Wendy's trial date not set

By LEE RUTLE
(Special PC Correspondent)

OAKLAND, Calif. — A pre-trial hearing last week (Jan. 23) in the case of Wendy Yoshimura at Alameda County Superior Court took on the aspects of a regular trial when defense counsel James Larsen moved to exclude certain evidence.

Judge Martin N. Pulich, who will also conduct the trial when it begins, listened patiently to defense and prosecution arguments, occasionally interjecting humorous remarks which had the effect of putting everyone at ease.

First witness to take the stand was Michael Grabanowsky, manager of the Berkeley apartment where Wendy was alleged to have lived & rented a garage where explosives had been found. At the time the garage was rented, the witness testified, it was to a girl named "Ann Wong". He was then asked to examine a series of photos and pick one most resembling "Ann Wong". One he selected was not "Ann Wong" — nor was it Wendy Yoshimura.

He was then asked if he saw anyone in the courtroom whom he could identify as "Ann Wong". Although Wendy Yoshimura was seated at the defense table and even stood up in full view of the court, the witness said "No" to the question.

Next Witness

Officer Paul Gray of the Berkeley Police Dept was then called by prosecutor Jeff Horner. Gray testified that on April 1, 1972, he contacted Grabanowsky by phone and asked him to view some photos. Gray then went to Grabanowsky's apartment and showed him a lineup of eight photos. Grabanowsky at that time selected the same photo alleged to be "Ann Wong", Gray said.

On cross-examination by defense, Gray appeared to have a rather shadowy memory of the events to which he had just testified. Horner next called Officer Nicholas A. Marquart, formerly of the Berkeley police and now with San Luis Obispo Sheriff's Office.

Marquart was questioned about another photograph which he had shown to Grabanowsky on a different occasion. It was one of Wendy taken on some street at a parking meter. It appeared to be a posed photo of professional quality.

Defense challenged the admissibility of this piece of evidence on the grounds that its origin was unknown and therefore unrelated to the so-called "Ann Wong" photos.

The defense team then called Dr. Roger Heglar, biological anthropologist and expert in forensic anthropology. His credibility as a witness was well established and not challenged by prosecution.

Racial Characteristics

However, Horner did question the need for the lengthy discussion on the subject of "ethnic" or "racial" characteristics as related to identification of a suspect.

Although Judge Pulich denied the defense motion to suppress this phase of the evidence, he stated that defense had made its point when Grabanowsky failed to positively identify Wendy as "Ann Wong".

He further reminded defense that such testimony as that given by Grabanowsky would be given at the trial.

Although the trial date was to have been determined, it was held over until Feb. 23, at which time defense will present motions to suppress additional physical evidence in connection with articles found in the garage and at the place where Wendy was apprehended with Patty Hearst.

It was also brought out before the court that a possible Federal action may be called into another court before trial date can be set.

Overseas Japanese Assn. head welcomed

LOS ANGELES — Official indifference to the plight of overseas atom bomb victims, ignorance of local climate conditions in making a gift of cherry trees to Los Angeles and progress on the Japanese American Cultural and Community Center in Los Angeles were among topics on which some 40 local community leaders spoke to Michiyuki Isurugi, board chairman of the Overseas Japanese Assn., during a welcome luncheon at Restaurant Horikawa Jan. 14.

Isurugi, a Diet member and former official in the Finance Ministry, heads the Overseas Japanese Press Assn. Both groups he heads sponsor annual meetings in Tokyo to benefit persons of Japanese ancestry overseas.

Isurugi was accompanied by his wife and Katsumi Kawashima, executive director of the Overseas Japanese Assn.

Newton N. Takashima: Gresham-Troutdale JACL

GRESHAM, Ore. — Longtime Oregon pioneer Newton Noboru Takashima, who was decorated by the Japanese government last November with the Order of the Rising Sun, 6th Class, was honored for his humanitarian contributions during the Gresham-Troutdale JACL installation dinner Dec. 10.

Takashima, who was born in Fukuoka-ken May 11, 1897, is the sixth Issei in this area to be decorated. Previous recipients are Yozo Sunamoto, E. Nambu, Kyut Ouchida, Masao Urata and Bukeichi Fujii.

Takashima, who came to the U.S. in 1900 with his mother and sister, joined his father who has then farming in Fort Lupton, Colo. They also farmed in Laramie, Wyo., before settling in the Gresham area in 1925. During World War II, the family spent time at Tule Lake and Minidoka.

When Issei became eligible for citizenship in 1953, Takashima was the first in the area to become naturalized. He, in turn, helped many others to obtain citizenship. In 1968, JACL presented him with a silver pin for his outstanding activities.

Now retired and living with his wife, Tokiye, their two sons, James and Fred, live nearby. Their daughter, Ruby Sumino, lives in Virginia. Among them are seven grandchildren.

16 L.A. Asians among 336 in bid for school board

LOS ANGELES — Sixteen Asian Americans were among a total of 336 candidates whose resumes were submitted this past week for appointment to a vacancy on the Los Angeles Board of Education. Selection from a list of ten finalists will be announced Feb. 5.

Among the prominent Nikkei are former Gardena mayor Ken Nakakura, Gardena city councilman Dr. Donald Hata, lifetime JACL youth director Alan Kumamoto, Mrs. Paul (Hidaka) Bannal, architect Kaz Umemoto, Matao Uwate and Richard Toguchi.

Also listed were Arthur Song, son of State Sen. Song; Dr. David Lopez-Lee; retired board member Dr. Georgianna Hardy and former board Dr. J. O. Chambers.

Vacancy was created by the death of Dr. Donald Newman, a physician, whose term expires June 30, 1977. Four votes of the remaining six are needed to pick a successor.

Nat'l JCCA history of Japanese in Canada published

TORONTO — "The Enemy that Never Was: The History of the Japanese Canadians", written by Ken Adachi and commissioned by the National Japanese Canadian Citizens Assn., will be published on Mar. 31, 1976, according to George Tanaka, history project chairman.

McClelland & Stewart Ltd. of Toronto, publisher, revealed the book will be huge, containing some 480 pages of narrative and 16 pages of photographs, hard-cover, on a 6x9-inch format and listed at $14.95 with an initial printing of 5,000 copies. (Bill Hosokawa's "Nisei: the Quiet Americans" has about 520 pages on a 6x9-inch page.)

While the need for a Japanese Canadian history was expressed as early as 1948 at the second JCCA national conference, the project was finally launched in 1957 and Adachi was commissioned two years later. Final touches were accomplished in the early 1970s.

Hayakawa's second contention that the Evacuation of the Japanese Americans was justified and constitutional is the vilest blow of all. By a stroke of the pen, Hayakawa renders null and void the stigmatization, the degradation and sufferings; the economic losses; the abrogation of constitutional rights of due process, rights to specific charges, right of trial; the deprivation of freedom, as well as the dehumanization of 110,000 human beings.

Hayakawa admits to the racism and economic greed as aiding the mass evacuation, but utilizes as his justification the completely unfounded military and political judgment of the Army and government officials that military necessity dictated the removal.

Masuda found it incredible Hayakawa called the removal "prudent" because the loyalty of Japanese Americans was unknown. "Does any Amer-

GRESHAM TROUTDALE JACL

A Japanese Garden for Gresham

By STAN KYOKAWA
PNW-IDC Regional Director

"Peace, Tranquility, and Longevity" is the theme for Gresham's Japanese Garden which became Gresham-Troutdale (G-T) chapter's biggest project during the past year. Under co-chairmanship of Kaz Tamura, Yosh Mishiima and committee members Dr. Joe Onuchi, Ed Fujii, Henry Kato, Shig Nagae, M'ts Nakamura, Shiro Takeuchi and George Nishimura, the project is well on its way to completion.

So far, there are 650 trees and shrubs on this island which covers nearly 34 of an acre. Over 5,000 hand-picked rocks were placed along the pathways and 30 large rocks were used in forming the rock arrangements. Over 800-man-hours of work have been donated by the members. At present, 65% of the garden is completed.

JACL anti-defamation chairman denounces Hayakawa's column

SEATTLE, Wash. — The Seattle Times this past week (Jan. 20), in its "op-ed" page, featured Minoru Masuda's denunciation of Dr. S. I. Hayakawa's column on "Concentration Camps: a Case of Semantics."

Korematsu Case

On Hayakawa's comment on the Supreme Court ruling (6-3) in the Korematsu case which declared the Evacuation unconstitutional, Masuda cited the three cases dealing with WW2 curfew, evacuation and detention were based on the Army's judgment of military necessity and overturned the precedent (ex parte Milligan, 1886) which limited military powers in wartime over civilians.

"The Supreme Court defaulted to the military its proper exercise of judicial powers," Masuda said and quoted Eugene Rostow of Yale that it was "America's worst wartime mistake."

Justice Murphy, in his dissenting opinion, wrote: "Such excursion goes over the very brink of constitutional powers and falls into the ugly abyss of racism. . . Individuals must not be left impoverished under constitutional rights on a plea of military necessity that has neither substance nor support."

Hayakawa's Hangup

On the point that young Japanese Americans follow black militants for creating ferment, Masuda reminded it has been "Hayakawa's hangup since the earlier turmoil at San Francisco State."

In Masuda's opinion, Hayakawa is "dead wrong in his views." Young Japanese Americans, born or unborn in 1942, "often know or feel—"

Estimate 40,000 Vietnamese will be living in California by June, 1976

LOS ANGELES — Based on projections of the California Assembly Office of Research, the state can expect the population of the Vietnamese at 40,000 by June, 1976, with Los Angeles now with 10,000 as the main concentration point.

Phan Quang Dan, South Vietnamese deputy premier for social welfare who spent several months counseling refugees at Camp Pendleton, told the Christian Science Monitor (Jan. 8) they want a community of their own with Vietnamese groceries and restaurants, handicraft workshops and stores, libraries and theaters, churches and pagodas where they will recognize and preserve their identity and traditions.

Dan believes a Vietnam town somewhere in the U.S. can be achieved through patient and persevering private efforts though it may take years.

Over 135,000 Vietnamese refugees were resettled during this past year in all of the 50 U.S. states. While the government and the inter-agency task force were sympathetic to the idea of group

Enomoto faces charge of reverse bias as state affirmative action challenged

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The 4,000-member California Correctional Officers Assn. and two program supervisors at the Susanville state conservation center filed a lawsuit in San Francisco Dec. 30, alleging the Dept. of Correction's "affirmative action" policy was unconstitutional reverse discrimination.

The suit named Jerry Enomoto, department director, and Carlos Sanchez, asst. director for personnel management and training, accusing them of hiring and promoting minorities ahead of whites.

At his confirmation hearing before the Senate rules committee early last year, Enomoto acknowledged that minorities would be moved ahead in promotions because of past injustices. A department spokesman said Enomoto has met with CCOA representatives and is "familiar with their complaints and is convinced his action is legal and proper."

The San Francisco law firm of Carroll, Burdick and McDonough, the same firm that successfully filed against the Berkeley fire department in a similar case, was retained by the plaintiffs, identified as Henry J. Dardin and Wayne Binnick, the Susanville supervisors, and those in "many similar types of circumstances."

The spokesman added the department will oppose the suit and, unless halted by the court, will continue its "affirmative action" program.

CCOA spokesman Ken Brown said the suit does not specify how many employees allegedly were discriminated against. CCOA seeks a court order against the department, contending that the Constitution is "color blind, that promoting any employee on the basis of race, color, creed or sex in order to meet certain predetermined quotas is illegal."

Hayakawa has done an incalculable disservice to Japanese Americans of all generations. He has wielded his power as an influential columnist reaching millions to strike at our very hearts. To say that what happened to us in those wartime years was a justified, constitutional act is to say that we deserved to be treated the way we were—as reasonable, disloyal and dangerous. It is a false and degrading characterization that we must refuse to accept.

"We hope that all Americans will judge us in the bright light of fairness and reason."

Spokane adopts Vietnam family

By MAS AKIYAMA

SPOKANE, Wash. — November last year, the Spokane JACL board agreed to sponsor a Vietnamese family and named Ed Takahashi and Dr. James Watanabe to head the chapter committee to get the wheels of this project into motion.

After weeks of study and preparation, the project became reality with the arrival of the Lee family here Jan. 3. He and his family of six were among the last to leave Camp Chaffee, Ark., making the long trip across cold country in their own car.

The Lee family was welcomed by the committee with a warm home, clothing, furniture and food, which were generously provided by members of the local Nikkei community.

Takahashi has assisted the Vietnamese family getting acquainted with their new neighborhood, adjust to the environment and American way of life.

The spokesman added the department will oppose the suit and, unless halted by the court, will continue its "affirmative action" program.</

Executive Order 9066

Executive Order 9066, placing more than 110,000 West Coast residents of Japanese ancestry in remote concentration camps, was promulgated by President Roosevelt on Feb. 19, 1942. No doubt, it will surprise many Americans to learn that the order has never been rescinded.

As a product of the hysteria following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, EO 9066 was issued for the declared purpose of protecting national defense resources from sabotage and espionage. It directed the Secretary of War and the military commanders to exclude "any and all persons" from prescribed military areas and "to provide for residents" who would be excluded.

In his letter to Gen. DeWitt, who carried out EO 9066, Secretary of War Stimson desired those of Italian ancestry in California not be disturbed except those who constituted a definite danger. Stimson admitted because of the size of their population, the number of troops and facilities needed would be greatly overtaxing.

In a memo suggesting a method for carrying out the evacuation program forwarded by Asst. Secretary of War McCloy to Gen. DeWitt, Japanese aliens and American citizens of Japanese ancestry were priority one and two, followed by German aliens. Italian aliens, and the real culprits—saboteurs, espionage agents and subversives potential or actual—tailed in fifth place.

It may be well to recall that as early as April, 1942, the FBI had informed Congress there was no sabotage committed in Hawaii prior to Dec. 7; on Dec. 7 or subsequent to that time—thus quashing the myths and rumors that Japanese trucks blocked highways leading to the airports on that fateful morning, that huge arrows were cut into sugar cane fields pointing to defense facilities and that Japanese pilots wearing a McKinley High School ring on their finger were captured. Those

By HENRY S. SAKAI
(Orange County JACL)

After working within the framework of JACL for five years, I've concluded that JACL is a conservative organization and that's the way it wants to stay. Now there's nothing wrong with that if that's what the majority want, it's their organization. But they should admit it and quit going around saying prominent Nisei attorneys told one of our Board members prior to the meeting that if we did anything to endorse or support Wendy Yoshimura, he was going to quit the chapter.

In the past five years that I have been active in changing the chapter from a conservative, do-nothing organization to one of the most progressive chapters in JACL, I heard so many people threaten our Board members they were going to quit that I'm amazed that we have almost doubled our membership and we're the ninth largest chapter in 1975. Most of these people criticize if they don't like something you're doing but they never come out to offer to do something that they feel should be done.

So it's the same old game. It's easy to sit back and criticize but a lot harder to go out and try to do something about it. I'm sure for every member who quit, we picked up three or more who liked what we are doing and also many have come and joined our Board.

In my five years, I have met some really dedicated, hard working and sincere people, both young and old. In addition there are many who are living in the '40s, keep referring to the fact that they've been in JACL for 30 years and somehow feel that that makes them wiser than anyone else and just can't see the change in times. Also I met some people who were all talk and expressed their concern and awareness but were really in for their own selfish interest and when that was satisfied or wasn't satisfied, quit coming around. These people are the phonies since they weren't really sincere.

An ironic situation occurred at the Tri-District Conference last year when we discussed Mike's proposals and what changes JACL needed to make. One of the key issues was whether there should be more emphasis on district and local programs rather than a large National budget and staff. Fred Hirasuna of Fresno was very much against districts having more autonomy because they might endorse things about the support some districts and chapters gave to Cesar Chavez and the UFW a couple of years ago. However, I see that Fred was one of the prime movers behind the Wendy Yoshimura Fair Trial Fund and by the way I supported that not only with my own money but moved that PSWDC send $250 and also our Orange County chapter send $100. I've always felt that if you're going to pass a resolution to support it, you should also put your money where your mouth is, since talk is cheap. Anyway to get on with the story.

I see Northern California district had a hard time agreeing to support the Fund and also that someone back in the Midwest wrote a letter to the PC complaining about Central California using the JACL name in supporting Wendy Yoshimura because it reflects badly on JACL. So Fred did the very thing that he was very critical about at the Tri-District Conference and why he was against the regional concept. I wonder if Wendy was from Los Angeles and PSW started the Fund that Fred would have felt the same way.

Orange County's support of the Fund brought about another problem. One of our they want to attract young people and are a progressive organization.

Mike Masooka summed it up real well in his article in the 1974 Holiday Issue, JACL trying to be all things to all people. Everyone agrees that JACL needs to change in order to attract the younger, progressive (not radical) people but when it gets right down to making the changes, most Nisei don't want to make the changes and keep harping about how they've been doing things for the last three decades and we'll split the organization if we do any major surgery. It's like having cancer but don't operate. Just rub a little oil on the surface and put out some good words, and fortunately the younger people nowadays don't buy that line as evidenced by the Vietnam situation.

I believe that the Nisei should step aside and let the younger Sansei and Yonsei take over and give them a freer reign. PSW is fortunate in having a young governor in Mike Masooka, who is a very intelligent, capable, dedicated and hard-working leader. I am sure he and his board will do a tremendous job. He doesn't need people like me hanging around telling him what to do. I just hope he doesn't get frustrated and disillusioned by all the rhetoric in trying to accomplish some progress in the district and national levels.

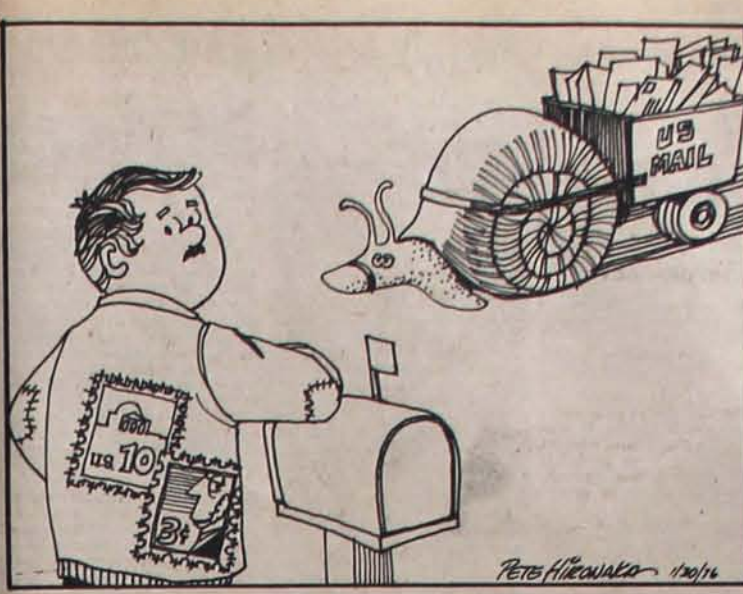

Since this is the end of my 5-year commitment to JACL, I think those who knew me and worked with me know that I hate rhetoric and tried to get things done without worrying about criticism of some. So as my parting words, I certainly wish JACL well and hope they will see the light before it's too late. After all who's more negative: those who don't want to change or those who see things that are wrong and want to make changes?

QUESTION BOX

'Chiaroscuro'

Q—What does "Chiaroscuro" mean?—PWE, Olympia, Wash.

A—About this title to space reserved for chapter presidents in the PC, it has to do with "distribution of light". From the Italian, it means "light and shadow". We long felt one role of a chapter president was to shed light.

Short Takes

Denver, Colo. Some months ago Mary Sugiyama of Towson, Maryland, told me about an unusual project in which she had become involved. Back in 1944 she discovered a Japanese doll, standing more than three feet tall, in the Baltimore Municipal Library. It had been made in Hiroshima, and as Mrs. Sugiyama dug deeper, she learned it was one of 50 dolls sent to the United States as goodwill ambassadors. Some American dolls were sent to Japan in return.

Many years later, on a trip to Hiroshima, Mrs. Sugiyama visited the governor's office to ask for help in uncovering more information about the doll exchange. She was told the records, if they existed at all, certainly must have been lost during the war.

Not discouraged, Mrs. Sugiyama has been searching for other goodwill dolls from Japan that might have survived the years. She hopes to place them on display in Baltimore as a Bicentennial event. At least one additional doll, from Akita, has been found in Detroit.

I had a faint recollection of having seen a doll like these at the Colorado Historical Museum and volunteered to ask about it. The museum folks said no, they didn't have any such large doll, but they thought they had some smaller ones and, if memory served correctly, there was some written material about them.

Well, memory apparently had not served correctly. After many weeks it appears the dolls, if any, are gone without record, and this sad news must be relayed to Mrs. Sugiyama. But if you know of any likely dolls in your area, please let her know. Her address is 959 Ellendale Dr., Towson, Md. 21204. She'd be delighted to hear from you.

Disconcerting Moments: When you discover that a new pair of slacks with a size 38 waist is more comfortable than a 36. When the dentist taps a molar and remarks that there is more silver in it than tooth. When you realize that what the barber trims off is more salt than pepper.

Freedom House, a national organization dedicated to strengthening democratic institutions, each year publishes the results of a survey into the state of political and civil freedoms among the peoples of the world.

It is predictable that the "most free" nations include most of the industrialized Western democracies, and the "least free" are primarily the countries under communist or other dictatorships.

The United States is rated "most free" in both political and civil rights categories. Japan gets a "most free" rating in civil rights but, oddly enough, is given a "2" rating, along with Sweden, Finland, Israel and several other countries, on political rights. A two rating is somewhat less free than a one rating on a scale of one to seven.

The reason for Japan being a two is found in the small type: "The survey began with the policy that for new democracies in which there had not been a turnover of power since the immediate post-war period we would assume an imperfection in the political rights of the people. It was particularly for this reason that Japan and India were rated two in political rights. This judgment has, of course, cast into doubt the status of Sweden where, first, the dominant position of the Social Democratic Party since the early 1930s has been uninterrupted..."

Whether one agrees with this system of evaluation, it is what Freedom House uses. Both Communist China and the Soviet Union are rated seven in political rights, but the U.S.S.R. is six in civil rights. South Korea and the Philippines are rated five in both categories, making them "partly free" with no immediate prospect of things changing.

The executive committee of the National Federation of Asian-American United Methodists, which recently established a task force on human rights and social justice in Asia, has expressed dismay at "continued repression of rights and justices," particularly in Korea and the Philippines. The churchmen and Freedom House are fairly close to agreement on the situation in those two countries, but Freedom House also tells us there are countries in which freedom is in a lot worse shape.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Executive Director

Editor: This supplements Lillian Kimura's "By the Board" (PC, Dec. 12) and my views under Chiaroscuro (PC, Dec. 19-26) about three major staff functions: Executive Director, Washington Representative and Assistant (or Deputy) Executive Director.

At the Dec. 7 PNWDC meeting, Izumi Taniguchi led a discussion on the organizational pattern of JACL... I would like to suggest a Deputy Executive Director with responsibility of administering the JACL, sharing an internal role now shared by the Executive Director, the EXECOM and the National Board which, as a practical matter, is unsatisfactory to themselves and to everybody else concerned. The executive director would then be free to give almost all of his attention to the dominant matter of external relations, which often cannot be delegated though some may be made in some cases upon the Washington Representative.

The ability to handle public and other governmental relations may or may not be found in a person with expertise in administration. It isn't often that competence in both external relations and administration are found in the same person. When found, it commands a far larger salary than any we pay.

As we look ahead, more attention to salary levels is needed to maintain the competence for all three functions: (1) external relations, (2) administration of operations, and (3) Washington representative. Any tendency to consolidate these functions will either (a) necessitate substantially higher salaries or (b) produce inefficiencies and irritants that will be constantly disturbing. Failure to handle these matters properly will also burden both the National Board and EXECOM with otherwise unnecessary, expensive and time-consuming meetings.

I submit employment of such a deputy, if appropriately qualified and if really assigned full responsibility and authority, could solve some of our current problems.

In mid-September, a month and a half before Pendleton refugee camp was to close, to the Greater Los Angeles Community Action Agency (GLACAA) to help some 2,000 Vietnamese resettle in the Los Angeles area, but it was turned down because it was deemed impossible to do the job in that short span of time.

GLACAA had asked the Council of Oriental Organizations to assume the project.

The second hope for Vietnamese now is "much simpler and easier to grant", Dan concluded. Their status of parolees can be administratively adjusted into the normal status of immigrants, thus providing "a greater sense of security and stability". It would speed up the process of their integration into American society, he assured.

is hoped that more of the members will attend district meetings as Lefty has so faithfully done.

In 1975, the chapter helped out a hospital, collected blood, cleaned a cemetery, and helped fund youth activities. Members who have donated a gallon of blood become life members of the bank. The immediate family of the donor also benefits from the blood bank.

Ruth Ikeda headed a committee to help buy much needed equipment for the local hospital. Empty cigarette packs were saved and collected to purchase the equipment.

Annually, members get together to clean up the Yamato Cemetery. In 1975, the cemetery was overgrown with weeds, and a general clean-up helped the appearance immensely.

As typical of many JACL chapters, Salinas awards scholarships to deserving high school graduates. Last year, Dale Yamashita won the top award. Salinas Valley puts together the scholarship program with funding by the California First Bank, formerly the Bank of Tokyo. Last year, they awarded four scholarships in the amount of $100 and $200, totaling $700.

Many of the events that Salinas Valley chapter holds are "traditional". Dr. John Hirasuna, 1976 president, projects for the new year more of the usual events that have proved successful.

None could be more traditional than the picnic and Issei Night. The picnic is held each June, and always gives everyone a chance to enjoy the festivities and good food.

S-1: U.S. CRIMINAL CODE REFORM ACT

Because I promised the Bay Area Community Chapter of JACL that I would write a column on S-1, the recodification of the U.S. criminal code, I have asked my friend and Washington Director of the National Committee Against Repressive Legislation, Esther Herst, to write this article.—WH

By ESTHER HERST

Washington

One of the most far-reaching issues facing Congress as it returns from the holiday recess is a 799-page bill entitled S. 1, the Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1975.

S. 1 is a codification and revision of Title 18 of the U.S. criminal code, presently a hodge-podge of conflicting, redundant, and obsolete statutes that is difficult to interpret and even harder to enforce. There has been pressure over the past 25 years to reform the federal code and a national commission was established in 1966 to review the code and make recommendations for change. This commission submitted its report in 1971, but before Congress could take action, the Nixon Administration Justice Department, headed by John Mitchell, began an extensive review and rewrite of the commission's proposals.

The ultimate result was legislation that runs directly counter to the commission's recommendations, both on the treatment of criminal defendants and on the right of the government to control the free flow of information to the public and to suppress demonstrations and other activities of protest against administration policies.

Control over Media

S. 1, if passed, would have a dramatic effect upon the ability of the news media to learn about government corruption, deception, and wrongdoing, and the right of the media to communicate that information to the American people. Through a series of offenses collectively dubbed "the official secrets act" the government would have the right to sentence reporters, publishers, and government employees to 3 years to 15 years in prison for communicating "national defense" information to anyone not authorized to receive it.

The definition of national defense information is broad enough to include practically any foreign policy news not incorporated in Defense Department handouts.

All of the recent disclosures about abuses of the First Amendment by the CIA and the FBI, the cover-up of the secret bombing of Cambodia, and the Pentagon Papers, as well as the burglary and break-in at the Watergate, would have earned prison sentences rather than Pulitzer Prizes for the reporters who broke those stories, had S. 1 been law.

Other Restrictions

S. 1 contains a whole series of new or rewritten statutes criminalizing the kinds of dissident protest activity so common during the Civil Rights and Vietnam War eras. With sentences ranging from five days to life imprisonment, S. 1 make it virtually impossible for masses of people to express their First Amendment right "Peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

S. 1 also reaffirms the government's right to wiretap and the President's right to wiretap without a court warrant when he believes there is a "danger to the structure" of the government.

There are countless other provisions in S. 1 expanding the government's power over individuals. Especially dangerous is the rewrite of the 1940 Smith Act, used during the McCarthy era to jail those who advocated revolution or taught revolutionary philosophies. The Smith Act was made inoperative by a series of Supreme Court decisions but S. 1 would provide up to 15 years for allegedly inciting "other persons to engage in imminent lawless conduct that would facilitate" the destruction of the government and 7 years in prison for being an active member of a group having such a purpose.

The sentencing structure of S. 1 is severe, reintroducing a mandatory death penalty in certain cases, imposing high maximum sentences and fines, generally and limiting the discretion of judges to release offenders on probation or parole.

In Committee

S. 1 is presently pending before the Senate Judiciary Committee which expects to take it up in February or March. There are two western Senators on that Committee, John Tunney (D-Calif.) and Hiram Fong (R-Hawaii) who will play a key role in the debate. Because of strong pressure from the Administration and influential sponsoring Senators such as Mike Mansfield, Roman Hruska, McClellan, and James Eastland, the Senate may very likely pass S. 1 with only a few modifications.

The key to stopping this legislative horror is an organized movement by thousands of people across the country putting pressure on their Senators and Representatives, urging them to defeat S. 1 and start the process of codifying our criminal laws with a new perspective—one of defending and increasing the basic constitutional liberties that form the foundation of this democratic society.

White House briefing

WASHINGTON — The White House invited Washington JACL Representative Wayne Horiuchi to attend its Jan. 26 briefing on the President's budget and State of the Union message, which was conducted by cabinet and White House officials.

Honolulu Scene

Charl House restaurant overlooking Ala Wai Yacht Harbor was destroyed by fire. Damage was estimated at $800,000. City is trying to buy Fong Bldg., River and Beretania St., to spare it the fate of becoming a parking lot. Built in 1923, the aging but sound edifice houses a travel agency, clothes shop and income tax office. Old Victorian mansion built in 1899 and purchased by the late Dr. Ichitaro Katsuki at 1326 Keamoku St. in Makiki may face demolition to pay off taxes based on inflated land values.

Education

One time Kailua High principal, Charles Clark, succeeded Teichiro Hirata as superintendent of the Dept. of Education. Ethnic imbalance in the island public schools has been reported.

Political Scene

As expected, Rep. Spark Matsunaga formally announced in Honolulu Jan. 8 he would seek the U.S. Senate seat. Fellow Democrat Rep. Patsy Mink has already announced her bid for the same. Neither would be an easy opponent for former Republican governor William Quinn, mentioned by GOP leaders for the race.

Li Gov. Nelson Doi announced he may run for mayor of Honolulu this year. Sen. Hiram Fong, 69, declared Jan. 13 he will retire from the U.S. Senate when his present term expires Jan. 2, 1977. He was first elected to the senate in 1959 when Hawaii became a state. He will continue as board chairman of Finance Factors, Ltd., and his family of companies.

Rev. Frank A. Chong

The Rev. Frank A. Chong, associate minister of the Honolulu Community Church, was named one of 50 directors to the 225-member Board for Homeland Ministries of the United Church of Christ at its October meeting in Madison, Wis. He hopes to have a great deal of influence in developing Asian American theology, which includes relating biblical events to immigrant experience of Asian Americans.

Buddhist approach to the search for self-knowledge and peace of mind was explained by the Rev. Masao Kodani, Sansel minister at Sennin Buddhist Church, Los Angeles, at a Goodwill Industries chapel service. "If you are full of preconceptions, there is no room to receive anything.
