County Department conducted an investigation of the allegation, according to police.

No arrest has been made and no complaint has been filed, pending review of the allegation, according to police.

Oxnard Deputy Police Chief Harry Papageorge said Jan. 10 his department conducted an investigation into the shooting at the request of the district attorney's office.

The investigation has been completed and the results turned over to the district attorney's office to determine whether or not to file charges.

Bradbury refused to comment on the case. "I can't comment at this time," he said.

Papageorge declined to comment on the investigation, saying, "Any statement concerning the alleged incident will come from the district attorney's office, as they are investigating the case at this time."

Bradbury said he was not surprised by the shooting.

"I have never had a problem with race or ethnicity," he said. "I am not surprised by the shooting, but I am not saying anything at this time."

Sgt. Jerry Lamothe, international representative for the United Auto Workers Union, said he was not surprised by the shooting.

"I have been receiving complaints from our members, and we are conducting an investigation," he said. "We are doing everything we can to prevent further incidents."

Oxnard is a diverse city with a population of about 55,000 people. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the city has a 48.4% Hispanic population, a 15.4% Asian population, and a 11.4% Black population.

Bradbury said he is working with the city's African American community to prevent further incidents.

"We are working with the African American community to prevent further incidents," he said. "We are working with the city's African American community to prevent further incidents."
Sansei physicist writes book on nuclear power controversy

NEW YORK—Dr. Morita Kaku, son of Mr. and Mrs. Yoshi Kaku of Palos Verdes, Calif., has just written a novel on nuclear energy. Nuclear Power: Both Sides, published by W.W. Norton in New York.

An expert on nuclear physics at the City University of New York, he has just finished a 20-city book tour, appearing in over 60 newspapers and television spots around the country, including the Washington Post, New York Times, Christian Science Monitor, AM Los Angeles, Northwestern Today, and Midday Live in New York.

The book, co-authored by Career Trainer, contains articles by Nobel Prize winners, the vice president of General Electric, the directors of several national science laboratories, and anti-nuclear activists. Because it is the only book on the subject of the 20-city tour, the book has already become the standard reference in the field.

Kaku has for years been one of the leading national spokesmen for the anti-nuclear movement, having before almost one million people on June 12, 1982 rally in Central Park, N.Y., and before 100,000 at the Rose Bowl, Los Angeles. He was then the first physical scientist to support nuclear power to be allowed into Three Mile Island after the accident, and Kaku will appear in a special national PBS documentary on the anniversary of that accident.

Kaku started his career in nuclear physics early, winning national science awards for building an airfoil in his mom's garage when he was 8. He graduated first in his physics class from Harvard University in 1968. He received his Ph.D. in nuclear physics from the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley in 1972. He has been lecturing around the world in nuclear physics and has been invited to speak at California Institute of Technology, at universities in Paris, and at the Soviet Academy of Sciences in Moscow. His articles have appeared in numerous physics magazines, including Nuclear Physics, Physical Review, and Physical Letters in theoretical physics.

Last November, along with President Reagan's daughter, Patti Davis, Jacobson and the 1,500растар M. S. H., and Daniel Ellsberg, Kaku was awarded the伍志勋 Gunther Humanitarian Award in Los Angeles.

Nisei asst. attorney general retires

MADISON, Wis.—Roy G. Mita, who recently was appointed as assistant attorney general for the State Department of Justice, has been named as assistant attorney general for the Service Department of Wisconsin, according to Hon. Earle G. Derose, Gov. William E. Brown. Jr.

Mita, a Nisei, spent 31 years in the Army in World War II as a member of the much-decorated 442nd RCT.

While Mita was fighting overseas, his parents were rounded up from their California ranch near Vacaville along with hundreds of other local Japanese American residents and placed in internment camps.

Mita went into service shortly after graduating from the University of California at Berkeley in 1951.

Law

In Chicago, Paul M. Iggasaki was recently promoted to the position of Staff Director of Private Bar Involvement by the American Bar Association.

In this position, he will head up a new internal group in the ADA devoted to involving individual lawyers and bar associations in a variety of methods to deliver legal services to poor persons.

Iggasaki came to the ADA in 1971 from Legal Services of Northern California in San Francisco, where he was a Regional Heber Smith Community lawyer. He also has served as a staff member, board member and chairman of funding for Asian Legal Services Outreach, Inc., the first and only legal services program for Asians in California in the city of San Francisco, where he received a bachelor's degree in political science.

HONORED—Dr. Frank X. Ogasawara, professor emeritus of the University of Hawaii, has been named a fellow of the Royal Society of Arts, the highest honor in the American poultry industry.

How one Nisei survived the Evacuation

JAMES IMAMURA

How one Nisei survived the Evacuation

The personal recollection (as told to Anne Butler Powers, Ph.D., a charter member of Florin JACL, Ramona and her husband, who were among the first Nisei to be evacuated to Arkansas in 1942. They began their work at the University of Southern California (Los Angeles), where they successfully ran a nursery business and operated day care centers for all of the children finished college.

One of the first two-person Nisei nursery operators, Mrs. Katsuo was the only Japanese American of sixty-three in the nursery nation's first Nisei nursery operators, who wrote that had happened to him and the community, how he felt and survived.

This last book may encourage Nisei to sell the "flip side" of their evacuation story. In memory, thoughts, emotions and philosophy of life.—Harry Honda, Pacific Citizen.
GARDENA, Ca.—The UCLA Class Church, 1630 W. 158th St., will sponsor a seven-week Asian American Studies Center, held at the Gardena Baptist Church as student laborers and government contractors, the role of Asian American communities. The objectives of the conference are to provide a forum for discussion of key issues affecting Asian and Pacific people, and to encourage an enduring relationship between the UCLA community and the community at large through an exploration of strategies for dealing with current problems. Conference organizers hope that the event will provide the impetus needed for the development of various student/community projects.

One such project is the development of a community-based legal center which will address the legal needs of the Asian and Pacific population of Southern California.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. Takasago will deliver the keynote address. Workshop panels will include individuals from various Asian/Pacific community organizations.

Interested persons can register at the UCLA School of Law, from 9:30 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. on the day of the Conference. The registration fee will be $2, or $1 including lunch.

For more information about the conference, persons may contact the APLA office at (213) 825-1304.

Class focuses on Japanese immigrants

GARDENA, Ca.—The UCLA Asian American Studies Center, through Student/Community Projects, will sponsor a seven-week evening class entitled, "Origins and Causes of Japanese Immigration." Yoji Itohka, lecturer and researcher, and an authority on Japanese American history, will conduct the class, which will be held at the Gardena Baptist Church, 1630 W. 158th St.

The course will include such topics as student laborers and government contractors, the role of Japanese immigration companies, labor contractors and labor migration from Hawaii, and the specific cases of Okinawa and Wakayama prefectures. Itohka will also spend a class lecture dealing with the unique contributions of Japanese American women pioneers.

The class is free and will be held on Thursday nights, 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., beginning Feb. 10. For more information call the Student/Community Projects at UCLA Asian American Studies Center, (213) 825-1006.

SAN FRANCISCO — The JACL is seeking former employees of the City and County of San Francisco who were forced to leave their employment because of the wartime internment. Mayor Diane Feinstein signed the ordinance on Jan. 24, in a public ceremony in her office. The ordinance was published six days from the date of signing. Supervisor Quentin Ropp, who introduced the ordinance to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, indicated at a press conference the JACL had identified about 15 names by reviewing the payroll records of that period. Most of the employees, identified by the JACL, worked for one of the San Francisco hospitals and lost their positions as a result of the exclusion order, which forced them to move outside of a small area designated by the U.S. or into one of 10 concentration camps or substations, which were established to evacuate the area targeted both alien Japanese as well as American citizens, based solely on a person’s ancestry.

The action by the City and County of San Francisco follows actions of a similar sort by the State of California and the County of Los Angeles. It would provide a legal process for eligible former employees and pay reparations for salary losses up to $5,000, allocated over a four-year period of time. The JACL has identified several names from the payroll records that were available from 1942. The organization is requesting that these individuals, or persons who may be acquainted with them, to provide information to facilitate the claims by contacting National JACL Headquarters, 1755 Sutter Street, San Francisco, California 94115, (415) 921-5223.

San Jose to fete 60th year

SAN JOSE, Ca.—San Jose JACL, one of the oldest of the chapters in the national organization, will celebrate its 60th year of existence with a gala commemoration banquet and program in conjunction with its annual installation of new cabinet and board members on Saturday, February 19, 6:30 p.m., at the Lavalette Hotel, 1200 First St.

The guest speaker will be the Honorable William Marutani of Phila- delphia, Marutani is a jurist in the Court of Common Pleas and a member of the Commission on Wartime Relocation and Internment of Civilians. Judge Marutani participated in the hearing testimony from hundreds of witnesses in and out of the U.S. including many from Santa Clara Valley in San Jose during the commission hearing in 1981.

Congressman Sam Nunn will serve as the master of ceremonies for the evening's program, which will include the installation of 1983 San Jose JACL cabinet officers and new board members by Ron Wakabayashi, Executive Director of National JACL.

Tickets for the $20 a person fillet mignon dinner are available from the following members of the Steering Committee: Ken Iwaga, chairman, 408-241-9090; George Yamada, 415-731-0758; Yuki Udako, 289-8488; George Neyauma, 731-0758; Yuki Udako, 289-8488; (Blue Cross office); Nadine Yamamoto, 289-8488.

U.S.-Japan problems topic of Shimomura talk at SFV

van Nuij, ca. -- JACL needs to prepare for one of the most fundamental issues facing the Japanese American community in the 1980s: the U.S.-Japan trade problem. Shimomura said he had some ideas. Besides reminding American leaders in Japan that the Ni­sei have matured in business, government, and academic circles, JACL can stress they also must change their attitude toward Japanese Americans. "If Nisei is not high now," treat Nisei "as equals!" and as "first class U.S. citizens," and even suggest to them they should care about U.S. business leaders why Japanese Americans are not en­gaged in top management negotiations.

The U.S.-Japan trade prob­lem, Shimomura added, will continue through the 1980s: "How JACL responds is not just a leadership role," he concluded, "but requires a people-to-people focus on the issue."
