Looking at the JACL Budget

For the coming biennium, the National JACL Board has proposed a modest $470,000 budget—one that the chapters will buy when they convene at the national convention in Sacramento the last week of June. Undoubtedly, some modifications are likely.

The new budget is based upon membership income, which the Board felt would be in the neighborhood of the FY 1975 total of $490,000 Because of the deficit incurred these past two years and another one this year, the Board recommended the first $20,000 received for FY 1977 and again for FY 1978 go toward debt retrement. At the end of FY 1975, the JACL deficit was $108,600.

The proposed budget calls for $135,170 to cover operating expenses at National Headquarters; another sarry for National program (Washington Office, Pacific Citizen, youth, etc.); and $132,068 for District program (such as regional offices).

What is interesting to recall here is that the last time Sacramento JACL hosted a national convention, the budget went into overtime to settle—3 a.m. after the Sayonara Ball Discussion then centered on how to raise the budget as chapters each had a quota to meet. Finally the National dues were raised from $2 to $3 per year.

Today, the National dues are $12 per year and the Board wants to hold it. So the budget sessions at second convention Sacramento JACL hosts will be centered on how or where to spend the budget. There is every possibility the National Council will burn the midnight oil again to decide.

What may save time is for national officers to philosophize about JACL and discuss the budget in mand respect for Gordon, I will ashare a confidential War Denilosophize about JACL and discuss the budget in mandradom discovered by author Michi were supported to the United States Supreme Curt, is in my opine and the principles he stocd for in the Spring of 1942 like are preserved in perpetuity in the stocd for in the Spring of 1942 like are preserved in perpetuity in the stocd for in the Spring of 1942 like are preserved in perpetuity in the case law of our country.

'Farewell to Manzanar'

A slice of the tragedy stirred by the World War II evacuation of Japanese Americans was stylishly portrayed on NBC-TV's Thursday Night at the Movies last week. John Korty's production based on the book, "Farewell to Manzanar" by Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston and her husband James D. Houston, was superbly ton and her husband James D. Houston, was superbly cast and richly staged.

But the tragedy was compounded in the opinion of those who remember this sad chapter of American history if the Korty adaptation was meant to repair misunderstanding.

Billed as a "true story of courage and bravery . . . of one family among the 110,000 Japanese Americans interfied behind barbed wire", the hysteria and madness responsible for herding people because they looked like the enemy in the Pacific was hardly noticed. The compassion shown by Wakatsuki's white neighbors was real enough as the family boarded the bus for Manzanar but the ugly truth is that thousands more felt otherwise.

Dramatic ingredients were there in this story of the Terminal Island family (but relocated to non-stophetioish Santa Monica in the adaptation), hard hit when the FBI picked up the father because he was a commercial fisherman and leaving a distraught mother to care for the big family. The miseries of life inside Manzanar, camp violence between pro-Japan and pro-American elements, moments of joy and relief at the end of the story pointed to the gutty question, "Why did it happen? ... Why?" Perhaps the stuff is too rich to put on TV. JACL's job to explain "why" has only steen expanded.

The memorandum continues to recite Gordon's typewritten reply to the questionnaire:

We also wish to publicly express our continuing admiration for John Korty, who produced and directed the film. If was cur belief from the beginning that his exceptional honesty and sensitivity made him the ideal director, and that belief has been strengthened during the past two years.

It is a great misfortune that he has been libeled in print, called a "white racist" and viclously linked with the Nazi party and the Ku Klux Klan. This is an unjust assessment of a man with such hisp professional, moral and aesthetic standards. In addition to his years of film—making experience he brought a great deal of humanity and compassion to the difficult task of adopting our book into film.

Pacific Overtures

Almost no one who has seen the Broad-way musical "Pacific Overtures" is neutral about it. People seem either to praise it as a beautiful spectacle, or to dislike it in-ten-ely.

Meanwhile an all-Oriental cast, headed by the redcubtable Mako, continues to play before substantial audiences and goes to the bank every payday. The actors don't care very much what ticket-buyers say about Pa-cific Overtures so long as they keep on coming to see it.

Pacific Overtures is, more or less, the story of Commodore Perry's arrival in Japan and that event's impact on the qua'nt and feudal way of life that existed there. The finale is a finger-enapping, transistorized, swinging scene as compared to the kabukd-style presentation that characterizes the rest of the show, projecting the idea that it was all Commodore Perry's fault which in a way it was.

There is plenty of glory to go around but the stars of the show are Mako (with Yul Brynner haircut) as the Reciter (who tells the audience what's going on) and in three other brief but strong roles, and a Japan-born Korean named Soon-Teck Oh who plays four dramatic parts with great skill.

Mako in real life is the son that anti-militarist artist Taro Yashima had to leave behind when he fied Japan to save his life before World War II. The family was re-united in New York several years after war's end. Mako by then was a teenager. He set cut to learn English, hoping to become an architect. One of his classes had to do with building stage sets. Quickly architecture lost its appeal; Mako was hooked on a stage career.

Over an after-show supper, Mako talked about Pacific Overtures, which began as a straight drama in the mind of playwright John Weidman. But producer Harold Prince saw it differently. When the script finally reappeared after three years, it was a musical.

There are few whistleship tures in Recific that way. But it is drama with impact in musical comedy form. In my unschooled fashion, I endorse it.

Oddly enough, men seem to like the show better than women. Mako was asked about that. "I think it might be due to the number called Welcome to Kanagawa," he said. "Women seem to be disturbed by it. Perhaps they feel it is demeaning."

This is the scene in which a madame and her girls of easy virtue get ready for an in-

But in a later scene the honor of Japanese womanhood is maintained. There foreign sailors make friendly advances toward a young girl. Her father happens to be a fencing master. When he sees what's going on he slashes the sailors with his long blade in a way that is a sight to behold.

Mako also notes that some people find the finale a jarring note. Modishly dressed young men and women, in a swift depar-young men and women, in a swift depar-ture from the kabuki style, swing and dance in the best Western musical mode. They effectively symbolize the modernization and Westernization of Japan, but perhaps the transition is too abrupt.

This is Mako's first Broadway show and the experience is still fresh enough to be exciting. "There's a new challenge every performance," he says. "The show hasn't become tiresome or old because we still see places where we can improve it."

Does he prefer the stage to film work? Definitely, even though the theater requires eight performances a week. Why? Because the stage gives the performer an opportunity to relate to a live, responsive audience. In contrast, a film is shot by bits and pleces, and there is rarely a sense of having completed a project. And even after the shoot'ng is completed, one may not see the finished preduct for weeks or months.

At this point no one can say how long Pacific Overtures will run on Broadway. Mako hopes it will be long enough to demonstrate the abilities of Orientals, and perhaps lead the way to other employment for their talents in the theater.

There are few whistleable tunes in Pacific haps lead the way to other employment for Overtures, and perhaps it wasn't intended their talents in the theater.

Plain Speaking

Washington
I want to relate an experience which must be the most fewarding day that I've had since beginning as the Washingt on Representative for IACL.
On Feb. 19, JACLers from all over the country came to washington, D.C. at their own expense to see the President of the United States sign a recolamation which terminated the authority of Executive chamation was printed in the Congressional Page 19.

Wayne Horiuchi

On Feb. 19. JACLers from all over the ccuntry came to Washington, D.C. at their own expenses to see the President of the United States sign a proclamation which terminated the authority of Executive Order 9066.

We first gathered in the Diplemate Reception Room before seing through the White House and to another room cutside the Cabinet Room. There we met Senators Inouye and Fong and Representatives Mineta Minkand Matunaga. As JACLers and the Congressional Record. Federal Register, and Presidential Documents. Thanks must go to Mich Matundaira, Mo Marumoto, and George Wakiji who introduced David Ushio and me to key contacts in the White House. These contacts made the significant to enter the Oval Office while the president and up along a large table which med of us have seen in news photographs of presidential achinet meetings.

The President came into the Cabinet Room. Thus began a most so le mn and symbolic moment in the history of Japanese Americans.

The President made a few brief remarks and then signed the President alternation was responsible for the evacuation and internment of 110,000 persons of Japanese ancestry. During the ceremony, some of the participants stiently wept.

I deeply regret that more JACLers could not attend However, we can only apologize because we worked under a time restriction, geographical considerations, maximum limitations, and proclamation was printed in the Cabinet Room. Thus began a material proclamation to keep the price of the serious desiration of the president are into the Cabinet Room. Thus began a most so le mn and symbolic moment in the history of Japanese Americans.

The President made a few brief remarks and then signed the Presidential Proclamation to keep the price of rice from doubling or the awarding of a grant to make foundations more responsive to Japanese Americans. As the calls continued, each sensed victory over Senator Long of Leuisiana who at the moment was attempting to filibuster the bill to death on the Senate floor. To end detaite, a cloture petition had been filed with a scheduled 2 pm. vote.

Filibuster Closed

The filibuster cculd only be ended by a usually difficult-to-obtain 60 Senate votes, which the callers were busily trying to garner. As the roll call began, the "ayes" to end debate mounted and in due time, Senator Incure rose to cast the 60th vote to cloture. The final vote on cloture was 70 to 19.

With the hunger and inflationary price spiral, rice became a public and highly controversial issue on Capitol Hill. The small but powerful rice lobby led by Congressman Breaux and Senator Long of Louisians came under mounting pressures from ethnic consumers, new rice farmers, large food processors, food aid proponents, brewers, rice experters, the press, Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, and Congressional le aders from Arkansas, Mississippi, and Missouri.

As the debate mounted, the issues became crystallized. Rep. Danielson of L.A. put it succinctly on the House floor:

S. I. HAYAKAWA

Reparations for Relocation?

In view of the Shosuke Sasaki "rebuttal" (see Feb. 27 PC) of Dr. S. I. Hayakawa's column for the tweekend of Jan. 31-Feb. 1, the article was released to the Parific Citizen at the request of the author. (We are indebted to Hokubei Mainichi for the copy.)

The Seattle chapter of the Japanese-American Citizens League (JACL) recently issued a statement entitled, "An Appeal for Action to Obtain Redress for the World War II Evacuation and Imprisonment of Japanese-Americans." War-time relocation of Japanese-Americans living on the west coast resulted not only in great disruption of their lives but also in economic loss. Their farms and businesses, homes, automobiles and other property were sold in haste and at distressed prices.

As partial redress of the property losses suffered, the U.S. government passed an Evacuation Claims Act in 1948, as the result of which some $35 million was paid out to claimants, although actual losses were estimated to be $400 million. That settlement, under the terms agreed to by the claimants, was final.

Japanese-Americans I have talked to agreed that the sums received represented only about 10 to 20 per cent of their losses. However, since they have resigned themselves long since to the full loss, they were surprised and pleased to get anything at all. An aunt of mine in Chicago was so delighted that she promptly took a trip to Japan — the first since she had come to America as a bride 35 years earlier.

The Seattle JACL wants further redress. Since the property settlement of the 1948 legislation was final, the organization is working towards "obtaining redress for other injuries and losses," such as:

"For the mental and emotional suffering . . . and the psychological injuries sustained . . . and for educational losses inflicted on Japanese-Americans of school age by sudden termination of their normal schooling and the government's suppression of the teaching of the Japanese language . . . a payment of at least $5,000 to each person."

"Also, the evacuees suffered loss of liberty, normal wages and aries, and incomes from farms and businesses. To cover these ses, we are suggesting an (additional) payment to each former sate . . . of $10 a day for each day of confinment."

There are several remarkable facts about this document. The first is that the authors see no reason whatever for the relocation program other than racism and racist propaganda. It has not occurred to them that, after Dec. 7, 1941, every unflattering charge against the Japanese made in that propaganda appeared to be fully confirmed. They ignore the fact that a war was going on and that, during those first awful months, the Allies were losing the war in the Pacific, so that a Japanese attack or invasion of the west coast was by no means unthinkable.

The fact that Americans did not panic at the presence of Japanese immigrants in their midst, the fact that angry mobs did not descend on Japanese communities, shooting and looting and burning homes (as they had done earlier in history against the Chinese), shows that by 1941 American racial attitudes, even with the war going on, had matured profoundly since the end of the 19th century.

Even more remarkable is the authors' contempt for fellow Japanese-Americans of their parents' generation. They went to camp, the authors say, because they had been brainwashed into believing in their own racial inferiority. The older Nisei have not aought redress for the wrongs done to them because they were "psychologically crippled" by American racism.

Third generation Japanese-Americans, eagerly conforming to the radical chic fads of their non-Japanese college contemporaries, are shockingly ignorant of Japanese culture and motivation. War time Japanese-Americans acquiesced to a painful and humiliating relocation because there was simply nothing else to do.

The dignity, grace and realism with which the older, immigrant Japanese made the best of an impossible situation and the patriotism and courage with which the Nisei fought for America when given the chance — these ultimately won the admiration and respect of the American people so that racist sentiments against the Japanese have all but disappeared.

But the authors of the Seattle statement do not understand se matters, being too busy playing "mau-mau," a fashionable ority-group game of the 1960s. First you claim to be racially ressed; thus you make Whitey feel guilty; then you make him

Japanese-Americans did indeed undergo suffering and justice during the war. War is no picnic. But thanks, kids, most panese-Americans will not join your little game. As Japanese, find it beneath our dignity. As Americans, we know a racket

MICHI WEGLYN'S 'YEARS OF INFAMY'

The Untold Story of America's Concentration Camps with Introduction by James Michener

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) Majority Leader

"Years of Infamy" documenting the wartime incarceration of Americans of Japanese descent is a conscience wrenching book of major significance. Executive Order 9066, authorizing internment of 110,000 Japanese Americans, conceived and issued by the highest and most respected leaders of the period, stabbed directly at the heart of our cherished Bill of Rights and was a stain on our national honor.

Every American concerned with human liberty should know of this bleak period of our national history, "Years of Infamy" may help assure that never again will Americans lose their freedom as did loyal Japanese Americans in World War II."

Mike Masseks, Washington, D.C.

"Years of Infamy" is a most revealing and informative book one that I think should be read by every American of Japa-e ancestry, not to mention other Americans who are concerned with civil rights, because it tells a story that is not familiar to most. While some of us may have heard of some of the documents and incidents mentioned in the book while we were in camp, perhaps we did not give them the attention and credence they deserved because we in the JACL wartime leadership at that time were so concerned with the day-to-day problems of the evacuees that we did not have the time to check into them. We were so few and the problems so many and overwhelming that in the truth we failed to do some things which, in retrospect, perhaps we should have done.

Regardless, especially in this year of the American Bicentenial, I believe that this book should be read not so much because of what it has to say of a tragic past but in order that all Americans will be forewarned that we must ever remain vigilant that what happened then to us will never happen again to any individual or group. It seems to me that this is the least that we who experienced the persecution and travall of World War II in the concentration camps of our own country owe to what may be described as part of our American heritage.

TITLES OF INTEREST

For his best-selling novel, SHOGUN (An then sum, $12.50), James Clavell found his inspiration in the life and times of Tokugawa Ieyasu (1542-1616) who aspired to become shogun, military diction and the state of Japan, and his advisor, Will Adams An English pilot, Adams came to Japan in 1600, gained the favor of Ieyasu, married a Japanese woman and became a landed samurai.

woman and became a landed sumurai. "Samurai" is a word now firmly integrated into the English language: George Mac-Beth has borrowed the term for the title of his novel now a candidate for the best-selling list MacBeth's THE SAMURAI (Harcourt Brace, Jovanovich, $295) is an erotic thriller about a British-trained beauty and her agent-lover seeking a famous samural sword stolen from England. Another appealing intelligence agent novel is that of Robert L Duncan, THE DRAGONS AT THE GATE (Morrow, $7.95). Seeking to divert blame for a breakdown in negotiations between the Japanese and Americans, the CIA tries to make a scapegoat of an American agent in Tokyo.

Translations from Japanese include THE NARROW ROAD TO THE DEEP NORTH and Other Tavel Sketches, by Matsun Basho (1644-94), tr. by Nobuyuki Yoasa, 167 pp., ppbk, $1.95. This travelogue is the classic account by the great haiku poet of his trip through North Honshu.

intend to stay. They have no roots here."

In retrospect, the Issei who first came here several generations earlier were like these young arrivals from Japan except, perhaps, economic conditions being a little better, these young people from Japan on the whole behave a little better. The early Issei also didn't intend to stay but the majority stayed as soon as they became family men.

There are some young people here from Japan who have been in New York for as long as four years and haven't met anyone or made new friends. This we found at a meeting aponsored by the Nisei Committee of the Japanese American Assn. of New York, Inc., now headed by a Nisei—loo few dances and socials in the Japanese community to day, a Stockton, N.J. Sansei attending college here, Jonahan Kawano, ex plain ed "General pattern today is you can meet a girl anywhere, then be invited up to her room or you can take her to a cafe to dance."

For these young people from Japan, it's a different story. They're handicapped by language, feel allenated, work long hours and in most cases for low wages. Some reveal-the U.S. Armed Forces newspaper, printed one such letter in its Feb. 18 edition.

The Pacific Stars & Stripes, insult to Mr. Elder, but also demeaning to your newspaper."

It was from a fellow, obviously an American, who said:

"I am writing this letter to compain about the use of racial slurs in the article 'Korean 'Wetback' Tide Flows to Japan' in the Feb. 2 edition of your paper.

"Racial slurs are both derogatory and dehumanizing to individuals. They are never used in a positive connotation. The term 'wetback' is a racial slur most commonly given to Spanish-speaking immigrants to the U.S. Its use in the article is offensive to me.

"I would also like to point out to you that the words 'flipping' or 'flip' also offends some Filipinca because of its association with the racial slur. Flip."

As one who is somewhat old fashioned, I think these claims of racial slurs are a bit silly.

Late last year, the paper I work for, The Japan Times, got a complaint via letter because of a beadline over a story on the sports page saying: 'Black Golfer Elder Sets World Open Pace With 68."

The writer of the letter, presumably an American, said in regard to the headline:

Dr. Tsujio Kato

Dr. Tsujio Kato ran unopposed but collected about 7,200 votes to beccme the new mayor of Oxnard. He lost a bid for the post two years ago by a margin of 17 votes.

Nao Takasugi outpolled incumbent Don Miller to win one of two city council seats. The Nisei businessman relinquishes his chairmanship of the city planning commission.

Carpinteria councilman John Fukusawa was handily re-elected for another four-year term.

Two Gardena Valley JACLers, Mayor Edmond Russ and City Treasurer George Kobayashi, were re-elected in the Mar. 2 municipal elections. Vinceni Okamoto, deputy district attorney, defeated three candidates (including Massaru Odel) for a seat on the city council. Kobayashi garnered 2,745 votes (55%), Russ had 3,867 votes (66%) and Okamoto had 3,401 votes (80%). Odoi was last with 295.

City Councilman Sak Yamamoto had 3,401 votes (80%). Odoi was last with 295.

City Councilman Sak Yamamoto of Carson was re-lected to another four-year term with 2,047 votes in a 20-man race for one of three seats...

G. Monty Manibog, a Filipino American, was elected to one of two seats on the Montercy Park city council with 2,798 votes, pacing an 8-man race.

Foster City councilman Kimoto of Carson was re-elected leading a field of nine with 1,698 votes. A professional architect, he is presently vicemayor. Yoshio Fuliwara finished fourth in a field of 17 for one of three city council sats in Fremont. He polled 3,569 votes—19 shy of gaining third place. Fowler JACLer Tom Nagraia was elected city councilman at Fowler with 315 votes. He is currently on the Fresno County grand jury and an employee with the Cal-Trans (State Highway Dept.) for 23 years.
