National JACL President

It is indeed very encouraging to read about JACL chapters getting together with other Asian groups to share concerns and experiences. Highlight of the recent Eastern District Council meeting, hosted by the New York chapter, was a panel that brought together representatives of JACL, Asian American

Joint Activities

Leans for Action (AAA), and Asians on the Alert (AaA). Working together as organizations will help develop an essential power base to influence the need for change in our human services delivery systems to meet the personal, social, and economic needs unique to Asian Americans. The Asian American Council of Greater Philadelphia reported in its recently initiated quarterly newsletter, AACTION, the completion of an extensive study of Chinatown's health problems. The next study will be on housing and social needs of the city's Filipino senior citizens. The issue also contained an article on the history of Japanese Americans in Philadelphia.

For further information about the Council, write to Masahiro Jung, President, AAGP, 1006 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19107. In the State of Washington, the Asian American Advisory Council recently discussed with the Governor its full report on "Discrimination Against Asians". The report details how appropriate existing agencies can help alleviate problems of discrimination. The Council newsletter also noted that Handbook for Asian American speakers will be ready for publication very shortly. The Council's Media Task Force reported that it received apologies from the Proctor and Gamble and the Gillette companies for derogatory ads on TV and in magazines.

For further information, write to Mich Matsudaira, Executive Director, AAC, 325 Insurance Building, Olympia, Wash. 98504.

There are undoubtedly many JACL chapters which are participating in Asian American programs or have joined in alliance or coalition on issues of common concern. It would be appreciated if such programs were known so that we may share the knowledge through this column. Please drop me a note.

Most of us at one time or another have found ourselves in new and more serious difficulties as a result of having tried to get ourselves out of another difficulty. That is, a remedy may turn out to be worse than the illness. Sometimes this results from the notion that we should do something, even if it's wrong, when action seems needed. At other times, the action needed seems so obvious that we single-minded plow ahead without considering the possible consequences. Or worse yet, some people, aware that a solution to their problem may cause new problems for others, simply don't give a damn about the others as long as their own problem is resolved.

I'm not sure what has motivated the sponsors and proponents of the Congressional bill, HR 982, passed by the House on May 3, 1973, and now before the Senate (See last week's PC). The bill is ostensibly intended to cope with a reportedly growing problem of job competition by an estimated million or more "illegal aliens" and also to eliminate or prevent the exploitation of illegal aliens by unscrupulous employers.

Perhaps the situation is serious enough that a new law is needed. However, the proposed remedy contained in HR 982, even if it were to work and fulfill the stated intent, would do violence to our basic human and civil rights. To carry out its intent, HR 982 would make it unlawful for an employer knowingly to employ aliens who have not been lawfully admitted into the United States for permanent residence or who otherwise are not entitled under the law to work while in the United States.

Thus all employers wishing to avoid possible violation of the law and subsequent prosecution would be required to make a positive effort to as-

COMEDIAN HOPE APOLOGIZES FOR JAMBOREE JOKE

JACLer Satisfied But Will Continue to Keep Watch

SEATTLE — Comedian Bob Hope has apologized (Aug. 17) through his public relations director Ward Grant, for using the term "Jap" in a joke at the recent national Boy Scout Jamboree at Idaho's Farragut State Park.

Hope's apology took the form of a letter to Ben Nakagawa, president of Seattle JACL chapter and Seattle Scout Troop 53, sponsored by the Japanese Baptist Church.

The comedian's letter was issued after public protest from Nakagawa, a Seattle elementary school principal, and a call for apologies from the National Headquarters of the Japanese American Citizens League.

Alden Barber, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America, told The Post-Intelligencer yesterday that he wrote to Hope Aug. 13, informing him of controversy surrounding the joke.

Joke Verified

Hope's joke, verified in a tape recording made by Edmonds Boy Scout Don Winder, went: "A Japanese fellow went to an eye doctor. The eye doctor said: 'You have a cataract.' The Jap says, 'No, I have a Rincoon Contender'."

(PNWDC Gov. James Watanabe in Spokane reported Hope was booed by the small contingent of Saneis from Seattle and Hawaii after the joke was told, but it apparently had little impact before a crowd of 27,000.)

"I've talked with Mr. Hope about this," Grant said, "and he is definitely concerned."

"Mr. Hope made the point that if offense was given at the remark—and it certainly wasn't intended as cause of offense—then an apology was certainly in order. I asked him about a letter, and he said, 'By all means!'"

In his letter on behalf of the comedian, Grant wrote: "My personal regret is that this one unfortunate incident overshadows the heartfelt tribute extended to the Boy Scouts by Mr. Hope."

Regrets by Mr. Hope

Grant reported that in addition to apologizing to Nakagawa and the Scouts of Troop 53, his letter expressed regrets at any offense to the Japanese American community.

Reached at his home Nakagawa expressed satisfaction with Hope's apology.

"But we'll also be watching what his actions say," added Makio Nakagawa, wife of the JACL leader.

Samoans in Hawaii organize SAMOA to dispel negative ethnic stereotype

HONOLULU — Samoans concerned about their negative stereotype have formed the Samoan Action Movement of America (SAMOA) to better their image, especially with police, organizers Bob Apisa and Clarence Scanlan said this past week.

Apisa, 28, is the 1964 Farrington High graduate who went on to Michigan State and named All-American football player for two years; while Scanlan, an Iolani School graduate is now a detective with the Honolulu Police Dept.

Both were born in Samoa but moved to Hawaii as youth and feel they know some of the cultural differences that arise between Samoans and other ethnic groups here. Some police, they added, regarded Samoans as being synonymous with "trouble" and many people have come to infer Samoans are "natural bent" for crime and violence. "We're out to prove these "bad" Samoans are different and exceptions to the rule," Apisa said. "We want to show Samoans are honest, hard-working, intelligent and kind-hearted people." Scanlan is temporary chairman of the group.

Should there be JACL guidelines on health plans?

WASHINGTON — To ascertain whether sufficient consensus exists to establish National JACL guidelines regarding hospital-medical insurance plans, Shigeki Sugiyama, national president-elect, is expecting a response from the eight district governors this week.

Aware that health insurance programs sponsored by the districts and chapters is "a very valuable service which JACL can and should provide its members," Sugiyama does not believe a national JACL plan is feasible or practicable at this time.

"My concern is that no individual JACL member ever gets hurt as a result of uncontrolled factors or vested interests," Sugiyama said. He noted National JACL staff is constantly involved trying to rectify insurance problems and gets frequently blamed when, technically, JACL staff is not directly involved.

Blue Cross was the first group subscribed to by several chapters in Northern California. Subsequently, Calif. Blue Shield was contracted by the Northern California-Western Nevada District Council to assist the remaining chapters in the district.

The Blue Shield plan, since then, has been adopted by other JACL district councils. In Central California and Pacific Southwest Districts, Capitol Life provided hospitalization and major medical benefits for several years till the plan was terminated. Northern California District's Blue Shield plan was then contracted. Some PSW chapters also provide an independent program, initiated by the San Fernando Valley JACL.

MISS NISEI 1973 — Cheryl Kawakami, 22, representing Citrus Valley Optimists, was selected Miss Nisei Week for 1973 at the recently opening Hyatt Regency Hotel in downtown L.A. A dental hygiene graduate from USC, she is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Kawakami of West Covina.

Denver wants tougher anti-discrimination law

DENVER, Colo.—Minoru Yasui, director of the Commission on Community Relations, said he was "strongly in favor" of the city council bill to transfer the authority for enforcing the anti-discrimination regulations on community relations to the Dept. of Public Works.

The bill would provide an "affirmative action" officer to oversee contracts involving city funds and to report cases of discrimination to the public works manager.

Bannai enters his first bills in State Assembly

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Assemblyman Paul T. Bannai, (R-Gardena), under the urging of Dr. Thomas Noguchi, Los Angeles county coroner, has introduced AB 2623 to update Section 27491.25 of the California Government Code.

The bill would allow the Coroner's office, under certain conditions, following accidents involving persons driving, riding in, or being struck by a motor vehicle to be examined to determine amphetamine derivative content, if any, in the body, in addition to the alcoholic and barbituric derivative contents.

Assemblyman Bannai is also co-author of AB 2607, which allows a County Board of Supervisors to allocate and appropriate any funds received under the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, to establish, maintain and purchase property for the County free library.

At the present time, despite the fact that libraries are considered "priority expenditures" under the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act, funds received under the Act are considered general funds, which can not be spent for the support of the County free library except for limited purposes.

Youth Seminar

Assemblyman Bannai recently addressed the second annual Civitan International Youth Seminar Aug. 12-17 at Sacramento State University.

The gathering gave high school students the opportunity to discuss Federal, State and Local Government with State Officials. Assemblyman Bannai discussed "The Legislative System — Assemblyman."

He provided the students with information pertaining to legislative procedure within the Assembly.

He also addressed a group of fifty visiting Japanese citizens from Ukyo-ku, Kyoto. He presented them with literature on California Government and provided them with information concerning California.

American still 'good, great nation': Inouye

HONOLULU — Sen. Daniel Inouye was presented the American Legion's annual National Commander's Award "for outstanding record of citizenship, patriotism and public service to the United States of America" after his address Aug. 17 before the Legion's National Americanism Commission.

That despite the tragedy of Watergate and the many problems facing the nation, Sen. Inouye declared he was proud to live in the U.S. "Ours is not a sick nation. It is an aggressive nation confronting its problems."

He said he wanted to try "to balance the books a little, because even with all its ills and shortcomings, this is my country. And my country is a good and great one."

He didn't think discussions on presidential privilege and confidentiality were important, compared with whether or not the nation and the world believes Mr. Nixon about Watergate.

"I'm personally convinced the President was innocent of any direct involvement in Watergate," Sen. Inouye said, but "if the President didn't know about it, he should have." He was also pleased to hear Mr. Nixon agree there were improprieties in the presidential election campaign.

"One small piece of tape, a few hundred feet" could bring an end to "this misery for all of us," Sen. Inouye continued.

On to Hilo

Sen. Inouye the next day (Aug. 16) addressed more than 500 Big Island Democrats at Hilo, telling them he was distressed by party leaders saying the Watergate scandal will be a Democratic key to victories in 1974 and 1976.

"This utter foolishness may lead to wholesale changes" of office holders from both political parties, he warned. The dinner was the biggest political fund-raising event on the Big Island in several years.

He reminded the Watergate was "not a partisan episode but a national tragedy with one message that I am hearing loud and clear: People are bitter and frustrated and in a mood to throw the rascals out and I am included."

'NISEI' PRESENTED—National JACL President Henry Tanaka presents both the Japanese and English versions of Bill Hosokawa's "Nisei: the Quiet Americans" to visiting Japanese prime minister Kakuei Tanaka at Chicago earlier this month.

WATERGATE NOTWITHSTANDING Nixon asks nation to look ahead

WAILUKU, Maui—A key figure in the Senate Watergate hearings, Sen. Inouye sat in a friend's house here Aug. 15 to hear President Nixon reassert his innocence of the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

The President was asking his countrymen to join him in looking forward, not backward, and focus once more, on national goals. He said he believed in clearing up the past but is not yet willing to disclose the contents of the White House tapes, arguing for "confidentiality" of the White House.

Sen. Inouye was not too satisfied with the speech after watching it in the home of State Sen. Toshio Anai. (Photos of Inouye watching TV as the President was speaking were nationally circulated.)

'Implicating'

Referring to Mr. Nixon's comment about persons being absorbed in implicating the President, Sen. Inouye said: "If he means the Committee, I hope he will call on us and discuss it," reiterating that he and his colleagues have no interest in "implicating" the President.

The Hawaii Democrat was more concerned about the welfare of the nation, its people and economy. They are all suffering, he said, because of doubts about Nixon's involvement in Watergate. "There are ways of clearing himself but for some reason he doesn't choose to do that," Sen. Inouye continued, referring to the White House tapes. "This is a judgment that is affecting everything."

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), who has been the chief Republican hair-shirt on Watergate, could have given Mr. Nixon a boost with a laudatory critique but said his speech "did not add anything to his other speeches that would tend to divert suspicion from him."

Disappointment

Sen. Inouye's first reaction to the President's speech was one of disappointment in not hearing the tape-recorded conversations about Watergate would be released "for the welfare of the nation." He didn't think discussions on presidential privilege and confidentiality were important, compared with whether or not the nation and the world believes Mr. Nixon about Watergate.

He reminded the Watergate was "not a partisan episode but a national tragedy with one message that I am hearing loud and clear: People are bitter and frustrated and in a mood to throw the rascals out and I am included."

The senator said people are demanding that America return to a nation of laws and not of man "whether it's the President or a welfare recipient."

He also hoped the President's speech would "put us out of business" as he revealed he doesn't relish the assignment. "There is no enjoyment. This is a painful thing."

Sen. Inouye said he hopes the Supreme Court will not duck the question of the tapes. Such a decision would be appropriate on the eve of America's 200th birthday. However, he said, the Watergate committee can meet its legal mandate without the tapes.

Second Phase

After the first phase of the Senate hearings on Watergate is completed about 10 days after the hearings are resumed around Sept. 10, Sen. Inouye expects finances and the "gray area of dirty tricks and sabotage" to become the second phase.

The committee's ultimate responsibility, he said, is to propose legislation to curb election abuses, such as limiting cash contributions, tighter campaign disclosures on financing and blunting what he repeatedly referred to as "dirty tricks."

The senator cut short his Hawaii visit to return to Washington (Aug. 21) to investigate charges that one of the committee staff members had used wiretaps to obtain evidence.

ENCOURAGED—In a brief stopover at the Los Angeles International Airport, George Takei (left) was offered warm encouragement in his bid for 10th City Councilman seat by Sen. Daniel Inouye.

President Nixon's speech (Aug. 15) showed that Sen. Dan Inouye (84% favorable) rated even higher than Watergate committee chairman Sen. Sam Ervin (81%) and its vice-chairman Sen. Howard Baker (78%).

The Gallup Poll asked the person to rate the seven senators on a 10-point attitude scale.

In the Lou Harris poll of Aug. 2, Sen. Inouye ranked No. 3 behind Sens. Ervin and Baker on the question of how they were handling the situation.

LOS ANGELES — In a brief stopover here Aug. 21, Sen. Dan Inouye met with 10th City Councilman candidate George Takei and gave him warm encouragement.

Declaring he doesn't put much faith in endorsements, the senator came up with his seven "C's" which he said should make up the criteria for any political candidate.

Sen. Inouye, who became well acquainted with Takei when both were official delegates to the National Democratic Convention in Miami last year, said that in his opinion Takei had all of the seven qualities: Clean, concerned, compassionate, courage, capable, credit to his profession and conscientious.

The Seven 'C's'

"George is politically clean," Sen. Inouye remarked, "by demonstrating his concern." He is not running to add another plaque on his wall.

"He is compassionate. People who find it impossible to shed a tear for the impoverished, the sick, have no place in politics. Our business is people."

Takei has demonstrated his courage by taking the then unpopular anti-war stand a few years ago when it took a lot of guts to do so, Sen. Inouye continued.

"I don't see any failures in George's record. He has earned the respect of his peers in his profession. A man who is successful in his chosen field has abilities that will make him a success in any field. He is a credit to his profession."

It took the busy senator some time to recall the seventh "C," but he did just before boarding a flight for Portland where he addressed a Democratic fund-raiser.

The Inouye-Takei meeting was arranged by George Izumi, finance manager, and it took place at the TWA VIP lounge. Izumi said the senator made a special stopover in Los Angeles from Washington.

Teacher insults CL guest speaker

(Special to The Pacific Citizen)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—The insolent attack by a high school teacher against a Saneis, invited to address his history class on "Japanese American Life in America," was revealed in a protest lodged by Tom Sutow, Salt Lake JACL president.

Though the particulars of the incident, the school and the name of the teacher are not mentioned, Sutow in a front-page statement in the chapter newsletter for the month of August declared, "What has transpired illustrates vividly the necessity of JACL more than ever."

It appears Ron Aramaki, Univ. of Utah student, was relating the WW2 experience of Japanese Americans in the detention centers and of the discrimination centered against Japanese.

Teacher Interrupts

The teacher interrupted the Saneis speaker continually with shouts of, "How about Pearl Harbor, the Atomic Bomb, Japan's industry, size of Japan, Japan's population, etc."—all irrelevant to the speaker's topic.

Finally, Aramaki had to tell him he was not up there to defend Japan, that he was an American and his only purpose was to explain the treatment received by Americans of Japanese ancestry in this country during that period.

"Such a demonstration by an educator in front of his class toward his guest speaker is inexcusable," Sutow declared. "I feel that it should be brought to the attention of JACL members everywhere."

Sutow found it ironic that this happened in Salt Lake City where emphasis for white racism should be less than anywhere else.

National Action Asked

He has asked the National JACL Board to reiterate its basic policy of promoting and protecting the welfare of persons of Japanese ancestry in America through an active public relations program. "We must continue to maintain vigilance at all times because once public opinion is aroused, it becomes an unstoppable force," he said.

Sutow recalled public opinion had reached hysterical heights in delivering a vulnerable blow against Japanese on the west coast in early 1942 that culminated in the Evacuation. JACL was still in its infancy and only a token resistance was put up, but from the ashes of that tragedy has come a National JACL organization dedicated to uphold the rights of not only the 600,000 Americans of Japanese ancestry but working with other groups to preserve the freedoms of all Americans for all time, Sutow said.

JACL-AA Center

Aramaki mans the JACL-Asian American Center on the Univ. of Utah campus (Rm. 1052, Annex Bldg., 581-5009) on a full-time basis as a UYA (University Year of Action) volunteer. The only federally-funded project of its kind, Aramaki is assisting the JACL chapters in the area development programs.

The office also serves as a research center, bookstore and coffee house.

Other minority groups are similarly serviced through their respective offices.

SHOSUKE SASAKI Pioneer in effort to eliminate use of 'Jap' now boosted for top post in FCC

NEW YORK — The name of Shosuke Sasaki, 61, now a Seattle resident, has been recommended by various Asian American organizations to a vacancy which will occur soon with the Federal Communications Commission.

The hope is that with an Asian sitting on the commission, the stereotypes which continue to appear on television, particularly Asian stereotypes, will be eliminated, according to Asian American organizations to a vacancy which will occur soon with the Federal Communications Commission.

The hope is that with an Asian sitting on the commission, the stereotypes which continue to appear on television, particularly Asian stereotypes, will be eliminated, according to Asian American organizations to a vacancy which will occur soon with the Federal Communications Commission.

Sasaki, then with the publishing house of Standard and Poor's, was a New York local member of the American Newspaper Guild. In 1949 he was aware of Guild policy against use of derogatory terms by newspapers when writing of other races and nationalities.

None of the papers in New York were using such terms as "Nigger," "wop," "Chink," he recalled, but the term "Jap" was freely used. He saw no reason why the Japanese alone should be subjected to such humiliation.

Action by 1952

The matter was not taken up by the Guild's executive committee until Sasaki's friend, Edward K. Hassett, became a member of that body in 1951, and had the question placed on the committee agenda in January, 1952.

At the February meeting, the resolution, based upon Sasaki's letter, was passed and sent to all New York publishers.

The Guild's action was fully covered by the Pacific Citizen and many JACL chapters applauded the Guild for its stand. The local 442nd Association also gave Sasaki full support.

But the resolution was not as effective as Sasaki had hoped as newspapers continued to use the epithet as freely as ever. Sasaki mounted a letter-writing campaign to the offending papers and to the worst offenders, protests were sent by the New York JACL with all board members signing the letter.

In July, at the national American Newspaper Guild convention in Portland, Arthur Rosenstock, New York local's delegate and first vice-president, presented the Sasaki resolution, steering it through committee and onto the convention floor where it was passed.

Personal Letters Continue

Sasaki recalled the passage of the resolution at Portland did not bring immediate and conclusive results. Though its appearance began to dwindle, it was by no means completely stopped and Sasaki continued to write his personal letters of protest.

Much of his time at home in 1952 was spent in going over the newspapers, clipping out offending sections and writing letters to editors and publishers. Replies varied all the way from immediate agreement to stop use of the term, "Jap," to angry accusations that he was a trouble maker. To some, he had written repeatedly.

By the end of 1952, Sasaki felt the American Newspaper Guild had done all that it could reasonably be expected and the matter became a responsibility of such Nisei groups as JACL.

Tough Line

Sasaki also said there was from the start some opposition from certain Issei and Nisei against his strong anti-Communist line of reasoning in his approach to editors and publishers. They said he was being "too tough."

The concluding paragraph of his letter to Guild executive committee read: "The cooperation of the United States and Japan is urgently needed if they are to preserve their independence against Soviet encroachments and propaganda. Since most publishers seem determined to continue an unnecessary source of ill will which the Communists are effectively using against America, I ask that the Newspaper Guild take action to stop this giving aid and comfort to the Soviet Union."

But Sasaki refused the "soft" or pleading type as suggested for, he said, such a method would be futile and unsuited to his dignity and self-respect as a person who hailed from Yamaguchi, Japan.

Timidity of some New York JACLers to push hard in this campaign resulted in Sasaki resigning from the chapter in disgust. He subsequently resigned.

From the Frying Pan

Los Angeles, Calif.

TIME OF REUNION—As the appointed hour nears one recent Saturday evening, they began to assemble as if drawn by mysterious, invisible cords. The gathering place was the Princess Louise, an elderly Canadian cruise ship tied up in San Pedro harbor as a floating restaurant. They came from distant places—George Kinoshita from Chicago, Kay Kushino from Minneapolis, Kara Matsushita Kondo from Yakima, Wash. There was a contingent from the Bay Area led by Haruo Imura of Alameda, including Michi Onuma from San Francisco, Mason Funabiki of Palo Alto and Leroy Takaichi of San Jose.

But most of them were from Southern California, and perhaps it was not strange that many, although they lived in close proximity of each other, had not seen their friends for years or even decades.

What had brought them all together was a reunion of the young men and women who had worked on the staff of the Sentinel, the weekly newspaper published at the Heart Mountain (Wyo.) War Relocation Center. There were also a few others—people who worked with or close to the Reports Department into which the Sentinel fell, assorted spouses, a few friends.

The reunion was the inspiration of Florence Funakoshi Uba who, with the help of a small committee, pulled all the loose ends together. Many who attended hadn't seen each other since they left Heart Mountain—30 years ago. But for most time had been kind and faces were familiar. "Hey, I know you," we heard over and over, "don't tell me your name, it's on the tip of my tongue..."

Florence Uba had worked hard to put people she thought would be compatible together at each table, but she needn't have worried. Everyone, it seemed, had recollections to relate. There was a lot of catching up to do about what had happened since Heart Mountain days so it is unlikely that anyone even noticed the quality of the food.

George Yoshinaga, who joined the Sentinel staff as a sports writer fresh out of Heart Mountain High School, took over as master of ceremonies and among others, Imura and Kats Hirooka Kunitugu, now English editor of the Kashu Mainichi of Los Angeles, spoke. And so a good time was had by all many were reluctant to go home when it was all over.

Perhaps it is strange that this group of people—more than 60 including spouses—who shared the bitter experience of the Evacuation should find pleasure in reunion, recalling camp days and reliving the fun that made the bitterness bearable. But it is not strange when one understands the Sentinel which was largely the creation of a remarkably compassionate man named Vaughn Mechau. As a working newspaperman, he understood the part a news organ could play in molding a community together. And so, against not inconsiderable opposition from the administrators, he as a WRA reports officer helped the evacuees found the newspaper.

The Sentinel, in addition to publishing the news, contributed mightily to the building and sustaining of community morale. It gave voice to the evacuees' frustrations and aspirations; it struck back at the evacuees' oppressors, demanded correction of injustices, and in the best newspaper tradition, helped to create a better community under the worst possible circumstances.

The Sentinel's staff, most of whom had only limited journalistic training, were at the heart of this effort. They were proud of their product and proud of the part they had in creating it. There were other camp newspapers that played similarly distinguished roles. But the people who worked on the Sentinel will tell you there never was one to rival it, and that's why the reunion made sense and turned out to be such a rousing success.

Gerontology, Medically Speaking

By JAMES M. WATANABE
PNWDC Governor

Spokane
For the past six months we have heard much about the JACL Gerontology Project. From the many articles it seems that gerontology means different things to different people.

GERONTOLOGY—The scientific study of the problems of aging in all their aspects—clinical, biological, historical, and sociological. (Dorland's Medical Dictionary).

By this definition, it seems that much of the discussions and arguments presented are but a segment of the overall picture. The many services offered by volunteer Asian American organizations are highly commendable and very necessary for the wellbeing of our elderly. There are, however, other facets which must be studied and explored.

Over the past 15 years I have noted that some individuals with the clinical diagnoses of senile dementia and chronic brain syndrome have fairly good cerebral vessels when examined at autopsy. In some cases, therefore, this condition may very well be reversible and the etiology of the condition was not vascular in origin. I have also noted that many aged patients even in their 80's who had died of other causes had good cerebral and coronary vessels, i.e. they were physiologically much younger than chronological.

There has not been any major breakthrough in the field of gerontology to my knowledge in regards to the knowledge and ability to postpone the aging processes for 10 to 20 years or more.

However, many killer diseases are being studied. Research to cure or reverse the general deterioration of the central nervous system are being done.

The end result would be that millions will live longer and healthier lives. Many will continue to work or embark on new careers; some may even go to college. The new saying may very well be "Life begins at 65." Even at the present time many elderly have enjoyed the fruits of these research and knowledge. The only trouble is the aged minority people have not benefited as much by this knowledge. I'm sure we all know of Issei of advanced years who are in excellent health and sound mind. Some are in occupations such as barbering which enable them to continue their occupation despite their advanced age. Some who had worked for others, especially in heavy manual labor, cannot or were not allowed to work beyond a certain age. It seems many are marking time awaiting death. I'm sure all of us have heard of retirees who died shortly after retiring possibly because after a lifetime of work they did not have the stimulus to lead

Utah sends first exchange student group to Nagoya

By ALICE KASAI

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—During the past decade, over 100 students from Nagoya University have attended the summer school at Univ. of Utah.

Another group of 12, ranging in age of 20 to 24, were welcomed in early June and sent off on a month's tour of eastern U.S. Before returning to Japan, they were feled by the local Japanese community at Jordan Park International Peace Gardens Aug. 7 and guests of Gov. and Mrs. Calvin Rampton with dinner at their residence Aug. 11.

For the first time, a group of Univ. of Utah exchange students will spend a month at the Univ. of Nagoya. Each has been provided a $500 travel scholarship financed by local firms and touring and housing arrangements in Japan are being coordinated by Nagoya University and a radio network.

Among the 10 are two Sansei, Steve Kido and Allen Muraki, both Mt. Olympus Jr. JACLers. Kido has graduated in history while Muraki is a senior in chemistry. This is their first overseas travel. They left Aug. 29 and are scheduled to return Sept. 28.

JACL donates to city water fountain

FREMONT, Calif.—The Fremont JACL board of directors voted to donate $530 to the City of Fremont to complete its water fountain located in front of the city hall.

Two other nonprofit organizations had contributed and the city could not proceed to complete the fountain without funds.

The chapter board voted to donate the balance of the necessary costs to have the fountain completed immediately.

It's worth taking into consideration that our singular efforts and achievements can be doubled if both the Juniors and Seniors start working together to find new approaches, share ideas and problems and provide support as each explores new alternatives.

Some articles have stated there have been enough studies on the elderly and we should concentrate on services.

I agree that services are necessary but we also need much more studies. For example, Seattle wanted to put up a domed stadium adjacent to the International District where many elderly low income Asian elderly lived. Despite much protest by many organizations the stadium is being built.

If there were documented studies and knowledge on the impact of such a project on the Asian elderly perhaps a new site may have been chosen. We do not know if Asians are fully utilizing the medical and sociologic services available.

We also have no hard data on the deleterious effects of these deficiencies, or how widespread it is. Some larger cities may have some statistics, etc., but what about those living in Kettle Falls, Wash.?

Many Nisei are now in their 60's. Most likely the needs are different from the Issei, but many will be in need of help. Does anyone know what the needs are or what statistics are available?

In my opinion it seems the Issei took discrimination more easily or gracefully than the Nisei. I remember many Nisei seething with anger over acts of discrimination or insensitivity against them.

Many Issei would caution us by saying, "Don't let it get to you. Continue to work and study hard and things will be better in the future."

The cumulative effect of such trauma against the psyche can be quite devastating.

Will the Nisei be in need of mental health programs? It has been said that the Nisei are well off financially. Is that really true? How many low income Nisei are there? Will they be in need of low income housing or retraining for a new career?

We have an awful long road ahead of us. I hope the JACL Gerontology Project can get off the ground for the benefit of all of us and not be bogged down by internecine quarrels. We've got too much to lose.

70 volunteers service Issei-Nisei health day

Approximately 70 volunteers helped out May 22 when Sacramento JACL held its Issei-Nisei Health and Social Services Day. It was reported this month by Brian Matsumoto, special projects chairman, who added that 178 senior citizens responded.

The results of medical screening have all been given to the individuals as well as their stated doctors, Matsumoto said.

He also acknowledged the many hours given by volunteers to preparing the special project and wanted them to know how appreciative were the many citizens who benefited from his service.

RECORD JACL MEMBERSHIP ASSURED FOR 1973: 26,000 AS OF JUNE 30

SAN FRANCISCO—A record JACL membership total seems assured for 1973 when the official totals are posted for the year, surpassing the all-time high reached in 1972.

David Ushio, National JACL executive director, had said in April that he expected a new high total when all the figures are in.

National Headquarters' half year membership report showed that 26,115 members were fully paid as of June 30. This was 95.1 of last year's record total membership of 27,457.

With a number of 1000 Club memberships due to be added as they fall due, the official total is well over the 27,000 mark. Dues for the 1000 Club have been computed on a calendar basis instead of annual basis.

The Pacific Northwest District Council went over the top this year with 1,697 members as compared to 1,625 in 1972. Four of the eight chapters exceeded their 1972 totals—Columbia Basin, Gresham-Troutdale, Puyallup Valley and Portland, the membership bulletin showed.

Mountain Plains District Council was next with 99 percent and Central California third with 98 percent. Clovis, Delano, Selma and Tulare County chapters topped their previous year's totals.

The Northern California-Western Nevada area remained the largest in the national organization, against topping the 10,000 mark. It signed up 957 percent of last year's 10,978 with 10,508 to date.

Eleven of the 27 chapters in the district went over their 1972 totals, while San Francisco remained the "ichiban" membership chapter in the country with 1,348.

The 11 chapters are Alameda, Berkeley, Eden Township, Florin, Gilroy, Marysville, Salinas Valley, Sequoia, Sonoma, West Valley and Reno.

The Pacific Southwest District Council, which added two new chapters since last year—South Bay and Metropolitan Los Angeles—now has 91.1 percent of its 1972 total with 7,684 of 7,992.

The Intermountain District Council, which also added a chapter this year—Wasatch Front North—now has 93.5 percent with 1,167 of 1,247 last year.

Eastern has 86.5 percent with 876 of 1,012 members signed up and Midwest with sure that the workers they hire are not "illegal aliens" or other non-citizens not entitled to work while in the United States.

To facilitate making the necessary inquiry, the law would permit a signed statement (obtained from an employee and which attests to his being a citizen, a permanent resident alien, or an alien authorized to work), to serve as prima facie evidence of having made a bona fide inquiry.

We are well aware that, if passed, the legislation would have greatest impact on employers in the border States and on particular groups of people who "look foreign" or speak with a foreign accent.

But besides the valid arguments that the legislation provides another means and justification for carrying out covert discriminatory employment practices against certain ethnic and racial groups, particularly Asians, Chicanos and Mexicans, and that it will result in humiliating and demeaning questioning of persons of these groups when seeking employment, the requirements of the legislation are contrary to all fundamental concepts of justice and equality.

No law should allow, let alone require, any employer to make a judgment as to who is entitled to work.

Nor should any person have to prove or attest to his entitlement to work.

Every person in these United States capable and desirous of working has a basic right to work and there can be no justification for allowing or requiring that this right be questioned or further justified.

This piece of legislation is particularly abhorrent in that its encroachment on the rights of all Americans would be directed in particular against recognizable groups on the basis of their racial or ethnic appearance.

If the problem to which this

83.4 percent on 2,271 out of 2,658 again members.

Prospects of new JACL chapters in Ohio, one at Toledo and another at Columbus, were also recently voiced by National JACL President Henry Tanaka, Cleveland.

Gardena Valley chapter is now the second largest in the organization with 1,090, edging out San Jose which reported 1,082 members. Also over the 1,000-member mark is West Los Angeles chapter.

Another 604 members were enrolled during the month of July, and San Jose (1,156) overpassed Gardena Valley (1,098) for the No. 2 spot among the 96 chapters.

piece of legislation is supposedly addressed is real and significant, it would seem that there should be other alternatives which would not tamper with our basic rights.

If the taking away of jobs from bona fide residents by "illegal aliens" is a significant concern, the basic solution would appear to be enforcement of existing laws to prevent illegal entry.

If aliens legally admitted but who are not supposed to work while in the U.S. are in fact working and depriving others of needed work, then make sure before they are admitted that they don't need nor intend to work while they are here.

And if some employers are in fact encouraging illegal entry and are subsequently exploiting such illegal entrants, it would appear that existing immigration and labor laws would cover these types of activities.

Certainly, the shotgun approach taken by HR 882 does not provide an acceptable solution to whatever the real problem may be.

Some wrote and wrote letters to express their cherished love for Japan. Their letters (Jagatara correspondence) were delivered by Dutch ships bound for a man-made island named Dejima at Nagasaki where the Dutch were permitted to trade.

Among the letters from Jagatara, the most touching is the one written by a O-haru which ends with that famous passage—"Ara, Nihon koshiya, yukashiyu, mitaya, mitaya." —(Ah my beloved Japan, how I wish to go! I do want to see, to see...)

The letters are full of pathos and sorrows which move the readers to tears. Strangely enough, however, very little is known about O-haru in Japan.

To tell the truth, the above passage is supposed to contain some embellishment made by Joken Nishikawa, the writer of "Nagasaki Yawagusa" (Nagasaki Night-stories), the lonesome feeling of the exiled, all the better, seems to have been given voices by it, though.

It is certain that O-haru, a 15-year-old girl then was expelled with her mother and elder-sister to Jakarta, where they remained to spend said, lonely days.

Who Was She?

Dutch documents are said to reveal the following facts. Her elder sister who married a Japanese of Nagasaki in 1642 died in less than three years after her marriage, which naturally was a great shock to O-haru.

Meanwhile, O-haru herself, when she was 21, married a Dutch youth born in Hirado, Simon Simonsen, on Nov. 29, 1646. Her husband, an East India Company clerk, promoted himself step by step to higher positions. They had four boys and three girls, three of them dying while young.

Her happy marriage and prosperous life was broken by her husband's sudden death in 1672. She spent her last years in bringing up her children, depending upon her husband's legacy. She lived to be 77 or 78, (not certain) but her last days was the picture of loneliness and solitude. She saw her Japanese Dutch friends die one after another.

Her daughter is said to have continued to write letters to Japan for her. However, to her "nansel" grandchildren in Jakarta, Japan was almost far-off land buried into oblivion, which was the saddest blow to her, it seems.

The Cornelia Letters

Among the Japanese Dutch exiled like O-haru was Cornelia. She was the daughter of Dutch officer and a Japanese girl. In her infancy, after her father's death, separated from her mother who remarried a Japanese at Hirado, she was shipped to Jakarta with her step-sister.

Around 1652, she married an East India Company employee. Her happy, well-off married life of 20 years or so was followed, after her beloved husband's death, by an unhappy marriage with a judge.

Unlike her first marriage, the second one was a series of disagreements and disputes. She had ten children, six of them having died early. Her last days were also the image of solitude. Her letters preserved at Hirado describe very vividly how the Japanese were living there, cheering and helping one another in an intimate company.

Bygone Colony

We can imagine how they shared the news from Japan with joy and sorrow. We can see how their thoughts were inserted to tell of their feelings and hope in entrusting gifts to their friends back home. We can hear the elegy of this banished Japanese colony ringing from every line of their letters.

Besides the two letters from Cornelia, a letter from Fuku, a letter from Koshoro, and a fatherless one are all that have been preserved in Hirado. The Jagatara Bumi are taciturn but vivid reports of a bygone Japanese colony, reminding us of an aspect and a type of Japanese emigrants in early times.

Aloha from Hawaii

by Richard Gima

Hawaii Today

Honolulu. The average price of single family dwellings on Oahu sold two weeks ago (on or about the end of July, 1973) was $76,000, according to G. A. Morris, executive v.p. of the Honolulu Board of Realtors. That compares with an average of $65,700 for 1972 as a whole. Condominiums sold for $48,000 an average at the end of July, up from 1972's average of $43,800. (All that we can say is, yes, "Aloha!")

The tight market for mortgage loan money in Hawaii has developed into a squeeze. Savings and loan associations now are quoting 8 1/2 per cent and 9 per cent as their best rates for new home loans. That's up a point or more than it was a year ago, with today's rates matching peaks reached in the 1969-70 money crunch. At least one S&L is reported to have declared a moratorium on new loans. Others have cut back loan maximums to $45,000.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is requesting more federal funds before it can award a contract for demolition of the Waikiki Natatorium. Bids have been submitted, but the lowest estimate of about $1.4 million from Healy Tibbitts Construction Co., exceeded the government's estimate by $221,251. A recent injunction by the federal court in Honolulu blocking the natatorium's destruction was denied when an environmental impact statement prepared by the Corps of Engineers was found adequate.

Lee Blackburn, executive v.p. and general manager of Hawaiian Flour Mills, is predicting that bread and flour prices may increase by as much as 35 per cent by the end of the year because of climbing costs of raw ingredients. Blackburn said that bakeries probably will raise the price on their products within a month in order to remain in operation.

The Hawaii County Planning Dept. has revealed a new policy in zoning actions which is expected to reduce land speculation on the Big Island. Sidney Fuke, deputy director of planning, told the Hawaii County Council that the department is requiring that all applicants seeking new zoning must be the developer. If the successful applicant subsequently sells the land, the use designation reverts to the lower use.

Names in the News

Robert Carson, former administrative assistant to Sen. Hiram Fong, was scheduled to be released from the Allenwood Federal Prison camp, Pa., after serving nine months of an 18-month sentence for conspiracy and perjury. Carson is 66 years old.

Big Island Mayor Shunichi Kimura broke into tears during an

Univ. of Hawaii

Campbell Estate in all probability will seek court approval in Sept. of its plan to give the Univ. of Hawaii 200 acres at Honolulu. The agreement worked out by the estate and the university in March cannot go into effect until the estate gets court approval. Present plans call for opening in temporary quarters with about 300 students in the fall of 1975. Some 230 students took part in Univ. of Hawaii summer commencement exercises Aug. 5 at the university campus. Bachelor's degrees were conferred upon 180 students; 58 received master's degrees, and 12 were awarded their doctorates.

The Univ. of Hawaii will increase its tuition fees, but not until the fall of 1974, it has been announced. A L. Ellingson, dean of students, said an increase is most likely to mean a doubling of tuition over a two-year period, probably at the rate of a 50 per cent increase each of the two years. Ellingson said that the basic figure to be doubled is the present $97.50 a semester. The charge for nonresidents at present is $240 a semester.

Military News

Nearly 600 military civilian employees of military bases on Oahu early in July in order to qualify for a 6.1 per cent increase in pension annuities. Another 121 look early retirement at the Federal Aviation Administration and the Post Service. The cut at the Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard was 248, bringing the shipyard population down to 4,374, lowest since the late 1950s.

Courtroom

Kazuhisa Abe, associate justice of the State Supreme Court, filed suit against Gov. John Burns because he didn't receive the same pay raises which the state recently gave other nonunion employees. Associate justices now are paid $32,670 a year. State Atty. Gen. George P. Ai has appointed Ray Okuma as the new head of the troubled State Organized Crime Unit.

Okuma is deputy attorney general; he will remain at that post. Federal Judge Russell Smith has dismissed Castle Memorial Hospital as a defendant in a suit by neurosurgeon Mark Silver charging negligence because of anti-Semitism. Smith noted that state courts have jurisdiction in the issue and also denied damages to Silver.

Circuit Judge Allen Hawkins has dismissed a challenge to a law permitting police to hold a suspect for 48 hours without bringing charges—although Hawkins agreed that the law involved is of dubious merit.

Benjamin K. Dawson, Jr., 34, has finally met his fate. It took the form of a 10-year sentence in State Prison for passing a forged $135 check. But 2 1/2 years elapsed between the day in Jan., 1971, when Dawson loaded the forged check and the pronouncement of that sentence. He spent 10 months of that period as a refugee from the mainland, even marrying a second wife and fathering a child.

Traffic Fatality

Kaula recorded its third traffic death in a week late Monday, Aug. 13, when Kamekapa Higa, 74, of Kapaia died after his car went out of control and struck a utility pole in Kapaia. Police said Higa apparently had been drinking when his car struck a pole at 12:20 a.m. The death was Kaula's fifth traffic fatality of the year.

Mrs. Will E. (Kleanor) Miyake, 27, died Aug. 12 in a car crash which she was passenger went out of control, hit an embankment and rolled over in the area fronting the old Kaula Fort in Waimae. Mrs. Miyake was a resident of Waimae, Kaula. It was the Garden Island's fourth fatality of the year.

Crime File

U.S. Magistrate Harold Sullivan set bail of $10,000 for Brent Kimo Kaneakua, of Kalaheo, Oahu, who is charged with assaulting Edith Yonekaka, Kapaia postmistress, on Aug. 14 and making off with $13.99. Kaneakua, 20, originally from Hilo, was charged by U.S. Atty. Thomas Young.

Big Island police on Aug. 8 arrested two men who were secretly indicted Aug. 6 by the Hawaii County grand jury. They were Nathan Suganuma, 21, of 495 Laukapu St., Hilo, and Melvin Matsu-moto, 41, of 253 Keawe St., Hilo. Suganuma, a bellhop, was charged with promoting dangerous drugs March 14. He was released on $1,500 bail bond. Matsu-moto, freed on $500 bail, was charged with first degree negligent homicide in the death of another driver in an accident on Mar. 30.

Deaths

Dr. Shunzo Sakamaki, 57, a leading educator among Japanese Americans in Hawaii, died July 19 at Kapiolani Hospital. He retired as dean of the summer session two years ago. Under his guidance, the Univ. of Hawaii built one of the largest and best-known summer programs in the nation.

Hai Rock, 64, Honolulu publicist, died Aug. 11. He was NBC's first Honolulu man.

Douglas Richards Kennedy, 55, TV and motion picture actor, died Aug. 10 here. He started in three episodes of "Hawaii Five-O" last TV season and was to do three feature parts in the series this season. Kennedy was the grand-nephew of the late Theodore and Mary Atherton Richards.

Harry P. Field, 68, longtime executive with Hawaiian Electric Co., died Aug. 7. For many years he was v.p. and commercial manager of HECO until his retirement in 1958.

Richard Tregaskis, 56, war correspondent who made his home in Honolulu, died Aug. 15 while swimming at Ala Moana Beach Park. Police said death may have been due to drowning but that Tregaskis may have suffered complications from diabetes.

Youths in Japan rate worthwhile work as No. 1

TOKYO — Only Japanese youths do not go along with the predominant view among youths of other countries that the primary purpose of their life is to show love and sincerity to fellow citizens.

Instead, Japanese youths consider it more important to do worthwhile work than being kind and considerate to others.

This was revealed in a survey conducted by the premier's office in October and November last year.

Worldwide Poll

The survey covered youths between 18 and 20 years of age in Japan and 10 overseas countries—U.S., Britain, West Germany, France, Switzerland, Sweden, Yugoslavia, India, Brazil and the Philippines.

It showed the Japanese youths tend to consider their work as the aim of their life while overseas youths consider it as a mere means to an end. The office ascribed this tendency to the racial and linguistic homogeneity of the insular nation.

It said because of this basic qualitative difference of Japanese culture from other nations', people here tend to be more suspicious and unwilling to accept what is not familiar.

Affinity for Familiar

The Japanese youths show great affinity to what is familiar but react with only embarrassment, shame and suspicion to what is not familiar, the survey revealed.

It also showed that about 70 per cent of Japanese youths want a closer relationship with a select number of friends while only 30 per cent of foreign youths want such a relationship.

A majority of the latter go for not so close a relation with a larger number of people.

In another tendency revealed by the survey, many youths in industrially advanced nations have strong dissatisfaction with social welfare policies of their respective governments and were pessimistic over the future of their societies.

A majority of them believe their societies would be no better in 20 years.

BOOK SHELF:

East Asia

Three of leading authorities on the so-called Far East have produced EAST ASIA: TRADITION AND TRANSFORMATION (Houghton Mifflin, $20) that focuses not only on China and Japan but also Korea, Vietnam and other people of Central Asia and Southeast Asia, making this an ideal history of this part of the world. First half is devoted to the origins and development of East Asian society and civilization. Second half deals with the impact of the West and modern development.

Collaborating on this authoritative work were Dr. John K. Fairbank, director of East Asian Research Center at Harvard and internationally recognized authority on China; Dr. Edwin O. Reischauer, ambassador to Japan and professor of Japanese history at Harvard; and Dr. Albert M. Craig, a Fulbright Professor in Japan and now teaching at Harvard.

The 969-page book contains maps, charts, illustrations and 16 pages of full-color East Asian art. It will be our standard desk reference on East Asia.—H.H.

BOOK REVIEW: Allan Beekman Japan as Background

FIVE GENTLEMEN OF JAPAN: The Portrait of a Nation's Character, by Frank Gibney, Tuttle, Paperback, 373 pp., $3.50.

In an introduction to the present edition of this volume, the author says:

"... as I review the book I wrote in 1951 and 1952, I find that my later experiences have changed my basic thoughts about the Japanese and their development as a modern national society very little..." though he concedes that "Japan has risen to be a power greater in an economic sense than anything I, or anyone else at that time, could have imagined."

Growing out of a long article the author published in Life Magazine in September 1951, the book successfully employs the device of rendering history and the social milieu more interesting by making it the background for clearly delineated personalities.

The Five Gentlemen

These personalities, the five gentlemen of Japan, are: Hirohito, the emperor; Tadao Yamazaki, a young Asahi reporter; Hideya Kisei, 33, steel worker; Fumio Shimizu, 67, engineer and former vice-admiral; and Sakaji Sanada, 62, farmer.

There emerges another character, Kunisuke Yamada, a Japanese soldier made prisoner by the Russians. The experience of Yamada, as POW, resembles those of the protagonist in the Jumpsu Go-kikawa novel Ningen no Joken, made into a movie by Shochiku, starring Tatsuya Nakadai, and released in America under the English title A Soldier's Prayer.

Under the influence of the Russians, Yamada embraces communism. Writing in the red hysteria of 20 years ago, and taking a severe line on the subject, the author may have felt that Yamada, by his conversion to communism, sacrificed any claim to being a gentleman and so excommunicated himself from the group shown in the title.

Good Guys vs. Bad Guys

To the author, the war was primarily a matter of the good guys, the Allies, trouncing the bad guys, the Japanese. Further, not only had the leaders of Japan lacked rectitude, they had lacked common sense.

"The Germans began World War II with an excellent chance of winning it. The Japanese on their own merits and resources could not possibly have won the Greater East Asia War, barring a general German victory over the European Allies and the United States..." The fact that Hirohito Tojo and his military followers started this war is classic case of men imprisoned by their own propaganda...

The author seems to be imprisoned in an opposing propaganda, though he brought impressive credentials to his task. Enrolled in the U.S. Navy Japanese Language School during WW II, he served in the Pacific and in the early occupation of Japan as an intelligence officer and as a correspondent for Time Magazine.

This book grew out of a long article he wrote for Life Magazine, and which appears

Sharks and rays

Written as a handbook for fishermen, amateur naturalists, and others interested in learning to identify sharks and rays and something of their characteristics, SHARKS & RAYS identifies 36 species of sharks of Hawaii and Central Pacific. It identifies seven species of rays, representing four families. The book is profusely illustrated with drawings and indexed.—AB election for the lower house of the Japanese Diet, in which the Communists secured 38 seats to become the third most powerful political party, the disdainful dismissal of the Communists by the author also seems inappropriate. Much of the book remains valid, but a substantial part should have been revised or omitted.

Neither sign a paper without reading nor drink water without seeing it.—Spanish proverb.

HAWAII ADMISSION DAY (Aug. 17)

Nisei Mayor Cites Some Minuses

HILO — Not all changes statehood has brought to Hawaii in the last 14 years have been beneficial. Mayor Shunichi Kimura said in an Admission Day statement here.

"The changes in the use of our lands have not been praiseworthy. For too long, the main interests was to obtain maximum economic gain for our land and environment. Today we see visible evidence of the misuse of our lands," Kimura said.

The Mayor added Hawaii's lands should be recognized as a "valued asset of Hawaii's people that should be held in trust for the desired future growth of Hawaii."

Tolerance

Kimura also said Hawaii has carried out only some of the representations it made when it sought statehood. governmental process equal to "Much remains to be done if the huge task decreed by our we are indeed to carry out Declaration of Independence."

Bridges over Calm Waters

In this Northwest Corner, we have a calm body of water called Puget Sound which is likened to Japan's Setonaikai (Inland Sea), and the news out of Japan the other week would have created an uproar had it happened here.

Seems the Tanaka Administration is budgeting nearly $6 billion ($1,400 billion) simultaneously to build three bridges from Honshu (main island) to Shikoku Island. Three at once!

This massive project has been surveyed since 1963, with each of the six prefectures bordering Setonaikai politicking for a bridge. Five routes had been proposed.

So, to keep everybody happy, the Tanaka Administration decided to build not one but three bridges—from Hyogo Ken to Tokushima Ken, Okayama Ken to Kagawa Ken, and Hiroshima Ken to Ehime Ken.

The enormity can best be described when supered over Puget Sound. Like bridging from Seattle to Bainbridge Island to Bremerton, from Edmonds to Kingston, and Anacortes through the San Juan Islands to Victoria, B.C., Canada. Simultaneously.

Thinking this a little further, there are other similarities between the Setonaikai region and our Puget Sound country.

Seattle and Kobe are "shimaitoshi" sister cities, also Everett and Iwakuni. And when the NYK Line used to cross the ocean with passengers, Vancouver-Seattle and Yokohama-Kobe were ports of call.

Both shorelines are variegated and with many small islands, many uninhabited. Both with many boats and much water travel. Fog. Fishing. Beach. Scenery.

As Shikoku is relatively

Local Scene

Los Angeles

After an absence of many years, the Harbor Japanese Community Center will be the scene of a carnival Sept. 8-9 with many local organizations in support. Highlight will be the ondo dance with practice currently underway on Tuesdays and Fridays, 7:30-9 p.m.

Some 2,000 youngsters in Los Angeles County are taking part in the Sports Addict Day Camp program, founded by Mas Fukai, narcotics and dangerous drug commissioner, who believes youngsters should get interested in worthwhile activities and away from the dangers of drug use. A group of 550 youngsters visited the Hall of Administration as part of County Day in government.

San Francisco

A day's excursion to Angel Island in San Francisco Bay will be held by Kimochi Kai on Saturday, Sept. 5. The trip will include a cruise on the bay, a train ride on Angel Island as well as a visit to the East Garrison, where many Issei were put in quarantine upon their arrival in America. Issei wishing to join the excursion should sign up at Kimochi's Lounge, 1581 Webster St. No. 10, in person.

S.F.—East Bay

Asian American Prespectives, a new Chinese and Japanese student group at UC Berkeley, will sponsor several cultural and social events this coming year. They include dance-concerts Sept. 15 at International House and on Sept. 21 at Pauley Ballroom, Thanksgiving Day dance at San Leandro's Blue Dolphin, dance-concert Nov. 30 at Pauley and Christmas Day dance at the Blue Dolphin. Asian bands will play at these functions; donation is being asked at the door.

San Francisco Peninsula

Stanford student Ami Doi will present a summary of her study concerning Nisei and related subjects at the Palo Alto Buddhist Church on Tuesday, Sept. 11, 7:30 p.m. She is planning to leave for the Univ. of Chicago.

Sacramento

The Japanese Community Center Project continues to undergo planning changes and it now appears a recreation center for the elderly and a services-oriented project might be a feasible alternative to subsidized housing, which was originally planned. In-depth information will be presented at the next general meeting Sept. 5, 7:30 p.m., at the Nisei War Memorial Hall.

'Moscow, My Love' to be joint movie production

HIROSHIMA—A joint USSR-Japan film about a Japanese girl suffering from leukemia caused by the 1945 atomic bomb explosion, who dreams of becoming a ballerina of the famed Bolshoi group, is now under production for showing early next year.

Kenji Yoshida and Aleksander Naumovich Mitta are co-directors with actress Komaki Kurihara and Maika Plietskaya (a Bolshoi ballerina) co-starring in "Moscow, My Love".

Seattle
short on population and industry, so too the Olympic Peninsula side of Puget Sound.

And take our Issei. They came from prefectures like Hiroshima, Okayama, Hyogo, Tokushima, Kagawa, Ehime. By adding a few others in the immediate neighborhood—like Yamaguchi, Shimane, Tottori, Kyoto, Osaka, Wakayama, Shiga, Nara, Fukuoka, Oita and Kumamoto—they represent perhaps 75% of the Japanese who came to this Northwest Corner.

And, Puget Sound, too, has been studied for bridging, but remains unbridged.

The difference seems to be in the public's action to bridging.

From the standpoint of money, the Honshu-Shikoku bridges will be paid by the government—a step towards "remodelling" of Japan as contained in Tanaka's best-seller book—and is paid by the six prefectures.

The Japanese taxpayers seem to take pride in big national projects, like they so often take-it-on-the-chin (or pocketbook) with "kuni no tame" for the good of the nation.

And, certainly, there is a bit of good old "enryo" withholding criticism of the project so as not to "meiwaku" offend or cause trouble for the people of Shikoku Island who might benefit.

As for the Japanese further away from the Inland Sea, they probably figure that one day they'll take a tour and visit Shikoku. That it would be "benri" convenient and will afford an easier access to the butterfly-shaped island.

Bullet trains now run from Tokyo to Okayama in about 4-5 hours, and "Kehin" Tokyo-area folks now can make "ippuku" overnight trips to the Inland Sea and Shikoku.

But we sorta feel sorry for the people on Shikoku, a beautiful island with a lot of natural scenery.

The vast salt fields, the view from Yashima, Ritsurin Park, one of Japan's best landscaped gardens, Kompira-san, one of Japan's most popular shrines. The quick-tempered Awa Odori of Tokushima. The long-tailed roosters of Kochi. The bull fights of Matsuyama.

And, historically, there is Yashima plains where Genji (white) cavalry under the command of General Yoshitane (Ushiwakamari) ran the Heike (red) off the island in one of the major battles between the Minamoto and Taira clans.

(Remember the Red vs. White rolled newspaper sword fight at Japanese language school picnics, the free-for-all come fights? Yup. Comes from Genji vs. Heike—the Gen-Pei Wars of the 12th Century.)

At any rate, good for Japanese pride, for three colossal bridges at once. They seem to like big challenges. The big ones. The big goals. The contradictions.

But poor Shikoku. With both trains and cars arriving over the same bridges, Shikoku can look forward to smog, pollution, traffic—all the anemities that go with people, and people, and more people.

Of course, better $6 billion for bridges than $6 billion for bullets. But it seems there must be better ways to spend such huge public funds.

Let's hope they never bridge our Puget Sound.

1974 United Crusade campaign launched

LOS ANGELES—The 1974 United Crusade for support of 250 United Way Agencies and 12 American Red Cross chapters in Los Angeles county will be underway Sept. 15-Dec. 15.

Chairing the residential campaign again will be Mrs. Ken Kozasa, who reported $106,427 had been collected this past year toward the $4.6 million raised county-wide. Her '74 campaign will be launched from mid-October.

PRICE OF BEEF ZOOMS IN TOKYO, $28 PER OZ.

TOKYO—Prime cuts of beef were being advertised in one department store the first week of August at $85, the "gift package" considering of five marbled steaks weighing a maximum of six ounces each.

Retail prices have ranged between $7.31 and $23.76 a pound, virtually eliminating beef from the tables of foreigners in Japan. Fatty ground beef was selling at $5.71 a pound and little relief appear in sight. A Ministry of Agriculture spokesman said there are no plans to lift beef import restrictions.

Summer bonus figures

TOKYO—Metropolitan government workers received a summer bonus averaging ¥208,000 ($800) before taxes on June 19, equivalent to 2 months salary plus ¥13,100 ($50).

Government

Washington State Gov. Daniel J. Evans appointed seven members to the Asian-American Advisory Council: Joan Kis, Maxine Chan, Dr. Joe Okimoto, Cheryl Chow, Don Kazama, Rev. Hae Soung Kim and Rev. Pascua. At its Aug. 4 meeting new officers were elected with Ben Woo as chairman. Chi-Doooh "Skip" Li was appointed legal counsel to the Washington State Gov. Evans and joined the staff Aug. 1. He was House Republican caucus attorney in 1971-72.

Other Washington state appointments include: Ted Taniguchi, Governor's Advisory Council for Drug Abuse Prevention; Boeing Co. supervisor Hideo Naganawa, State Apprenticeship Council; Betty Terada, State Facilities Planning Committee; Sally Kazama, State Council on Aging; Gene Matsusaka, Nutrition Council on Aging; T. K. Kubota, Rev. William Santos, Seattle-King County Planning Council on Aging.

Mrs. Eunice N. Sato, member of the Long Beach Human Relations Commission, attended the International Assn. of Official Human Rights Agencies conference in Atlanta, Ga., recently on behalf of the city. She also represented the Long Beach Safety Council, Inc., at the annual conference of the Calif. Assn. of Women Highway Safety Leaders in Sacramento.

Calif. Assemblyman Paul Bernal met with some Gardena homeowners to discuss demolition of 50 houses for construction of the Artesia freeway. He was told the homeowners are not protesting displacement but the market value of the state property. Homeowners said homes were assessed two years ago, placing a hardship on families who must relocate and buy homes at 1973 prices. As bulldozers inch closer to their property, a matter usually settled in court may become a political issue.

Calif. Assemblywoman March K. Fong (D-Oakland) and Henry E. Hong Kong businessman, were married Aug. 13 in Penang and honeymoon in Europe after the California Legislature adjourns in September. Now serving her fourth term in the Assembly, she is the only Chinese American woman legislator in the nation.

Mrs. Judith Yamaguchi of Steamboat Springs was one of eight new members appointed to the Colorado Commission on Children and Youth by Gov. John Vanderhoof. Tsutomu Wada, 55, longtime Japanese consul general in San Francisco, was named ambassador to Egypt. He has been director general of the Public Information Bureau in the Foreign Ministry since April 1971.

Book

Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston and James D. Houston, co-authors of "Farewell to Manzanar" (Houghton Mifflin, $5.95), were visiting Hawaii for two weeks in August. Author-husband said he was attempting to reach the general reading audience instead of those interested in political or constitutional aspects of the Japanese American internment experience. Story revolves around his father-in-law, whose life was shattered by the sudden round-up of Issei right after the Pearl Harbor attack, and his wife, then 7, growing up in Manzanar.

Agriculture

The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture appointed 25 members and alternates to the Calif. Tree Fruit Agreement Control Committee to market fresh pears, plums and peaches grown in the state. Among the Nisei selected were Andy Matsumoto, Marysville shipper; William Minami, Reedley plum grower; Jim Ho, Reedley peach grower; and John Kashiki, Parlier peach grower. Parlier grower-packer John Kashiki is offering a $5,000 reward for information leading to conviction of person or persons responsible for vandalism of 70 experimental fruit trees Aug. 4. Because the peach tree project was part of a federal-sponsored program, Kashiki said the assistance of the FBI is being sought.

Education

Pat Hirahara, 18, of Anaheim, Calif., has been awarded a $1,000 scholarship in Seventeen Magazine's Youth Advisory Council competition. The daughter of the Frank Hiraharas is a 1973 honor graduate of Anaheim High, has sung at local recitals and concerts and was among the 11 finalists who competed from a field of 500 members.

Gerrold K. Mukai, former director of research and development at Weber State College, Ogden, was named assistant to the president for development at Westminster College, Salt Lake City.

Sculptor-artist Ruth Asawa has been funded by the San Francisco Unified School District a sum of $35,000 to expand her unique school art program involving parents, teachers and children working together to beautify the schools through art and gardening projects. The board had granted $30,000 this past year.

Music

The first Stradivarius violin in Japan was purchased by Osaka violinist Hisako Tsuji for ¥35 million ($140,000) from the Kintetsu Dept. Store's Abeno branch in Osaka. The store had obtained the valuable instrument in the U.S. and delivered the "Strad" in a ceremony Aug. 1. She sold her home to obtain it. Conductor Seiji Ozawa of the San Francisco and Boston symphony orchestras has been accused by the IRS of having failing to pay $14,661 in personal income taxes, according to a tax lien filed Aug. 9 in Pittsfield, Mass., where the conductor, agents said, acquired property in West Stockbridge. While Ozawa was in Salzburg and unavailable for comment, a spokesman for his business agency, Columbia Artists Management, assured his tax returns are "absolutely in order" and was mystified by the IRS action. Ozawa is alleged to owe $1,839.70 in federal income taxes for 1964 and $12,821.69 for 1969.

Sports

Shortstop Dave Kitamura of Colorado State was the only baseball player among 40 seniors named to Outstanding College Athletes of America. His string on recognitions include: All-Western Athletic Conference first string member, completing the spring WAC season with .460 batting average, 13 RBIs.

Churches

Long Beach Grace Presbyterian Church called the Rev. Keichi Ogasawara of Stockton to be its pastor from Oct. 1. A graduate of McCormick Theological Seminary of Chicago, where he later served as interim pastor at Lakeside Japanese Church and associate at the Christ Church, New York, he is currently executive director of the Friendship House, Lackawanna, N.Y.

Alameda's Buena Vista United Methodist Church will celebrate its 75th anniversary Sept. 23 in conjunction with the dedication of a new educational building with the Rev. John V. Moore, district superintendent, as guest speaker. In charge of the affair are Nellie Takeda, Anna Tovata and Hisako Scalzo.

Politics

Seattle International District community leader Wesley Tao is a candidate for the Seattle City Council seat No. 4, being vacated by Liem Eng Tsal, candidate for mayor. Tao worked with Boeing Co. in personnel from 1953-57 and then opened his insurance agency. He is also executive director of the King County Overall Economic Development Committee. Another Chinese American is also seeking the same seat, Theodore I. Chol, while Mrs. Ruby Chow is a candidate for seat No. 5. Primaries are slated Sept. 18.

Organizations

The Rev. Peter Kwon, chaplain at the County-USC Medical Center and Wesley-County Hospital, was elected president of the newly organized Los Angeles Asian American Senior Citizens League at the Oriental Service Center Aug. 4. Group interest centers on public assistance, social security, health, recreation, housing and transportation. Mr. Kwon was a delegate to the 1971 White House Conference on Aging.

Courtroom

Former San Francisco county grand juror Edison Uno halted the announcement of presiding superior court Judge Joseph Karesch that the court will accept volunteers for service as prospective grand jurors next year. Uno, chairman of the Bay Area jury reform committee, urged concerned citizens to volunteer by submitting their names to City Hall before the Oct. 1 deadline. The state legislature has permitted impaneling two grand juries, one civil and the other criminal.

Fine Arts

A commercial artist-turned portrait painter, Michi Iida is artist-in-residence at the John Hanson Memorial Hall in Oxon Hill Manor, Md., and under sponsorship of Fred Malool, Lebanese American financier and art patron. Upon his death in April, the collection was purchased by Armand Hammer. The Seattle-born Iida grew up in Gardena, attended Oils Art Institute, Los Angeles, and Art Students League, New York.

Deaths

Maj. Henry Koga, 41, of Carpinteria, Calif., died of heart attack July 31 while stationed in Germany. The Santa Barbara-born Nisei is survived by wife Eleanor, three sons, in Suedo and two sisters.

Rev. Yoshio Yamamoto, 64, rinban of the Sacramento Buddhist Church from 1964-70, died Aug. 3 after a long illness. He served with the San Diego Buddhist Church from 1953-64.

George Noda, 54, San Jose Troop 378 scoutmaster, died July 31 while attending the National Scout Jamboree-West at Farragut State Park, Idaho. A structural employee for Santa Clara County, he lived in the county for the past 44 years, is survived by wife Janice, four children, m Yoshio of Sunnyvale, two brothers and one sister.

Mrs. Yoshiko Yamanouchi, 77, of San Mateo died Aug. 10. Owner of Blue-White Laundry and Cleaners and active in many Bay Area organizations, she was instrumental in bringing Japanese architecture and culture to her community. She had constructed a replica of the Katsura Palace drawing room in a Muromachi period Japanese garden, which has been highly regarded.

Raymond Hattori, American-educated composer of "Savonara Waltz" and other pop tunes, died Aug. 5 at his seaside villa in Katsuraya City, Chiba Prefecture. He was 65.

Mrs. Saki Sakai, 81, of Seattle has passed away Aug. 10. She was the mother of Mrs. Esther Hagihara, longtime Midwest JACL Office secretary.

Justice Dept. adds office of Indian rights

WASHINGTON — J. Stanley Pottinger, assistant attorney general for civil rights, announced (Aug. 13) Carl R. Stoiber, 31, as head of the new Office of Indian Rights.

American Indian lawyers are being hired for the staff which will deal with federal treaties. Stoiber is not an Indian but has been with the Justice Dept.'s civil rights division for four years.

15 co-sponsor Roybal bill (HR 2984) to aid A-bomb victims living in U.S.

WASHINGTON — Rep. Edward R. Roybal (D-Calif.) has introduced legislation (HR 2984) to cover medical costs for any U.S. citizen or permanent resident who had been permanently injured by the atomic bomb blasts over Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan in August 1945.

It is estimated that nearly 500 persons living in the U.S. were victims of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki atomic bombings. Most live in California, Hawaii, Oregon and Washington.

"To most people in this country, August 1945 is but a dim memory," Roybal said. "But for a small number of persons, the physical and psychological damage they continue to endure are grim reminders of the past."

Roybal said that although the Japanese government and various relief agencies have compensated Japanese survivors of the blasts, "no medical relief has been forthcoming to those now living in the U.S."

1000 Club whing ding set in Tokyo for Oct. 19, five flights to converge

BERKELEY, Calif. — Culminating the JACL 1000 Club silver anniversary will be the 1973 whing ding at the Kelo Plaza Hotel in Tokyo on Friday, Oct. 19, when all five fall charter flight members will gather for a party gala, according to Tad Hirota, 1000 Club chairman.

Flights are originating from Chicago, Sacramento, West Los Angeles chapters, Pacific Southwest and Northern California districts.

To be especially honored are George Inagaki, past national president and first chairman of the 1000 Club, and his wife Yukio; immediate past national president Raymond Uno and his wife Yoshiko; and just retired National Director Mas Satow and his wife Chiz.

All flight members are being invited to the whing ding, which will feature a Japanese buffet dinner, top-flight entertainment and music dancing and door prizes.

Tickets will be $25 per person and advance reservations should be made by Oct. 1 with Hirota, 1447 Ada St., Berkeley 94702. Friends and relatives in the Tokyo area are also invited to join the JACLers at this whing ding. Kelo Plaza Hotel in the Shinjuku area was the site of the first "A Thousand Whings" — Destination Tokyo party two years ago.
