the alternatives.

How It May Go

Here is one script on how the action is expected to go—

unless interrupted by a side-tracking motion:

1—McGovern will move to close further debate, and demand an immediate Senate vote.

2—A Southern opponent will promptly raise a point of order against the move, as unprecedented in the Senate.

3—Vice President Humphrey will submit the point of order to the Senate for decision, and a new debate will break out.

4—To short-circuit an endless discussion, and clinch a quick parliamentary victory, a rules reform advocate will move to table the point of order.

5—Mr. Humphrey will announce in advance his opinion that tabling of the point of order would be tantamount to a Senate decision that a bare majority of the Senate could impose cloture.

6—With the debate thus shut off, the next vote will come on McGovern's motion to amend the cloture rule to permit a three-fifths majority of Senators present and voting to limit debate.

That could be the ball game, with one important proviso: That an essential majority of 51 Senators was still in the liberals' corner and in favor of the rules change.

It so happens, however, that the temperamental Senate seldom follows the most carefully prepared script. The liberals, who have been talking it all over with the Vice President, say they have a number of alternatives handy.

CAPT. FUCHIDA WANTS TO BE U.S. CITIZEN

HONOLULU — The man who led the attack on Pearl Harbor, Capt. Mitsuo Fuchida, wants to become a U.S. citizen, according to Jack Conner, a film producer who is shooting a story of the ex-combat pilot's conversion to Christianity.

Evangelist Billy Graham has been quoted as saying such a film could be one of the greatest stories that could be portrayed and could affect many lives.

Early Issei headstones found by zoo workers

SACRAMENTO — Headstones of Rinnatsu Shintani, who died Dec. 23, 1905 at the age of 38, and 14 others were recently uncovered while workers were digging in the city zoo at William Land Park to build an administration building and zoo hospital.

Dates on the headstones ranged from 1902 to 1905. The gravemarkers were about 1 1/2 ft. below the surface. Zoo officials said the stones may have been a footing for the east wall of a barn built in the 1920s and destroyed to make way for the new building.

City park superintendent William Chorley reported stones bearing Japanese names came from a Japanese section of the old New Helvetia Cemetery at Alhambra and J. Sts., now the site of Sutter Jr. High School.

Director's Report

By Masao Satow, National JACL Director

CAPT. BOSWORTH BOOK

A number of people have suggested that National JACL have some kind of program this year to mark the 25 years since the Evacuation. While most of us prefer to forget the Evacuation, we cannot entirely ignore it. But what do we do to commemorate something as ignominious in our own history in addition to its being a black mark on Democracy?

It seems to us Capt. Allan Bosworth has given us a timely ready-made implement which can be a most constructive and significant activity for Chapters and JACLers, namely, the widest possible distribution of his story on "America's Concentration Camps".

We are making the book available to Chapters ordering five or more copies for placement in local libraries at the special rate of $4 each, passing on the savings to National from quantity orders. For Chapters which have already sent prepaid orders for this purpose, an adjustment will be made, either by refunding the difference or supplying additional books.

Of the 2,000 books we have ordered, more than 1,500 have been disposed of. Those who ordered the first 1,000 autographed copies should have the books by now. The present rate of sales indicates we will be ordering another supply shortly.

25TH ANNIVERSARY

The Ft. Lupton Chapter this past weekend pointed another positive way by which to mark 25 years after the Evacuation with scroll citations of appreciation to two local people who never wavered in their faith in Japanese Americans during the war years despite strong public opinion to the contrary. We were happy to be on hand to add National's voice of appreciation to Superintendent of Ft. Lupton Schools Leo Butler, and Justice of the Peace Charles Lundin with first Chapter President Floyd Kohio making the presentations.

The establishment of this Chapter early in 1942 makes it the first Chapter in the Mountain Plains District. District Governor Lily Okura thoughtfully sent a telegram of congratulation. Min Yasui installed President Sam Kohio and his cabinet and also served as our chauffeur over the slick road from Denver.

MEMBERSHIPS

To the Twin Cities Chapter with Membership Chairman Paul Tsuchiya hustling goes the distinction of being the first Chapter to exceed its 1966 membership. Other Chapters more than halfway on their current drives are Contra Costa, Cortez, Eden Township, Florida, French Camp, San Benito, and San Jose. Twenty-seven Chapters have reported thus far for our present 3,128 total.

CHAPTER OFFICERS

We have yet to hear from 33 Chapters for their listing of 1967 officers. During the past month we installed Harry Akimoto of Watsonville and Dr. Yukio Kawamura of Oakland. Thanks to National Officials Jerry Enomoto, Yone Sato, Russ Obana, and Dr. Tom Taketa, and former District official John Enomoto, the installing load this year in our area has been cut down considerably for us.

Jr. JACL chairman Obana swears in Sonoma officers

SANTA ROSA — Russell Obana, National Jr. JACL Chairman, installed 1967 officers of the Sonoma County JACL and Jr. JACL chapters on Jan. 7 at the local Enmanji Memorial Hall. The successful installation potluck dinner was combined with the local Buddhist Church New Year's Party. Some 225 persons attended.

Retiring chapter President Frank Oda presented gavel to Randy Okamoto, Junior president, and to Ed Ohki, chapter president. In turn newly installed chapter president Ohki presented the past presidents award to Oda.

Capable James Murakami served as MC running the formal portion of the evening's program at a smooth and rapid pace.

James Miyano, committee chairman, presented to Russell Obana the 1st place trophy for the largest base caught during 1966 while Ed Kawakawa and Roland Ford took 2nd and 3rd places, respectively.

The chapter's annual outstanding community service award was presented by George Hamamoto, chapter recognition chairman, to Arthur Sugiyama for his outstanding contribution to the Redwood Empire Boy Scout movement for the past nine years.

Japanese Recipes: Kimi Shimamoto

Grated Daikon with Tempura

Irving, Texas
Mrs. Roy Yamamoto, a Dallasite, generously shared some fresh daikon that she had received. The first word association that "daikon" conjured was tempura. Crisp tender jumbo shrimp, a piece of sweet potato, some green beans or perhaps eggplant, served with a sauce and grated daikon to add as you please is indeed an epicurean dish.

Daikon, a giant Japanese leek radish, is a versatile vegetable in the Japanese kitchen. Shredded into thin strips and combined with some carrot for color and sea kelp for flavor and soaked in a vinegar and sugar sauce, it is a delicious suimono or salad. It is equally good cut up and cooked in miso soup, and finally it is salted in barrels to emerge months later as the pungent but delicious tsukemono. While it is fresh and crisp it is delicious just grated and eaten with a small amount of soy sauce. This is the grated radish called for as a condiment or garnish in Japanese recipes.

Did you know that daikon boiled in water as directed in some recipes will be bitter? A few grains of raw rice boiled with the daikon will eliminate the bitter taste.

To prepare tempura make the sauce first and set it aside. Clean the shrimp or fish and all of the vegetables so they will be ready to cook.

Heat the oil and mix the batter. Remember not to overmix the batter if a tender crisp crust is desired. Another tip, when a leafy vegetable such as parsley, shisho, or chrysanthemum is used for tempura, draw the leaf over the top of the batter to coat just one side and put it gently in the hot oil. These will be very fragile.

TEMPURA

About 2 doz. large shrimp
Various vegetables to serve 4 persons

Vegetable suggestions: green beans, fresh asparagus, eggplant, sweet potato, carrot strips, parsley, shisho, and chrysanthemum leaf

Shell and de vein shrimp leaving the tail attached. Slash the underside to prevent curling. Cut the vegetables to the approximate size of the shrimp. Dip one at a time in the batter and fry in deep hot oil 350 degrees until the large bubbles that form become small. Drain on paper and serve hot with the sauce and a bowl of grated daikon to be passed around.

BATTER

1/2 cup flour
1/2 c. cornstarch
1/4 t. salt
1 egg
1 c. water

Beat the egg and water together and add the dry ingredients. Stir gently to mix flour and liquid.

SAUCE

1/2 c. dashi (stock)
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 t. sugar
1/4 t. AJI

Combine all ingredients and heat. Serve from a small pitcher.

Pearl Harbor anniversary void of hate but one to maintain friendly relations

WASHINGTON — Twenty-five years after Pearl Harbor, a former Army general who suffered combat wounds fighting the Japanese in New Guinea, and a Nisei who was thrown into jail on that "day of infamy," are president and vice-president of the Japan American Society of Washington.

Twenty-five years ago, such a prospect would have been hardly conjectured.

Lt. Gen. Clovis E. Byers, who won the Distinguished Service Cross in combat and later to become the top officer with the occupation forces after the Japanese defeat, is the president, now an executive with General Telephone and Electronics Corp.

Mike Masaoka is vice-president. He was jailed in North Platte, Neb., because of his ancestry, his American citizenship notwithstanding.

In a way, the personal story of Byers reflects the quarter century of relations between the two nations and peoples since Pearl Harbor—from mortal tal enemy to victor to military occupier to friend.

"I guess the point is not what someone did yesterday but what they are doing today," he declared. "The war was over a long time ago. Why shouldn't we work these educated, highly intelligent people that have so much to share with us?"

This, in a sense, summed up the attitude of most Americans on the 25th anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

Deaths

Y. Kuninobu, 100

HONOLULU — Yabemon Kuninobu, 100, the oldest naturalized citizen of Japanese ancestry in Hawaii, died Jan. 11.

Kuninobu came to Hawaii in 1890 from his native Yamaguchi Prefecture, Japan, to work as a cane planter in Paia, Maui. He later became a bookkeeper for the plantation at Keala, Kauai.

In 1957, at the age of 91, he was naturalized as an American citizen.

He is survived by his son, Dr. James; a daughter, Mrs. Mori Hayashi; four grandchildren (including Dr. Leonard Kuninobu of Monterey Park, Calif.) and nine great grandchildren.

Military Honors

Honolulu

Sgt. Edward Noboru Kaneshiro, 38, of 2549-B 10th Ave., might possibly win a Congressional Medal of Honor for his feat in Vietnam. He already is a recipient of the Silver Star. The action for which the Medal of Honor has been suggested took place Dec. 1 at a village in the Kim River Valley in Vietnam. Kaneshiro is a graduate of Leilehua High School, a veteran of 7 1/2 years in the Army and formerly served with the 25th Infantry Wolfhounds. He and his wife, Mitsuko, are the parents of three children.

Army Staff Sgt. Leslie Y. Kaneshiro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kama Kaneshiro of Mountain View on the Big Island, has received the Army Commendation Medal. Staff Sgt. Nobuo Tamura, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bulchi Tamura of 67-348 Haona St., Waiwala, has been recognized as Outstanding Supply Man by Headquarters, 5th Air Force, Spokane, Wash.

Three Oahu residents were killed in a head-on collision Jan. 8 in Waimanalo. One of the drivers involved, Kiyoko Akimoto, 43, of 1830-A Mahana St., Palolo, and her daughter Amy Jane, 6, were killed in the Kalahele Highway tragedy. The second driver, Alfred Iona, 34, of 41-978 Waiunaha St., Waimanalo, died Jan. 9 at Castle Memorial Hospital. He is owner of Oceanic Fisheries. After swimming ashore he walked 6 1/2 hours before he reached Hale O Lono Harbor in southwest Molokai.

Ralph C. Honda will be installed tonight as president of the Japanese Chamber Cultural Hall. He is the father Aloha Week Hawaii, Inc. at of a former Cherry Blossom Queen. Twenty-two Japanese Americans were inducted into the armed forces last month. They were:

Navy—Barney K. Iha, Richard R. Kamihara, Stanley M. Kamimura, Howard M. Kitabata, John K. Tokunaga and Miles S. Uyemura; Army—Robert M. Urata, Miles K. Naito, Howard T. Okayama, Glenn Z. Asakawa, Andy H. Shimabukuro, Wayne T. Onogi, Lynn M. Miyamoto, Donald R. Kaneshiro, Ronald T. Shintani, Richard T. Okada, Alan T. Okuhama, Tomas N. Tamaana, Alan M. Morihsige, Alan H. Watanabe, Robert M. Shigematsu and Ray L. Nakamoto. Lt. Roy Y. Sugawa, once a crack teen-age golfer, has received the Dugway, Utah, Proving Ground Certificate of Achievement for his work as a project officer there.

Central Pacific Bank's operating profits were $327,000 last year, a $21,000 increase over 1965. Kazuo Ishii is bank president.

Entertainment

Yoshimi Takeda gave his debut performance as conductor of the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra Jan. 8 at Honolulu International Center. It was an important musical moment for the diminutive associate conductor from Tokyo, who's 33 but looks years younger. Honolulu's mercury dipped to chilly below-normal temperatures during the past week. The low temperature about this time of the year is normally 66, but it registered as low as 59 on Jan. 7.

There's a quite reliable rumor in these parts that Wayne Newton will wed Elaine Okumura, an island stewardess with Pan American Airways. At least, that's what the local press says. Herman Wedemeyer, former All-American griddler from St. Mary's, is now the general manager of Hemmeyer's restaurants at International Market Place in Waikiki.

Last week's Top Ten Tunes of the Week: 1-I'm a Believer Stepping Stone; 2-Pretty Ballerina; 3-Lonely Too Long; 4-Bitter-sweet; 5-Snoopy Vs. the Red Baron; 6-Single Girl; 7-How Do You Catch a Girl; 8-Wild Thing; 9-Pushin' Too Hard; 10 - Sit Down, I Think I Love You.

he Bronze Star has been awarded to an Oahu soldier who was killed in action in Vietnam last July 31. He was Sgt. Kenneth R. Carter, who lived at 4922-D Kaena Loop in Schofield. Egan Nishimoto, vice-president of Hawaiian Land Co. and general manager of Ala Moana Center, has been reappointed State director for the International Council of Shopping Centers. He also is Hawaii real estate manager for Dillingham Corp. Edward K. Ochiai, principal right-of-way agent for the Department of Transportation, was installed as president of the Hawaii chapter of the American Right of Way Assn.

Political Notes

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye has agreed to be keynote speaker at the second Kauai Pacific and Asian Affairs Council High School Conference on World Affairs Jan. 28 at Waimea High School on Kauai.

Rep. Patsy Mink said in Washington Jan. 11 she has applied to the House for a second committee assignment. She is expected to be named to the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee.

A bomb planted in a car exploded Jan. 12 and seriously injured John S. Kim, 37, convicted gambler and brother of Philip (Wildcat) Kim, former Island boxer who was shot to death in Los Angeles in 1958. Kim's feet and lower legs were mangled, but he is expected to walk again, it is reported.

Fire gutted the home of Mr. and Mrs. James K. Nitta of 2415 Yvonne Place Jan. 12, causing an estimated $13,500 damage and killing a dog locked inside when the family left earlier.

Thomas K. Kaulukukui, an insurance executive and former athlete, was appointed Jan. 11 as foreman of the 1967 Oahu Grand Jury by Circuit Judge Masato Doi. Nisei grand jurors include George H. Ishii, Andrew K. Koseki, Robert M. Sato and Margaret T. Suzuki.

Magic Island, near Ala Moana Park, is going to be opened up for three activities this year—the 50th State Fair, Lions Club circus and Firemen's benefit program. The City is no longer making Kapiolani Park available because of damage in past years to the grass. Masao Kojima has joined City Bank of Honolulu as an assistant vice-president and loan officer. For the past four years, he has been with the American Security Bank where he was a mortgage and commercial loan officer.

Raymond B. Toguchi, who, according to a local newspaper, has never fought a fire, has been appointed Kauai's fire chief at $13,000 a year. Toguchi, 51, was confirmed for the job Jan. 10 by the board of supervisors after his appointment by County Chairman Antone Vidinha, Jr. Toguchi was a Civil Defense operations and training officer prior to his appointment as fire chief. An ice storm at the summit of Maui's Mt. Haleakala Jan. 11 broke down power lines which feed TV relay stations and left Maui and parts of Oahu and the Big Island without TV. The storm was part of a cool weather system that also brought thundershowers to Maui and the Big Island and subjected Oahu and the other islands to cool, windy weather.

Mrs. Mary Tanoy, project manager for the Hawaii Curriculum Center, was elected president of the Hawaii Council of Teachers of English Jan. 7.

AMERICA'S CONCENTRATION CAMPS

by ALLAN R. BOSWORTH

The shocking story of 110,000 Americans behind barbed wire—in the United States during World War II. Their crime: Japanese ancestry.

Captain Allan R. Bosworth (U.S. Navy, Ret.) is a former newspaperman and the author of fifteen other books. A native of Texas, he has traveled extensively in Europe and the Far East. He lives in Beaumont, Virginia.

TEXTBOOK PROJECT

This will require help from parents who have children in high school and college studying American history. It would be of interest to us to determine how much students are being made aware of the worst wartime mistake of World War II—the Evacuation.

We suspect very few would mention the removal of Japanese Americans from the West Coast by the government as sociological events during a war hardly rate mention. Rather it is the chronology of battles and naming of generals and admirals that make for war history.

This informal survey may launch a JACL program in public relations to set the Nisei record straight.

What raised this question was a recent study of history textbooks by the Heritage editor Herb Brin, who found students in California learned virtually nothing about the Holocaust—"the German manufacturing of Jewish death." He also learned another melancholy truth by checking the Jewish text books which contained no word about the Holocaust.

The American Assn. for Jewish Education is now preparing books for use in all schools under Jewish auspices relating to general economic and political conditions in Europe during the first half of the 20th century and including the Nazi attitude toward the Jews and the factual story of Hitler Holocaust.

JACLers now have an opportunity to provide school libraries with a factual story of Evacuation through Capt. Allan Bosworth's "America's Concentration Camps", which teachers may assign as collateral reading. And a school library will require more than one copy for classroom. Hence, it was good news to hear that a special rate of five books at $30 for libraries was instituted by JACL this past week.

cern all of us. The intensity for speed tends to take away absolutes, robbing people of what they hold to be sure and true. Standards are being undermined if not openly challenged—like the God is dead theory in theology.

Relating to an experiment in a Korean prisoner of war camp where the Reds pulled out those who had shown internal standards one by one, eventually the group of prisoners fell apart and succumbed to brainwashing. Terrorists in Vietnam have also methodically eliminated the leaders in the villages and towns to take command.

Because of JACL's tradition and the role it has played in its community, it has the capability within its membership to provide the kind of leadership to point out those external properties that are sure and true, such as the basic ideals which the pioneer Issei have stressed, to strive for equal opportunities and human dignity and holding to the Judeo-Christian ethic. JACL should continue its exemplary role, giving meaning to life, direction and purpose.

Though the subject was philosophical, Mr. Hunt's address was scattered with light remarks to keep his audience of near 300 receptive. He was not against change, but for seeing that we, at least, retain our sense of values, virtues and those ideals as expressed in the Japanese American Creed.

The drive back from chapter installation at Sheraton Beach Inn, Huntington Beach, was suspenseful with dense fog enveloping the freeways all the way home but not as treacherous as had been negotiated on surface streets with all those intersections facing the 25-mile stretch. For our passenger Jeffrey Matsui, an ex-islander, it was the foggiest night to date. Even more hazardous, Jeff, would be trek over icy roads at night.

TELEVISION DISSERVICE

JACL's successful efforts to keep an "FBI" episode about a Nisei traitor off television was not wholly appreciated in some circles at that time. Perhaps they may have changed their minds after reading several airlines received anonymous bomb threats the day after NBC-TV dramatized a fictitious plot to bomb an airliner in its two-hour show, "Doomsday Flight" last month. Some days before the program, the Air Line Pilots Assn. had strongly protested it. While it is a madman who would plant a deadly bomb in an airplane, our mass media have an obligation to avoid irresponsible dramatization of such suggestive notions. Responsibility is the only alternative to undesirable censorship. Human lives are at stake.

In JACL's case against ABC-TV's "FBI" episode, human dignity is at stake. Tokyo Topics: Tamotsu Murayama The Nisei in Brazil

TOKYO — Addressing a year-end meeting of Japanese bankers and industrial leaders here, Komito Miyasaka, vice-president of the Nanbei Bank of Sao Paulo, summarized Japanese activities in Brazil. Miyasaka reported there are some 600,000 Japanese in Brazil, whose size is over 23 times as large as Japan. Yukishige Tamura and Susumu Hirata were re-elected last November to the Brazilian federal congress. Both have been decorated by the Japanese government with the Order of the Rising Sun, 3d Class. He also revealed that there are 12 Japanese mayors in Brazil, 10 deputy mayors, 12 municipal council presidents, 200 municipal council members besides 40 college professors and assistant professors.

Japanese farmers produce about 20 pct. of all coffee grown in Brazil and over 30 pct. of cotton. The banker reported there are 10 prominent Nisei newspapermen; some 1,200 teachers in primary and secondary schools; 1,500 in civil service including a chief tax officer, 20 tax officers and five civil engineering directors. There are five judges, two district attorneys, 45 police officers. There are some 350 officers in the Brazilian army including one colonel, and 10 officers in the navy, including two lieutenant commanders. In the professional ranks are some 650 dentists, 450 physicians, 450 lawyers, 200 bachelors of literature, two movie directors, 10 painters and three musicians.

Miyasaka predicted the Japanese bank will be among the big financial leaders in the future. The Japanese are also embarked on a big cultural movement in Brazil. "There is no racial discrimination in Brazil," he concluded. "One of these days, a Nisei may become president of Brazil," he stated confidently.

'Say—Was I on trial or were YOU on trial?'

Letters from Our Readers

JACL, "GO FOR BROKE!"

Editor: I am sure that any moral support given to encourage the JACL's involvement in political and particularly civil rights matters, is most welcome, even from one who isn't a member.

I couldn't agree less with Rev. Shinto's feelings that the JACL should keep its nose out of political and civil rights matters, and to assume the role of a glorified social club! It would be a tragic mistake to assume JACL's job has been done, that it can be of no further service. Quite the contrary, for I can think of organization more qualified to assist in the civil rights fight.

The mass Evacuation of all persons of Japanese ancestry, citizens and aliens alike, from the West Coast, has become a shameful chapter in our country's history. What group of people is in a better position to understand the Negro's plight?

I am aware that there are JA's whose attitude reflects indifference or caution about getting involved in this fight. Perhaps it is a caution born of experience, an attitude which says, "Well, we proved ourselves, we fought double, now let's see how well the Negro can do!" However, these people would do well to remember that although they proved themselves on the battlefield as well as at home, there were many non-Japanese who also fought for them! People without whose help their acceptance back into the very society that rejected them on the basis of their ancestry, would perhaps never have been possible!

It has been proved once, and should be a future warning, that that historical document called the Constitution, is the protector of a person's rights, or little more than a scrap of paper, whose words make a mockery of the principles upon which this country was founded.

Although the civil rights movement concerns the Negro personally, he should not have to fight his battle alone, it is the responsibility of every American, regardless of origin to help in every way possible.

So I say to the JACL, "Go For Broke" regardless of the public or private criticisms directed toward your future involvements in political and civil rights affairs!

PRESS COMMENTS:

Cows Smell Better

BY GEORGE YOSHINAGA
Los Angeles

Gardena that lovable little hamlet which I call home, which tolerates gambling within its city limits and the topless in almost every bar, got rid of the bottomless.

They did it by court order. The legal order nailed shut the coffin of Jake Englesman's business, which happens to be a dairy. The court order told Englesman to take his cows elsewhere because bovine life is no longer allowed in Studsville.

Now, nobody will be able to call Gardena cowtown. What bothers me about the situation is that now the people who hollered the loudest and put their signatures on the petitions to get rid of dairy operations in Gardena, will complain the most about the cost of milk in the supermarkets.

As a head man of a tribe of five which consumes gallons of milk a week, the dairy owned by Englesman was an economical oasis for me.

Now I will have to get my supply from the dairy case at the supermarket at a slightly higher price.

And for what? The complainers said the cows gave off an offensive odor.

This is funny. People Stink, Too

I don't see any petitions being circulated against people. And we know many of them stink too.

Just look at all the money being spent on TV commercials for deodorants and you get an idea of what I mean.

People, I don't think, should expect cows to stink like anything but cows.

The same people who complained about the odor says cows draw flies.

I've seen more flies buzzing around the garbage can behind a restaurant than I have seen at the dairy.

In fact, I think that there are hundreds of more places in Gardena that have more flies than a dairy.

For example the last time I had dinner at the card club restaurant I noticed a fly on my bread plate.

But, to be realistic about it, that fly had a stronger lobby in the city council than the fly at the dairy.

Culture Over Cows

The crowning point of the entire issue can be found in the statement of Madeline racey, the manager of the Gardena Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Asked what she thought about Gardena's new move to rid itself of its cowtown stigma, she replied: "The chamber took no stand in the matter so I must remain neutral. But I'm sure you would like to know of our master plan to take advantage of the community's rich Japanese culture—23 percent of our population is of Japanese descent, you know."

We are being led to believe, I suppose by her statement that the cows have run second best to Japanese culture.

As a resident of the city—belonging to the 23 percent of the city's Japanese population, I would just as soon have my milk at reduced rates than a mass movement to take advantage of the "Japanese culture."

Let's face it. The card clubs in the city gives Gardena a worse stigma to live down than the title of cowtown.

Card Clubs Prettier

What is meant here is that a person driving into Gardena can not do so without passing a card club.

The same person would never be aware that Gardena has a dairy within its city limits even if the wind was blowing from the general direction of South Normandie Blvd. on which the noble steeds stand in fenced yards munching on hay.

The card clubs, with its bright lights and neon look much prettier to be sure, but some of the riff-raffs that stagger out of the buildings run a poor second to the cows. I mean I would rather have my kids walk in front of the dairy than in front of the card club.
