WASHINGTON—Last week’s meeting between President Reagan and 64-year-old Nakasone assured the President that more measures would be carried out.

Reagan had pledged Jan. 18 that he would continue to fight against protectionism, while Nakasone assured the President that more measures would be carried out.

BUT Nakasone said that there needs to be a “greater sense of equity” between the two countries.

"The importance of this petition is that people who have been convicted under these convictions come from the government’s own files," noted Peter Foss, lead council for the coalition group. "Records that show the evidence were suppressed, and those who objected to the suppression of evidence were rejected by high ranking officials.

Yasui, Hirabayashi and Korematsu say their attorneys are now charging that the Justice Department and the War Department decided to drop a 1983 civil suit reports from the office of Naval Intelligence and the Army’s Military Intelligence Division in the days before the Supreme Court decision."

Hayakawa does quiet fadeout, leaves puzzling legacy behind

SAN FRANCISCO—Charging that U.S. government officials suppressed evidence which could have helped to prove the internment of Japanese Americans, the three defendants of the World War II cases are now seeking reversals of their convictions.

Gordon Hirabayashi, Fred Korematsu and Min Yasui filed petitions in the Supreme Court here Jan. 19 for a Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Hirabayashi, then a student at the University of Washington, was convicted in Seattle in 1942 both for violating the military curfew order and for the Japanese ancestry, and for refusing to report to a civil control station for evacuation. He served a total of two years in county jails and federal prisons.

Yasui, a Portland, Or., attorney, was convicted in 1942 of ‘willfully’ remaining in a military area which excluded persons of Japanese ancestry.

Korematsu, a San Francisco shipyard welder before the war, was convicted in 1944 of refusing to report to a civil control station for evacuation.

"The U.S. Supreme Court, in 1943 and 1944, had upheld convictions of all three defendants on the basis of ‘military necessity.’ Now new evidence comes on the record of attorneys known as the Committee to Reversed the Japanese American War-time Cases charges that the Army has suppressed, altered, and destroyed key evidence in order to inflame national sentiment during those war time cases.

"Moving of ‘military necessity’ by the high court was based upon government representations that Japanese Americans were committing espionage and sabotage.

"The allegations of espionage, sabotage and disloyalty were contained in an official document entitled ‘Final Report’ and issued by JG. John L. DeWitt, who ordered the evacuation and internment.

Dale Minami, who is currently U.S.-Japan trade: no easy answers for this highly complex issue

WASHINGTON—Mike Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader from Montana, is expected to resign in mid-March from both congress and the Senate.

Sources said Jan. 13 Mansfield has become the White House of his own intention.

Information on the proposed retirement is still unofficial. White House and State Department officials available to reporters so far had not received any resignation had been received, and were unable to confirm the reports.

Mansfield, who will be 80 years old March 16, is said to want to begin work on the Mansfield Center for Strategic and International Studies, his home state.

The long-time Democratic senator plans to retire after 30 years in the Senate, 16 years as Montana’s congressman, and was the only politically appointed arm of the Carter administration asked to stay on by the Reagan administration.

In 1980, President-elect Reagan asked Mansfield to stay on in two years.

The sources said David Abshire, 56, president of Georgetown University’s Center for Strategic and International Studies, is in line for the post.

Abshire is a former assistant secretary of state for congressional relations and a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy.

Abshire, who is also a member of the President’s Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, was at the White House Jan. 13. He has refused to comment on the reports that he will be chosen, and that he would fill the post, that was not eligible for congressional compensation to Japanese American former state employees who were summarily dismissed from the federal government during World War II.

The SB 428, is similar to the California legislation AB 2713 except that the $5,000 payment would be distributed over a two-year period, rather than a five-year period. It allowed those who were terminated during World War II as a result of the state’s adoption of EO 9066 and PL 503. Approximately 38,000 Ainu are believed to be eligible for the program. The state has provided $4,000 grants, and the state has matched a $2,000 grant from the state.

"We think the proposal is a good start," said George Washington, Western State Hospital, Central Washington College of Education and Washington State University.

In addition to Fleming, the bill was co-sponsored by state Senators Jack Jones, Kent Pullen, James McDermott and Phil Talmadge.

"Fleming and for taking the bill, including the Seattle JACL, the JACL Pacific Northwest District Council, the Washington Coalition on Redress, the Washington Federation of State Employees, the Japanese American Socialists Committee of Greater Seattle, the Asian Pacific Women’s Caucus and the Washington Federation of State Employees.

Sources said Jan. 13 Mansfield was interested in doing this because of the way it would appear to be a way to help Japanese Americans.

Mansfield has been extremely popular in Japanese political and social circles.

"But he is better known in Japanese circles, for during his last term in the Senate, he was very disheartening for the patriotism of the population.

The Court also accepted government arguments that the Japanese Americans were suspect because of the policies of the state.

The allegations of espionage, sabotage and disloyalty were contained in an official document entitled ‘Final Report’ and issued by JG. John L. DeWitt, who ordered the evacuation and internment.

Dale Minami, who is currently..."

Chol Soo Lee’s 2nd charge overturned

SAN FRANCISCO—An attorney for a Korean immigrant acquitted of two murder convictions called the acquittees “amazing.” Jan. 16. “Nobody else has ever had the opportunity to have the door re-opened like this,” Raulo Yamada, Chol Soo Lee’s childhood friend and attorney said.

He is so amazing, you know, the odds of this happening—to win that retrial, to win the appeal—that’s what’s so exciting.

Lee, 30, was convicted in the 1973 slaying of a rival Chinatown gang associate and sentenced to state prison in 1977. His second conviction was for the killing of an inmate in the Deuel Vocational Institute in Tracy.

A San Francisco jury acquitted Lee in September after a retrial on the first conviction. The jury did not believe the caucasian witnesses to the shooting and acquitted Lee of gunning down Yip Van Tai.

The Third District Court of Appeal in Sacramento, acting on a petition filed in 1981, overturned his conviction for the second murder Jan. 14. The appeal court reversed Lee’s conviction in the death of inmate Morrison Needham because the judge failed to charge the jury that he could be convicted of a lesser charge such as second degree murder or manslaughter.

San Francisco authorities have petitioned for a new trial in the Chinatown case, and San Joaquin County authorities were expected to do the same in the Deuel killing.

What is the Japanese American Kamon?

The Issei are the forefathers of the Japanese Americans. With the Issei, a long line of Japanese history ended; however, in giving birth to the Nisei, a brand-new, Japanese American history was also born.

In order to commemorate the loss within your family, and to eternally mark the clear, historic transition from Japanese to Japanese American, Ken Yoshida designed and created her original, bronze Japanese American Kamon. The unique features of the JA Kamon are:

• It is a gateway to handcrafted with the 3 essential “keys” to your family history—your Kamon, surname in Kanji, and ancestral birthplace—into one, solid bronze piece, so that the 3 will never be separated, for 1000 years.
• Every JA Kamon is individually handmade, not mass-produced.
• Each Kamon is one of a kind, with no two exactly alike.
• A durable record which accurately reflects your family’s history.

Ken Yoshida an artist, researcher of Kamons and surnames, and mother of two Nisei children. If you wish to order, please send a request along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope for further information and a price list.

Heritage Special Fund

$2,000 a year turned into $73,612 in just over 9 years. Good enough for your IRA?

How you invest your IRA retirement money will directly affect how comfortably you live after retirement. That’s why we say—take a close look at Oppenheimer’s aggressive mutual fund, the Special Fund. We began researching this fund years ago when the Oppenheimer Special Fund began operations, a maximum annual IRA contribution of $2,000 a year would now be worth all of $73,612 had you reinvested all distributions. That’s a 22.8% average annual total return on investment. And that performance took place during these turbulent investment years.

Of course, nobody can guarantee the future. We do not suggest that an investor may not have a loss if he or she buys at one time and sells at another, after equity prices have declined.

Will never be a durable record which accurately reflects your family’s history.

Asian counseling ctr. opens in N.Y.

NEW YORK—With the introduction of two recently-hired staff members, Rev. Misawa Kazushige announced recently that "The Japanese American Counseling Center (JACC) is now in operation," and invited the Japanese community to use the professional services which it will offer.

More than a year in the planning, the JACC is a part of the Asian American Mental Health Demonstration Project funded by the New York State Department of Mental Health and assisted by the Hamilton-Madison House, a private not-for-profit multiservice settlement house operating in New York City since 1966.

Punds for the project have been allocated for three years, and the first year's budget is $250,000. The money will be divided proportionately among the four participating Asian groups—Chinese, Filipino, Japanese, and Korean. Each group will function semi-independently, but out of offices located in various parts of the city, designing programs to meet each community's needs.

The JACC is located at 236 West 72nd Street, between Broadway and West End Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10023.

The two staff members were introduced at a recent dinner meeting of the JACC at the Nippo Club which was presided over by the Rev. Kazushige, who represents JACC on the advisory board of the Asian American Mental Health Task Force.

The JACC will hold a candlelight memorial service, which has been one of the services of the LTSC for the past few months.

This new addition is called the "Housing Information and Referral Service" (HIRS). The main objective of HIRS is to collect and match available rental units with people who are seeking apartments or houses to rent.

Those interested in being a part of this exchange should call the Little Tokyo Service Center on 948 C&O St, San Francisco 380 E. 1st St, 340 E. 1st St, Los Angeles, Calif. 90012 S. Eeyama, Prop.

Urban Fellows seeking applicants

NEW YORK—National Urban Fellows, Inc., is seeking applicants for 30 mid-career fellowships in urban administration, and is looking in particular for minority group members with a demonstrated potential in leadership.

According to the organization's president, Ron Vishniak, the 1984-85 fellowships will each carry a tax exempt educational grant of $13,000 to $15,000 for the 14-month program period.

Those chosen Fellows will spend an intensive seven-week residential seminar at Bernard M. Baruch College of City University of New York, beginning July 12. They will then be assigned to nine-month menteeships as special assistants to mayors, city managers, county administrators and other urban administrators.

Those Fellows who have not obtained an advanced degree will return to Baruch in June of 1985 for eight weeks to enable them to complete requirements for a Master of Public Administration (MPA) degree. The tuition will be paid by National Urban Fellows, Inc.

To be eligible, men and women should be United States citizens between the ages of 35 and 45 and have more than three years of full-time administrative experience. They should also have a commitment to the solving of urban problems.

Application forms and details may be obtained from The National Urban Fellows, Inc. 1776 Broadway, 22nd floor, New York, N.Y. 10019. Phone number (212) 541-5711. Completed applications must be received by Feb. 18.

Evacuation Impact on Law & the Courts

Boston Editor's Note: Dr. Peter Iroms, the lead counsel for the Coram Nobis cases of Gordon Hirabayashi, Fred Korematsu and Min Wu, has been working on a book. The book focuses on the legal aspects of the internment of Japanese Americans during World War II. In the book, he discusses the legal principles and practices that were used to justify the internment and the legal challenges that were faced by those who fought against the internment.

The poor guidance Hayakawa received from his staff was a result of his own mistakes. His lack of understanding of the nature of the anti-evacuation movement led to the wrong interpretation of the views of the Anti-Eviction League. The League's members were not as was claimed by Hayakawa, a group of anti-Japanese Americans but rather a group of grassroots leaders who were trying to protect their rights.

Hayakawa's decisions were often based on personal biases and not on a careful analysis of the issues at hand. His failure to understand the complexity of the situation led to a series of missteps that ultimately contributed to the failure of the anti-evacuation movement.

SALT LAKE CITY—A three-day conference exploring the various aspects and consequences of the relocation and internment of Japanese Americans during World War II will be held by the Center for Historical Population Studies at the University of Utah on March 10-12. Forty-two scholars and organizational representatives from across the country are expected to participate in the conference to discuss the internment experience and the current redress movement.

The conference will be held in the visitor to the Topaz Relocation Center, photo and art exhibits, and film screenings. Discussions will focus on: internment camps, the uprooting of families, and the psychological impact of relocation; the role of the JACL in the relocation; the legal and moral issues; the redress movement; and Japanese American politics.

An opening session will be held on March 10 at the Grace Hotel in Salt Lake City. Other sessions will be held at the University of Utah's Center for Historical Population Studies, 211 Carlson Hall, Salt Lake City, UT 84112.

Former Seabrook Nikkei plan reunion

LOS ANGELES—Seabrook, N.J., a farming community, just 32 miles southeast of Philadelphia, has a long history of resistance against the internment of Japanese Americans. A group of Seabrook residents are planning to hold a reunion to mark the 70th anniversary of the evacuation, internment, and redress movement.

Study looks at Canadian aging

WINNIPEG, Canada—A national study on the aged Issei and Nisei in Canada is being planned under the direction of Professor K. Victor Ejimoto, University of British Columbia, and Professor Harry K. Nishida, University of British Columbia. The study will examine the various factors that influence the elderly, such as the impact of the World War II evacuation, internment, relocation, and redress movement, and the challenges faced by the elderly.

Making The Deserts Bloom

Throughout the world, we have seen how successful it is to harness the talents of our retired farmers. These Issei often occupied marginal lands with poor soil, properties that no one else wanted, and made those lands bloom and yield a cornucopia. And it has been feasible to harness the talents of our retired Issei farmers. These Issei often occupied marginal lands with poor soil, properties that no one else wanted, and made those lands bloom and yield a cornucopia. And it has been feasible to harness the talents of our retired Issei farmers.

The Issei are hardworking and industrious people. Their work ethic is evident in their daily lives. They are dedicated to their families and their communities, and they take pride in their work. Despite the challenges they face, they continue to work hard and produce food for their families and the wider community. The Issei are an important part of our country's agricultural history and have made significant contributions to the development of our food system.

In conclusion, the Issei have played a vital role in the development of our agricultural sector. Their hard work and dedication have helped to ensure the stability and sustainability of our food system. We must continue to honor and respect the Issei and their contributions to our country's agricultural heritage.
Lithographs on sale for JACL's redress campaign

SAN FRANCISCO—National JACL Headquarters has announced Jan. 21 that a lithograph entitled, "An American Nightmare," by Boston freelance illustrator Roger Leyonmark, will be published in limited edition for a fund-raising effort to benefit the JACL, San Francisco, CA 94115.

The lithograph will be unveiled at a Day of Remembrance commemoration at National JACL HQ on Feb. 19. The artist will be present to sign and number the graphics, which are being printed by Ikura Kuwahara of San Francisco's Vorpal Gallery. The illustration was provided by the Cleveland Plain Dealer on June 14, 1981, in conjunction with a feature article on the redress campaign. The artist contributed his artwork to the JACL, and provided permission to reproduce the work.

The lithograph will be printed on 100% cotton rag paper, with the graphics are stretched to a 10 x 14 inch format, with a 2 inch margin all around. The lithograph will be issued in four color centers, and the graphics will not be available.

For more information, call (415) 962-5225.

AN AMERICAN NIGHTMARE—This lithograph by artist Roger Leyonmark will be on sale at JACL National Headquarters to help support the League's redress campaign.

Japan Chapter holds fundraiser

TOKYO—A buffet reception was sponsored by the Japan JACL Chapter on Dec. 18 for the third consecutive year, as a combination fundraiser and annual Nikkei get-together. The function, which gathered more than 200 members and their friends, featured a buffet, a five-piece band, a Japanese drum performance and a raffle. Winning the Grand Prize, a round-trip ticket for two to the West Coast, were Jack Sakazaki, successful Sansei businessman and his wife, Mayumi. Other top awards included dinners for two at the New Otani's Top of the Tower, Garden Barbecue and Trader Vic's restaurant, a Seiko watch, a Sony Walkman and a huge stuffed animal. Approximately 100 raffle prizes and 15 door prizes were distributed, with a round-trip air ticket to Osaka and a Japan Rail Pass as the most valuable of door prizes.

The entertainment package was provided through the donation of $400 by Okura Motion Picture Co. Ltd. The raffle netted sufficient donations to cover the Chapter's redress assessment, a gift for a wheelchair to the Japan Times' "Annual Campaign" and a donation to NIH's "Help the Needy" program.

Heading the Program Committee were, includingKen Kusama, Ann Miyahira, Roland Nishimura, Richard Kusima and Ken Ishibashi, with prizes being collected by Bert Fujii, Charles Harada, Dick Yamashita, Coddle Osaki, Tom Inouye and Barry Sakai.
