

J. DEAN NAMED CAL TRI-DISTRICT CONFAB SPEAKER

'Watergate' Figure to Discuss Personal Project: Repairs

ANAHEIM, Calif.—The California JACL Tri-District Conference being hosted by Orange County JACL announced John W. Dean III, former counsel to President Nixon, as its main speaker on the subject of evacuee reparations Sept. 13 at the Grand Hotel here.

The Tri-District Conference will be attended by representatives from the sixty-plus JACL chapters in the state from three district councils, Northern California - Western Nevada, Central California and Pacific Southwest.

All national JACL officers and staff, district governors and other interested members have been invited to the conference by co-chairmen Henry Sakai and Mike Ishikawa. Program will feature three district workshops and a joint session on the direction and structure of JACL at the final Sunday morning meeting Sept. 14.

Dean is donating his honorarium to the PSWDC for its educational campaign on evacuee reparations. It was announced by Sakai.

A Friday evening mixer precedes the full-day Saturday program. At the luncheon, the topic of U.S.-Japan trade will be discussed by representatives from the U.S. Labor union and Japanese firms doing business in America.

(Complete details, including the package deal, are listed on page 2 in the Tri-District announcement.)

Dean revealed his personal interest in securing reparations for evacuees in a Playboy Magazine interview published last January. It was among the "few pet projects" which he wanted to start while in prison. The Playboy piece (see Jan. 27 PC) appeared.

80-PAGE REPORT FOR L.A. CENTER DISPATCHED

LOS ANGELES—An 80-page report on the proposed Little Tokyo Cultural and Community Center was sent July 2 to the Japanese Foreign Ministry at the request of the Japanese government.

A comprehensive report outlining floor plans, schedule of construction, status of the fund drive, by-laws, lists of donors and background of each member on the center board of directors was prepared as a result of the trip to Japan taken in April by Ka tsu-m a Mukaeda, board chairman, and George Doizaki, president.

Sen. Larry Kuriyama

Suspect held for Kuriyama murder

HONOLULU—Police arrested Alexander Sakamoto, 39, for the assassination five years ago of State Sen. Larry Kuriyama and held July 9 in lieu of $300,000 bail.

Kuriyama, 49, was shot from ambush at his Aiea Heights home Oct. 23, 1970—just 10 days before the general election. He had returned home from a political rally, where he raised his concerns about the dangers of organized crime in Hawaii.

The Kuriyama assassination was the most sensational in Hawaiian history. Sakamoto has a prior criminal record.

SEATTLE PROVIDES $400 FOR REPARATION WORK

SEATTLE, Wash.—A sum of $400 was allocated by the Seattle JACL Board to its evacuation reparation committee to produce an audio-visual presentation—slides and cassette—to reach all the 96 JACL chapter in the nation.

The presentation is expected to gain wide support for an evacuee reparation bill when it is introduced in Congress, according to committee chairman Henry Miyatake.

Gov. signs Mori's first bill, AB 1398

SACRAMENTO—Assemblyman S. Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton) announced July 3 that his first bill to gain passage through the Legislature has been signed by Governor Brown. AB 1398 is the first part of a small package carried by Mori for the Alameda County board of supervisors designed to eliminate some of the needless paper work performed by local government. This is permissive legislation; it does not mandate.

The legislation allows the county board of supervisors to pass an ordinance permitting certain county officials or their designated deputies to cancel debts of $1, or less, due the county. Present law requires preparation of a list, adoption of a resolution and many other costly and time-consuming details.

AB 1398 received no opposition in the Legislature. Further, the measure covers only debts owed to a county—not items purchased from the county.

Mori will be the keynote speaker at the Central California JACL District Council convention in Fresno Nov. 23.

Bannai bill signed

Assemblyman Paul Bannai (R-Gardena) reported his bill (AB 263) increasing from $20,000 to $30,000 the amount of capital gain taxes that need not be declared by senior citizens 65 or over who sell their homes was signed by the Governor into law the first week of July.

Law becomes effective in January but is effective for homes sold during 1975, Bannai added.

Japan population

TOKYO—Japan will have a population of 135,150,000 by year 2,070 from 114,470,000 this year, according to the Health and Welfare Ministry's Institute of Population Problems. The Institute says the birth rate will level off after the country's population rises to 144,800,000 in year 2,050.

EASTERN DISTRICT COUNCIL Board meet impressions heard

SEABROOK, N.J.—The Eastern District Council, meeting here June 14, heard personal observations of the special National JACL Board meeting from those attending in San Francisco a week earlier.

National vice president Grace Uehara emphasized the impressions were her own as others might have different views. Because the Board was not notified in advance that temporary chairmen would preside, she questioned the propriety of this and said the board "was divided from the start", adding to the tense atmosphere.

The announced meeting to determine agenda was cancelled, she added, denying several members to make input. She also noted the minutes of the last November board meeting were not distributed until the June meeting asking Shig Sugiyama if board minutes could be distributed more promptly. He assured they would.

EDYC chairperson Corinne Furukawa noted the youth were not able to give very much input "because they were ignored". Youth members, she said, were also confused on voting, whether to represent the district or their individual determination. She found the meeting to be "fairly fair".

National president Shig Sugiyama read the resolution and statement which were passed, reprinted the June special meeting was held in lieu of the scheduled October meeting and would cost more than $10,000. Because he was also under investigation, Su-giyama explained he appointed Enomoto to chairman position. Past shortcomings are to be remedied, the gerontology grant to be audited and transcripts of the meeting sent to all chapters.

EDC Gov. Vernon Ichisaka, who attended as an uninvited member, felt there was no need to call for resignation of David Ushio as national director as he answered the charges and promised to correct his shortcomings.

Sus Uyeda of Washington, D.C., wanted to know what happens now that the National Board has made its final decision. Sugiyama said the remaining business on the agenda would be completed by mail and if circumstances allowed, another Board meeting may occur in October.

Bill Marutani of Philadelphia said the minutes should reflect the fact that the district took no position on the Board decision and that the district only heard comments of the participants, reserving individual opinion as future events occur.

Chapter reports New York JACL president Ron Inouye said his chapter was busy on an employment discrimination case, revised its chapter by-laws and discussed the recent Chinatown demonstration that resulted in the transfer of a police precinct captain.

Philadelphia JACL delegate George Higuchi said the chapter is planning to participate in the 1976 Folk Fair in April, preparing for the Smithsonian Festival (held July 2-6) in Washington and discussed the need for more cultural programs in the chapter.

Washington, D.C. delegate Seiko Wakabayashi said the EDC position for a researcher has been advertised in the chapter newsletter, the Memorial Day services at Arlington drew a large crowd and the chapter was also busy preparing for the Smithsonian Festival to man a food booth.

The chapter is also helping a Young Asian group in Washington. Seabrook delegate Ellen Nakamura said the chapter was also preparing for the chapter picnic and the Smithsonian Festival, teaching Obon dances. Other members noted an incident at one of the schools after viewing a movie that used derogatory terms had been satisfactorily settled.

Other reports Washington JACL representative Wayne Horuchi reported on various bills of interest to JACL: two (HJ 448, SJ 81) would impose sharp restrictions on the whaling industry, the Inouye bill (S 124) would provide grants to states to insure health services for recent immigrants, two (S 1778, 1779) would restrict admission of aliens, and five others (HR 7103-7107) deal with aliens and immigration. He also reported on the recent Political Education Committee meeting.

Corinne Furukawa said the D.C. JAYs would split because

MOCHITSUKI DELIGHTS FOLKLIFE FESTIVAL FANS

(Special to The Pacific Citizen) WASHINGTON—An estimated 750,000 plus was attracted over the Fourth of July weekend to the Mall, where the Smithsonian Institution staged its five-day National Folklife Festival.

Of particular delight in the Japanese cultural heritage section was Seabrook JACL's "mochitsuki" demonstration and the Obon dancers from Eastern and Midwest Japanese American communities.

For the Washington, D.C. JACL, its Japanese food booth was the most ambitious and exciting project undertaken recently for over 125 members, JAYs and young adults. In charge were Toro Hirose, Fumi Iki and Kenon Nakamura.

LOS ANGELES—The Japanese Minyo group which is touring the country after the weekend in Washington, will perform here next week: July 23, Harbor College; July 24, West L.A. College, from 8 p.m. Tickets are $1.50. Group is also performing at Disneyland in the morning July 24.

Kenzo label still carried racial epithet

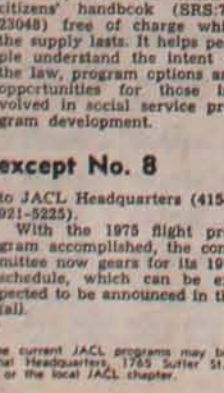

SAN FRANCISCO—Joseph Magnin has removed all labels in clothing created by Paris designer Kenzo Takada reading "Kenzo JAP" this past month after Hokubei Mainichi assistant editor Glen Omatsu revived the controversy which brewed two years ago.

The Joseph Magnin's store had been negotiating for removal of the offensive labels and the directive was issued the last week of June.

CANE resolution under question

SAN FRANCISCO—Scheduling of a brunch at Suehiro's preceding the JACL Headquarters dedication this Sunday surprised and angered the Committee Against Nihonmachi Eviction, which requested the locale be changed, according to a July 2 letter to David Ushio, executive director.

The Japan Center establishment is one of the four so-called Kintetsu-owned businesses which CANE, last March, asked its supporters not to patronize because Kintetsu's role in redeveloping Nihonmachi appears "destructive" in CANE's opinion.

The National JACL Council provisionally adopted at the 1974 convention a CANE-prepared resolution (see Nov. 1, 1974, PC) against destruction and dispersal of Japanese communities in the name of urban renewal and for retention of Nihonmachi as a small business-residential area. A heatedly debated item, it passed 68-3 with understanding some of the language be modified within 60 days between CANE and other interested parties.

Bill Marutani of Philadelphia, commenting June 2 in his letter to Ushio, confirmed what he had been stating publicly in reference to "CANE's recalcitrance" in refusing to make any accommodations to the JACL-passed CANE resolution.

Marutani recalled the resolution was approved with the understanding that the parties would "in good faith" work out differences in wording. "By CANE's refusal to budge at all," he continued, "was a breach of that understanding." While not questioning CANE's beliefs, the understanding should have been observed in spirit, he said, "and if such understanding was not deemed reasonable, then the resolution and its acceptance should not have been embraced by CANE vis-a-vis JACL".

CANE president Saichi Kawahara was apparently misinformed when he urged Ushio in a May 19 letter to switch the site of the last National Board meeting from Miyako Hotel, another CANE target. While the site was never announced, the Board met at the new Headquarters June 7.

At the same time, to implement the Convention resolution so that JACL can "actively lend its resources" against the threat facing San Francisco's Nihonmachi, Kawahara reiterated three requests he had made Jan. 20:

a) Access to JACL office supplies, typewriter, Xerox machine. (This was denied Mar 12 by the EXECOM unless it were on a paid-basis and when feasible.)

b) Designation of a JACL staff member as liaison with CANE to prepare for Congressional review of redevelopment programs. (Ushio responded May 28 that Gail Nishiohara had been designated and Washington Representative Wayne Horuchi alerted to watch for redevelopment legislation.)

c) "Regular" column space and gift subscription to the Pacific Citizen. (In the absence of policy, request has been under study by the PC Board. Editorial guidelines are expected soon.)

But JACL support of the CANE "boycott" of the four firms, Kawahara said, was more urgent. Ushio replied their concerns regarding Kintetsu Enterprises were relayed to the Northern California-Western Nevada District Council.

Last Nov. 8, National Board reaffirmed the principles of the CANE resolution and asked district councils and chapters to study and act on the complex problems of redevelopment in their respective communities.

On May 5, the San Francisco JACL board of governors urged the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency to continue to work with all interested parties, including CANE and the Nihonmachi Community Development Corp., "to ensure that the rights and interests of residents, businessmen and property owners in San Francisco's Nihonmachi will be respected."

SFRA executive director Arthur Evans acknowledged the San Francisco JACL resolution, welcoming the input and giving assurance to work with all interested parties "to expedite the early completion of the revitalization of the Nihonmachi that makes San Francisco such a unique city."

CANE opposed construction of a 40-lane bowling alley and Kyoto Inn (nearing completion) by Kintetsu Enterprises in Nihonmachi, protesting before the Board of Supervisors and on the streets of Nihonmachi June 21. CANE is demanding the Redevelopment Agency and Kintetsu repair new units on a one-to-one basis these which have been razed through redevelopment.

Raymond Uno of Salt Lake City was of the opinion the CANE request committing JACL to assist them "should be granted, at least on a limited basis" in view of the Convention resolution. CANE had sought JACL support through the Convention process, he explained.

Dale Shimasaki, NYCC chairman, said the JAYs are in support of the CANE "boycott" of Kintetsu-owned enterprises until it is lifted. All youth members of the National Board and a few others stayed at the Jack Tar Hotel instead of the Miyako during the June special board meeting.

KIYOMURA-SAWAMATSU WIN AT WIMBLEDON

WIMBLEDON, England—A pair of Japanese names appeared on the roll as British tennis champions for the first time in history as Ann Kiyomura of San Mateo and Kiyomura Sawamatsu of Japan won the women's doubles here July 5. They dined at the Hotel Durr of France and Betty Stove of The Netherlands, 7-5, 1-6, 7-5.

Only previous Japanese winner in Wimbledon's 98-year history was Ryuki Miki who teamed with Dorothy Round of Britain to win the mixed doubles crown in 1934. Kiyomura, 19, and Sawamatsu, 24, have played together in about seven tournaments.

Crusade, anyone

By DR. TOARU ISHIYAMA

Cleveland
I'm really looking forward to the upcoming EDC-MDC Convention. If you need reminding, let me point out that the Convention is being hosted by the Cleveland Chapter, and is scheduled for Aug. 21-24. The host chapter is very much aware of the current economic situation, but also wants to encourage family participation. Therefore it is going all besides, how can one stand that noisy rock stuff? Even the slow ones are tough, simply because getting on the floor is so infrequent, and the muscles just ain't working. So what do we do?

Socialize? Yeah, that's all right but we need a couple of martinis to get going. And you know how silly we get after a couple of martinis, and what a hangover!
Play cards? Heck, I can play cards at home! Small talk? My smile gets tired after a while of meaningless, but expected chit-chat.
So what am I looking forward to?

out to offer a very low-budget, high quality affair.

But let's get back to the first sentence. Why should I be looking forward to this Convention? Or for that matter, why should you look forward to it?

Let's see now. The average (if there is such a person) Nisei in the EDC-MDC area is in the 40 and 50 age groups. He is married, has a couple of kids, or had a couple of kids until one got married and moved out of the household. Perhaps one of the kids belongs to the JAY's. He's got a fairly good job, generally in a suburban, predominantly white area. He owns his own home, with the mortgage almost paid up. Most of his day-to-day contacts are not with Asians, let alone other Nisei. His getting together with other Nisei occurs with varying degrees of frequency—perhaps in terms of family gatherings, perhaps as part of a golf or bowling schedule, perhaps as a JACL sponsored affair. Too often, his contacts with old, but infrequently seen Nisei friends occur at funerals.

He's got a good life—maybe not a great one, maybe it could be better—but one far better than he had hoped for in the pre-World War II atmosphere.

It is to these Nisei (and I am included) that I am talking.

Because the Nisei is where he's coming from, the opportunity to make new friends—supposedly one of the pluses of a convention—really doesn't turn him on. Not like when he used to be in his twenties, and making new friends meant, in part, playing the exciting heterosexual game. But now, leave it to the JAY's. Making new friends, or, in truth, developing fleeting friendships, is too much work!

Renew old acquaintances? Well, chances are that after the first, usual hearty greetings, you just don't have too much to say to old acquaintances, because that's just what they have become. You no longer have anything contemporary to share. Sure, you can play the nostalgia game, but that begins to wear thin after awhile.

Have fun? The 40's and the 50's present all kinds of signs that the machine is beginning to run down. You can't play tennis the way you used to; you can't run the bases as fast as you used to; you can't dance as smoothly and as effortlessly as you used to—and

As I get older, it is obvious that the worlds I want to conquer change. When I was a kid, I wanted to be the baseball hero. When I was in my teens and early twenties, I wanted to be the social lion, attractive to everyone. In my adulthood, I wanted to be a professional success. Then I wanted to be the best father in the world. And then, on and on. The crusades change but the will to crusade fires on.

I am convinced that we all need crusades to grow—to even survive. These crusades can be grand, or they can be small in the eyes of society. But they have not to be all grand in one's own eyes. These personal crusades have got to fire one's enthusiasm, one's imagination, and one's involvement.

And that's what I, in the twilight of my chronological life, expect to get fired up about at the EDC-MDC Convention. The theme, ACTION, promises that the Convention ought to renew my sense of crusading, energize and point to some effective and relevant action steps.

How can we impact the educational system so that it does not perpetuate ideas that, in the long run, oppress us, both as Asians and as people?

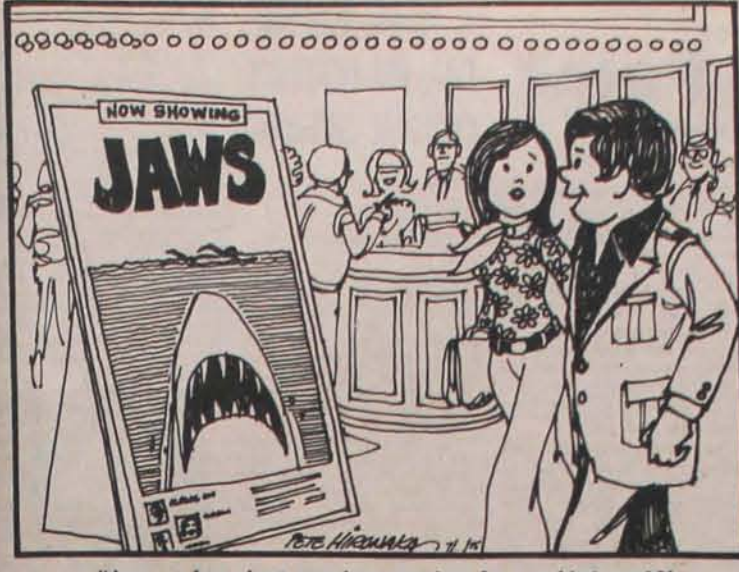

How can we influence the communication system so that it does not present perceptions that lead to a demeaning of people?

How can we act so as to provide relevant, respecting and humane social services both as a distinct minority group, and one behalf of all people?

These are the possible crusades, among others, in which I can participate. If my being at the Convention can provide me with the information, stir my energies, and shows me the brotherhood within which I can act, then I will come away renewed.

Then, I can make new friends on the basis of a common interest, a common crusade. Then I can renew old friendships, not on a historical, nostalgic basis, but on a comradeship in action basis. Then I can get on the dance floor, not lamenting that the Young have crazy dances and

FROM THE FRYING PAN: Bill Hosokawa

Back to the Far East

Denver, Colo.
The press took due notice a short while back that it was 25 years ago this summer when North Koreans led by Soviet-built tanks crossed the 38th Parallel demarcation line and invaded South Korea. The guns of World War II had been silenced only five years earlier and suddenly we were in a new war.

American troops, fat and soft from garrison life in Japan, were rushed to the front and promptly chewed up by the North Koreans who were a lot tougher, better-armed and better-trained than American commanders realized. The Denver Post sent me off to cover that war and, en route, I saw Japan for the first time since 1941.

The battering that Tokyo had absorbed during the war years was only too evident. The rusting steel skeletons of warehouses and factories were still visible around Haneda airport. Japan's automobile industry hadn't gotten back into gear yet and many of the taxis were wartime charcoal burners. The streets were a mess of chuckholes and even the main thoroughfares were lined with jerry-built one and two-story wooden structures.

My friend Hatch Kita, who had landed in Japan soon after the surrender with U.S. troops and was still working for the Army, had learned a great deal about how to cope with shortages. He took me in tow. The restaurants, I learned with surprise, were under rice rationing but Hatch knew which ones had the black market connections and would serve plenty of white rice, so we ate well.

Postwar shortages were visible in various other ways. Many of the men wore cut-down G.I. trousers. Traditional wooden clogs were as numerous, even in downtown offices, as leather shoes. Disabled Japanese servicemen wearing white kimono & military caps stood on street corners begging for alms and the people, perhaps trying to cut themselves off from everything that reminded them of defeat, seemed to shun them. The subways and elevated trains ran swiftly and regularly, as they always have, but the cars were dirty and decrepit and even then some of the glass was cracked. Japan obviously had been through a hard time and recovery was difficult.

My work has taken me to Japan many times since 1950, and each visit reveals new progress, new buildings, vast changes that are evidence of living standards that now surpass those of many parts of Europe. And new attitudes. The Japanese have a saying, or at least they used to have, to the effect that since the end of the war stockings and women have become stronger. There is much truth to it for the women, if not fully liberated in the American sense, are much more independent and now play a prominent role in the professional and business life of the country.

Now, once again, Japan has been through hard times but of a different sort. Business is no longer booming. The price of raw materials, largely petroleum, has soared and world markets for Japanese goods have shriveled. Factories have had to cut back production, jobs have vanished, and the go-go economy that had become a Japanese way of life has been replaced by a more conservative approach.

How much more conservative? In a few days I shall be off again to get a once-over-lightly feel of the newly austere Japan. It is not possible to probe deeply on a hit-and-run visit, but perhaps there will be impressions enough to make a column or two.

And after Japan there will be a few days in Hongkong, Taipei and perhaps even a day in Okinawa where Expo '75, with the focus on the seas, is almost ready to open its doors.

We'll report on our impressions in a series of future columns about a fascinating part of the world, vital and swift-changing, and much more important to Americans than most of us realize.

Ye Editor's Desk

WHAT DAY OFF?

Normally our day off, Tuesday this past week found us watching the topping-off ceremony to Little Tokyo Towers just before noon and listening to the latest later in the afternoon on what's in store for the 35th annual Nisei Week Festival here a month from now. That evening till the wee hours, we took advantage of a quiet PC office to bring the PC financial records up-to-date—and it appears dismal for the remaining quarter of the 1975 fiscal year ending in September.

The 300-unit, 18-story Little Tokyo Towers is now structurally complete and occupancy by Thanksgiving Day is anticipated.

JACL, as a co-sponsor of the senior citizen housing project, has reaped favorable publicity in the general community along with the So. Calif. Gardeners Federation and the Buddhist and Japanese Christian church federations.

It took the builders 33 working days to complete. One model room on the second floor was open to visitors, including many Issei who are on a waiting list to move in. They liked what they saw—a two-room apartment with balcony, kitchen, bathroom and carpeted. Drapes are still to come.

As Little Tokyo redevelopment project director Sachii Hirotsu noted, the complain's about the lack of low-cost housing in Little Tokyo diminished as the building went up.

The topping-off rite is a Scandinavian custom which finds a pine tree hoisted to the top. The gardeners might have supplied a small one. To the Issei, it would have been appropriate for they understand the "masu" because of its hardness denotes long-life. Instead, the huge crane lifted the rooftop housing for the elevators.

Nisei Week is taking cognizance of the U.S. Bicentennial, the 50th year of Showa and its own 35th with a number of new or special events which ought to attract old-timers back to First and San Pedro Sts. the third week of August.

The All-Japan Handicraft Cultural Assn. is bringing over 600 items; former Islanders are staging a luau at Maryknoll School; a huge 155-member Nagoya Music College troupe will present Imperial Court music and dances; Ninjutsu (martial art of invisibility) will be demonstrated; Eiji Tanabe, involved in every Nisei Week Festival since its start in 1935, its reactivation in 1949 until sidelined in 1964 by a severe stroke, and Mma. Hanayagi Tokuyae who participated in the pre-war ondo dances and whose group is the only one dancing in every Nisei Week parade since 1949 are to be honored at the Festival 35th Anniversary dinner.

Our PC contributor Jerry Enomoto, director of the state Dept. of Corrections, has consented to be grand marshal of the parade Aug. 24. That makes it six Nisei in a row and may the string continue.

Introduction of special Japanese events has certainly breathed excitement into a festival which began as the Los Angeles JACL Office fund-raiser. Wonders never cease—even in Little Tokyo.

PC finished the 1974 calendar year with a $5,500 deficit and it appears things are not improving with the slight increase in subscription and advertising rates this year. Income is below last year while expenses continue to mount. Hence, we appreciate the advertising from within the JACL—the charter flight ads, building fund appeal, convention notices and the National JACL Credit Union.

PC readers in business might consider where else can they promote their wares or services to the entire JACL membership and then some at $3 per column inch per insertion. Ad with us!

PCYA SUMMER GRADUATE WORKSHOP

Many have been reading with great interest the favorable impressions the high school students had in attending the Presidential Classroom for Young Americans (PCYA). Well, from June 15-28, I had the opportunity to attend a PCYA workshop, a two-week venture designed for secondary schoolteachers, college graduate students, and administrators. Now that I've had ample time to rest from my exhausting but exciting experience, let me share with you my impressions of this Graduate Summer Program of PCYA.

Let me repeat that the program was no less than fantastic! PCYA is places, speakers and people. Through PCYA, we had the opportunity to visit places that no tourist can normally see in Washington, D.C. Places such as the CIA, the Diplomatic Room of the State Department where Henry Kissinger holds social events with world VIP's such as the Shah of Iran, and VIP tours specifically tailored for PCYA: The White House, NASA's Goddard Space Center and the Pentagon.

But PCYA is not just a look at monuments and pretty buildings. PCYA is also speakers: Mrs. Francine Neff, Treasurer of the United States. Sen. William Roth of Delaware. Congresswoman Pat Schroeder of Colorado. Paul Christian, senior briefing officer, CIA. Arthur Okun, senior fellow, Brookings Institution. Tom C. Clark, retired Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. William Kendall, Deputy Assistant to the President for Legislative Affairs. Hal Walker of CBS News. These distinguished individuals were only a few of the many speakers who addressed our classroom adding insight to such issues as Power in Washington, the Cabinet Departments, the President, U.S. Foreign Policy, and the "Fourth" Branches of government (i.e., news media and interest groups). After each day's speakers, the classroom would assemble in groups discussing the issues they had raised.

There is still more to PCYA. It is people too. Because the PCYA attracts people from across the nation, it provides the participants an excellent opportunity to exchange ideas, teaching methods, experiences and greater understanding of how difficult it is for the federal government to deal with problems on a nationwide basis. But most of all, participants gain many lasting friendships.

Believe it or not, we still had ample time to do things of personal interest. Many sampled the restaurants in the area; others visited museums, played golf, went to Ford's Theater. As for me, I chose to visit with National JACL President Shig Sugiyama, Washington Representative Wayne Horiuchi, EDYC Chairperson Corinne Furukawa, and my relatives in Bethesda.

This program offered three semester hours of college credit. Those who took it for college credit, were graded by participation in discussion sections and responses in the essay examination. The questions reflected our experiences in the seminars and discussion sections. This consequently enabled us to give more analytical attention to the issues the speakers raised. (P.S. I got an 'A' in the course!)

In conclusion, let me state the PCYA was the most exciting experience I have ever undertaken. I urged every JACL chapter to fully support this program by sponsoring high school students next year. Without a doubt, it is a viable program that promises youth to develop knowledge and experience in the realities of our federal government.

Conning Tower

TO CLEVELAND AUGUST 21-24

In little over a month an event which has created a great deal of excitement in many people comes to Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio. This event which has stirred enthusiasm and anticipation in these individuals is the joint Eastern-Midwest District Council and Midwest-Eastern District Youth Council convention to be held Aug. 21-24.

The conference planning committee has done extensive work to make it a most interesting gathering. The JAYs are joining the senior JACLers for the first time since 1970 in a major conference. MDYC Chairperson Scott Furukawa and district youth representative on the convention planning committee feels that JAYs and the senior JACLers have been missing this type of communication and it has put them farther apart in their relationship.

Cleveland JACLers and other senior JACLers on the planning committee have aided the JAYs in the preparations for the youth workshops. Seniors have presented many suggestions which will be helpful in future JAY activities. Such cooperation is important in establishing a firm relationship between the JAYs and senior JACLers. For the present time, the JAYs will attempt to implement some of these suggestions into their workshops.

Time for fun and relaxation has not been overlooked by the committee. Friday night will be a time to dust off the ol' bowling ball or maybe see if you can bet the first one across the swimming pool. If that sort of pool doesn't appeal, then the billiard table waits for the next hustler to whip out his cue. If hitting balls over a net is your idea of relaxation, try the ping pong tables or possibility the tennis court. Last, but not least, is your chance to become the next pinball wizard of Berea, Ohio. These activities are all on the campus, best of all, it's free.

On Saturday, we'll all be getting out our dancing shoes and floating across the dance floor. Getting down to business, the National Youth Coordinating Council and the National Committee Chairpersons present will have a good rap. It will be a good chance for both seniors and youth to meet the national officers of the JAYs organization.

Scott Furukawa warmly invites those who are interested. Registration fee is $45 and all fees or inquiries should be sent to Fumi Nakao, 2510 Lincoln, Parma, Ohio 44134.

Intermountain backs up Sugiyama, to push DYC's tapes for Issei project

By YUKI HARADA

BOISE, Idaho — Development of tapes and reading material for the Issei as the Intermountain District Youth Council biennial of the project was applauded during the recent IDC second quarterly session (June 28-30) here at Redway Inn.

To assist the youth raise $2,000 for its project, the district has approved a $500 contribution with each chapter asked to pitch in from $50 to $100 to raise half of the sum. Gerold Mukai was authorized to represent the district and solicit the remainder "from outside the District."

Motion was also passed that IDC commend Shig Sugiyama for his past performances as National JACL president. He was present to report briefly on the whaling issue, reparations, Vietnamese refugees and health insurance and was main speaker at the dinner.

The reparations issue was aired pro and con at the Sunday session, after IDC political education chairman Henry Suyeihira reported on the national committee meeting held April 19-20 in San Francisco. He implored all chapters to study the issue and convey grass-roots opinion to him on how JACL might become involved.

Upon recommendation of Keri Issei and John Tameno, the National JACL scholarship committee will be asked by IDC to establish guidelines to assist scholarship chairmen to determine equitably the manner in selecting deserving students for awards.

To prepare for the biennial IDC Convention being hosted by Pocatello-Blackfoot JACL over the Thanksgiving weekend, convention chairman Mava Tsukamoto of Blackfoot previewed some of the highlights: an Issei honor night, convention booklet and fund-drive.

Shake Ushio distributed the IDC Chapter of the Year rating system and application forms. The award will be announced during the district convention.

National youth director Gail N'shioha reported on the PCYA, scholarship program and the CANE resolution. She also met with the IDYC which met concurrently.

PNW-IDC regional director Stan Kiyckawa stressed the need for improved communications within the district and related his recent activities with the refugees, the concern of anti-Nikkei defamation and government employment opportunities.

Margret Hasegawa submitted the final draft to amendments for the IDC constitution and by-law, which were adopted. Other committee reports were made by:

Yoshiko Oehl, Issei; Ron Yckota, cockbook, which are selling well; Shake Ushio, programs; Jack Ogami, recognition; Sarge Aramaki, 1000 Club; Tom Morita, talent bank; Gerold Mukai; planning; and Frank Yoshimura, youth.

George Kimura, IDC governor, presided at the Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning sessions. The next quarterly will be hosted by Idaho Falls JACL Aug. 23-24. Host chapter president Yachio Takahashi extended the opening welcome. Mrs. Kathy Miyasako and David Hiral co-chaired the banquet with Barry Fujishin as emcee. The Portland JACL Issei Appreciation Committee film on the Issei pioneers of Oregon was shown by Kiyokawa.

Sugiyama speech

Titled "Changing JACL," Sugiyama told the dinner crowd to expect changes in JACL though some fear what change might do to the organization. With the national membership representing "a microcosm of American society" with conflicting values, beliefs and attitudes, he advised JACL to be responsive to its memberships and shift with the times.

Yet it was not always that way in JACL, he noted. When it was first formed in 1930, the Nikkei population was more homogenous in outlook "largely because of the strong Issei influence" and it remained that way well into the 1940s. The values were closely identified with the Meiji-Taisho ethic, he said. Not to bring best and more useful ideas from our ancestors to help and serve our neighbors and all mankind, Sugiyama concluded. "We should gain strength and pride from the knowledge of being Yamato Min-zoku."

PHIL HAYASAKA DECIDES TO QUIT HUMAN RIGHTS POST; HE'S 'TIRED'

By LEE MORIWAKE (Seattle Times)

of community organizations, including the Japanese American Citizens League.

SEATTLE—Philip Hayasaka, director of the Seattle Human Rights Department since its birth in the tumultuous 1960s, announced his resignation July 8.

He told the city's human rights commissioners he would leave "sometime in September."

Commissioners praised his work. Alvert Franco, a Seattle attorney, complimenting Hayasaka for his "calm intelligent, judicious" approach to human rights problems.

Franco said he hoped that the decision was "not irreversible."

The decision has weighed heavily on Hayasaka's mind this year. "I'm tired . . . burned out," Hayasaka, 48, said in an interview. And he told commissioners that it would not be fair to the department or himself "to continue to hang on."

Hayasaka was appointed director of the old Human Rights Commission in 1963, then named executive director of the city's Human Rights Department by Mayor Floyd C. Miller when the new agency was established in 1969.

He graduated from Franklin High School and the Univ. of Washington.

A former insurance man, he has been active in a variety

Pan-Asian youth group organized

LOS ANGELES—Under auspices of the Pan-Asian subcommittee of East Los Angeles JACL, the Tri-City Amer-Asian Youth Organization (TCAA) held a week-end workshop at Yucaipa June 26-27 for some 60 high school students of Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Filipino and Samoan ancestries residing in the East Los Angeles, Monterey Park and Montebello areas.

Warren Furutani, guest speaker, spoke on "The Asian American and His Self-Image." Panels on drugs, delinquency, Asian tradition, interracial dating and marriage and community organization were held, concluding with an ethnic dinner and talent show.

Mrs. Teranishi of Mark Keppel High was elected president. Saguri Bueli, Alhambra High teacher, is club adviser.
