Little Tokyo Life (No. 21)—Looking east from Los Angeles St. (lower left corner) in this 1940 panorama taken from the City Hall Tower are sights familiar to prewar Little Tokyo residents: (1) Union Depot tracks, (2) old Eastside, the last brewery in the Little Tokyo area, (3) the city gas tanks which were removed several years ago, (4) old Aliso St.—now the widened Santa Ana Freeway, (5) old Commercial Street, (6) Ducommun Street and (7) Alameda Street with its railroad tracks. In the 1820-80s, farmers grew grapes in the vineyards between Alameda and the Los Angeles River (a block east of the gas tanks); in the Aliso-Alameda corner lot were reed huts for local Indians. In the 1890-1920s, shops, bath and rooming houses run by Chinese and Japanese had lined Alameda. Since then, the area has been zoned for manufacturing-industrial, meaning no more residences.

Detroit jury to hear new charges against Vincent Chin's slayers

DETROIT—For the second time, but on different charges, Ronald Ebens and Michael Nitz are facing trial for having killed Vincent Chin in June 1982.

This time the federal government is trying to prove, not that they killed Chin—an admitted fact—but that they killed Chin because he was Chinese.

Specifically, U.S. Dept. of Justice attorneys must persuade a jury that the two defendants violated Chin's civil rights as they conspired to "threaten, intimidate and assault Vincent Chin because of his race and national origin and because he had been enjoying the accommodation of the Fancy Pants Lounge, a place of entertainment open to the public."

Conviction carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

Jury Selection

Jury selection began June 5 and was expected to continue through at least eight or nine days. The trial itself is expected to last for about two weeks and deliberation another week.

U.S. district court judge Anna Diggs Taylor has indicated that the jury pool, from which the 12 jurors and 4 alternates will be selected, may comprise about 80 individuals. Attorneys for the prosecution and defense can then exercise a total of 55 preemptory challenges, which excuse an individual from sitting on the jury, in their questioning of these 80 persons.

Courtroom observers have reported that those selected for the jury pool thus far have been asked about their views on Japanese auto imports, whether they know about the case and have formed any opinions about it, whether they would be offended by profanity, and whether they could believe testimony from a nude dancer.

Case for Defense

While attorneys have not yet made their arguments in court, press accounts reveal their probable lines of defense for Ebens and Nitz. First, the fatal attack may be characterized as an especially violent barroom brawl, but not a racially motivated one. Defense attorney Frank Eamon is quoted in the June 5 Detroit News as contending that "there is no credible evidence that they [Ebens and Nitz] were racially motivated."

Defense is also expected to allege that Chin himself may have been the instigator of the fight. Eamon has told a Detroit Free Press reporter that "Vincent Chin's role on the night of the incident will be a key at this trial."

A major weapon is a letter from U.S. attorney Leonard Gilman, written July 6, 1983, four months before a grand jury indicted Ebens and Nitz for civil rights violations.

According to the Detroit News, Gilman's letter reads in part:

"I have carefully reviewed the preliminary

Asians among California delegates to politick at Democratic convention

LOS ANGELES—Asian American supporters of the three Democratic presidential candidates were among delegates elected in the June 5 state primary, which garnered 205 delegates for Gary Hart, 72 for Walter Mondale, and 29 for Jesse Jackson.

Among the delegates from the 33rd congressional district (Pomona, Whittier, Glendora, LaVerne, La Mirada, Diamond Bar), which Hart carried, was Mary Miyashita, a member of the California and Los Angeles Democratic central committees. Miyashita, whose political activities date back to 1948, was a delegate to the 1972 and 1980 Democratic national conventions. She is also well known as a community fund-raiser.

The other winning Asian delegates for Hart were Robert Yee of the 11th district (San Mateo), Arthur Wang of the 35th (San Bernardino and parts of Los Angeles), and Joanne Yusi of the 43rd district (Orange, San Diego). About six other Asians for Hart ran unsuccessfully.

More Asians Must Be Appointed

Hart won 133 delegates in the election and was awarded 72 "add-ons" on the basis of his showing. To make sure that California's 345 delegates to the Democratic convention reflect the ethnic makeup of the state's 6 million registered Democrats, national party rules dictate that 55 (16%) must be Latino, 44 (14%) must be Black, 21 (6%) must be Asian/Pacific, and 4 (1%) must be Native Americans.

Since nearly all of Hart's delegates so far are white, some 13 Asian Americans will have to be appointed "add-ons." Hart may ask Mondale to make up a portion of that number in Mondale's add-ons.

Los Angeles attorney Debbie Shon is expected to be one of Hart's appointments. Monterey Park mayor and Hart delegate Lily Lee Chen will attend the convention as part of the contingent of elected officials.

One Asian Mondale Delegate

Although Mondale had a number of Asian delegates on the ballot, only one of them, Michael Yamaki, was elected on June 5. Yamaki won in the 25th district (East Los Angeles, Eagle Rock, Pasadena). Collin Lai, who ran as a Mondale delegate in the same district, was not elected but will attend the convention as an alternate.

Few surprises in primary races for congressional seats, judgeships

LOS ANGELES—Both the Democratic and Republican parties fielded Japanese American candidates for the U.S. House of Representatives in California's June 5 primary race. Results by congressional district are as follows:

3rd (Sacramento)

Incumbent Robert Matsui is a shoo-in for another House term, winning 91% of the votes cast. Fellow Democrat B. Watkins received only 8%, and the Republicans could find no one to run against the Sansei law-maker.

13th (Santa Clara)

Incumbent Norman Mineta did not face any Democratic challengers in the primary, but may be vulnerable in November. The Republican primary winner, J.D. Williams, garnered 27,328 votes, nearly as many as Mineta did, 27,412. Another Republican candidate received 5,687 votes. Mineta was one of several incumbents in California who failed to win at least 50% of the total votes cast in their districts.

29th (Huntington Park, Southgate, and portions of L.A.)

Echo Goto ran unopposed by other Republicans and will challenge incumbent Augustus Hawkins in November. In the primary, Hawkins received 64,304 votes compared to Goto's 7,141.

31st (Gardena, Compton, Hawthorne, Carson, Bellflower, Lynwood)

Mas Odoi lost to Henry Minturn in his bid to become the Republican challenger to incumbent Mervyn Dymally. Odoi received 5,644 votes, compared to Minturn's 8,234 and Dymally's 50,100.

Nikkei Judges

Japanese American judges also won elections in two counties. In Fresno County, incumbent Anthony Ishii, an appointee, was elected to his post on the Parlier-Selma Justice Court, securing 2,139 votes to defeat his two opponents, who received a combined total of 1,848 votes.

In Placer County, challenger George Yonehiro defeated incumbent-appointee W. Jackson Willoughby for a seat on the superior court by 20,662 to 15,038.

White House may take position on redress soon

WASHINGTON—Republicans in the House and Senate are resisting legislation that would provide compensation to former internees, reported the Wall Street Journal June 1.

"The GOP backs an apology," the Journal said, "but opposes paying $20,000 to each of 60,000 survivors."

The Journal added that the administration seems to share that view, but quoted a White House spokesman as saying, "We haven't announced our opposition yet."

Responding from JACL headquarters in San Francisco, redress director John Tateishi said that, "Neither the GOP position nor the White House reactions are surprising in themselves." Their positions showed the need for greater constituent input, he added.

Tateishi encouraged the public to express their views to President Reagan within the next few days.

(Letters should mention the redress bill numbers, HR 4110 and S 2116, and should be addressed to: The President, The White House, Washington, D.C. 20500.)

Festival is berry successful

OXNARD, Calif.—“We will be back next year with an even bigger and better California Strawberry Festival,” agreed the hundreds of volunteers who held a successful weekend celebration at Channel Islands Harbor Park on May 19-20.

Event chair Tsujio Kato estimated 90,000 to 100,000 attended the two-day festivities. His committee did not anticipate such a crowd, many of whom came from as far away as Santa Barbara and Los Angeles.

Even Better Next Year

The supply of specially designed glasses sold out during the first day, but many came back Sunday to look for the item and other strawberry souvenirs, Kato said. “Next year we will be back with even more strawberry foods, drinks and festival-related supplies.”

Officials expect that the event will make a small profit instead of a large one because of the expensive startup costs. They said it cost about $49,000 this year.

Skydivers touched off the opening ceremonies, during which Oxnard mayor Nao Takasugi said he hoped the festival would be “a tribute to the strawberry industry and to the city of Oxnard.”

Sunday's events included a 10-kilometer run, a strawberry pie-eating contest and other festivities sanctioned by the California Strawberry Advisory Board and local growers.

Takamiyama quits sumo, is now grooming successors

TOKYO—Hawaiian sumoist Jesse Kuhaulua, professionally known as Takamiyama, quit the sumo ring at the end of the spring tournament season, ending an illustrious career that began in 1967.

As of May 7, before his last bouts, he held personal makuuchi (top division) records in most bouts at 1,430; most tournaments, 97; and most bouts in professional sumo at 1,648. Besides other records, he was the oldest competitor at age 39.

A naturalized Japanese since June 1980, he will remain in the sumo world as a coach (oyakata) in the Takasago Stable. Takamiyama is already developing a Samoan American, Saleva'a Fuali Atisanoe, 20, who also hails from Hawaii. Known as Konishiki, Atisanoe recently won his second juryo (lower division) championship and his promotion to the makuuchi division is assured.

LITTLE TOKYO LIFE: (No. 21)

Looking East from City Hall

By Harry Honda

In the coming weeks, some scenes in and around Little Tokyo will be presented in pictures rather than words. The two appearing this week have old landmarks (indicated intentionally by small numbers to preserve the panorama) and streets, looking eastward from the City Hall Tower. One thing we can say about Los Angeles is that its physiognomy constantly changes—by man or nature. These scenes go back about 40 years, which Nisei who grew up in Los Angeles can easily recognize. A ride up the elevator to the City Hall Tower today to contemplate the same vista will demonstrate how fast the city has developed since these pictures were taken in the 1940s, though not as spectacularly as the westward view.

One of the most unusual thoroughfares in Little Tokyo was Jackson Street [A]. At the west end, it was a narrow alley, which wiggled its way free no more than five paved blocks eastward to Hewitt St., where it became a dirt street with railroad tracks. For the Nisei kids of the 1910-20s, that was their sandlot playground—alongside the Daiichi Gakuen and homebase for the Oliver Club, a much-respected athletic aggregation in the Southland. (Our late PC advertising manager Charles Kamayatsu was among the Oliver Club pioneers.)

In the Issei heydays of the 1910s, business on Jackson St. rivaled E. 1st St., which still had Jewish merchants at the time. Jackson had hotels, ryokan, bath houses, eateries, pool halls and shops on both sides of the street. Asia Rice Mill stood at 250 Jackson and Japan Club was on the San Pedro St. corner. A tofu maker was also making okashi—manju at 319 Jackson. Yamato Hall (325) was yet to come.

Beyond the railroad tracks of Alameda, many little houses graced Jackson St. but in between were a carpenter (412 Jackson St.), Suehiro restaurant (432), another tofu maker (446) and paint shop (458). Last business on this side of the block by 1930 was a fish store (462). Yasuhara Hotel (235 Jackson) was to survive into the 1930s. There were four furoya (baths) on the street in the 1910s, only one (Shirakawa at 310) by 1930.

San Francisco JACler Yas Abiko's father had started the Rafu Nichibei (newspaper) in Los Angeles in 1922, which was eventually based by 1930 at 327 Jackson (in the same 3-story structure housing Tokyo Club and Yamato Hall). It folded shortly thereafter. In 1937, the Sangyo Nippo started as a morning Japanese daily at 327—and this cub reporter was hired to edit its English section. Active Pasadena JACler Miyo Senzaki's late husband Tsutomu was the other half of this English section as Linotype operator. Thus, this humble start in journalism on Jackson St. may explain this jaunt in print about a street that was.

Little Tokyo (c. 1940)—A panorama of the north sector of Little Tokyo, taken from the City Hall Tower, shows Los Angeles St. in the foreground, the alley [A] that wiggles into Jackson St., crossing San Pedro St. [B], and veering to the left. At right is E. 1st St. [C]. In the lower area bounded by broken line now sits the L.A. Police Dept. headquarters. Landmark buildings are (1) White King Soap, (2) Union Hardware—now the Temporary Contemporary Museum facing Central Ave., (3) old Japanese Union Church—just razed two months ago, and (4) S.K. Uyeda Bldg.—originally the Newmark Bros. Coffee & Spice Bldg. Today urban redevelopment has cleared away many of the structures visible on the southside of East 1st St.

Candidates for National JACL Office

College students nominated to two board positions

Beginning this week, Pacific Citizen will run profiles of the candidates for national JACL office. The series opens with the youth candidates and ends with nominees for president.

Running unopposed for the two youth positions on the national board are Mika Hiramatsu of Los Altos, Calif., and Dawn Narita of Lincroft, N.J.

Hiramatsu, who was nominated for national youth council chairperson, has attended the Univ. of California at Berkeley for the past three years, majoring in genetics with a minor in music (piano, violin, flute and voice). She is a winner of a JACL undergraduate scholarship and says, "I feel greatly indebted to the JACL for helping to finance my education."

At Berkeley she is student coordinator of peer advising for pre-med freshmen, student government senator, volunteer at St. John's Child Care Center, and member of the university symphony.

'A Strong JACL Can Instill Confidence'

Hiramatsu's platform for JACL focuses on civil rights issues and the concerns of younger Japanese Americans.

"While Asians continue to excel scholastically, I feel that unfavorable sentiments have arisen against them," she writes. "At UC Berkeley, where I am a junior, Asians are not considered a minority, comprising 23% of the student population. Therefore, they receive no special attention and socially tend to separate themselves from the rest of the students. This bothers me."

"I feel a strong JACL can instill confidence in Japanese Americans while also encouraging the necessary intermixing with members of all other races and cultures. It should not be thought of as an 'exclusive' organization."

"I would like to get students more involved with the JACL, beyond the Sakura Matsuri and receiving scholarships for school. For example, I think it would be helpful to establish JACL sub-chapters or 'clubs' at college and even high school campuses."

Mika Hiramatsu

Dawn Narita

"Also, as a female, I would like to address women's issues, such as employment and motherhood. Being Asian and female can sometimes count as a double-strike, despite recent equal opportunity advances."

Dawn Narita, member of New York Chapter JACL, is running for national youth representative. She was youth activities co-chair for the 1983 EDC/MDC convention in New York and is also a member of Asian/Pacific American Associations, East Coast Asian Students Union, and Japanese American United Church.

She is studying accounting and finance at New York Univ., College of Business and Public Administration. Active in sports and dance, she recently ran a 10-mile race in Central Park and two weeks later biked 35 miles for United Cerebral Palsy.

In her platform statement, Narita stated, "I feel that one of the goals of the JACL network is to encourage a sense of uniqueness of every individual. A deeper appreciation of others with the focus away from such outward attributes as physical appearance or socio-economic differences will create a more open perspective of others. Once such an attitude has been attained, one can teach others about relevant issues to the Japanese American community."

Memorial plaque dedicated to Miyata

COVINA—A plaque was dedicated May 30 at a bend on the Silver Creek near Sun Valley, Idaho, in memory of Dr. Kenneth Miyata, his parents Henry and Marvel Miyata, both active JACLers, reported.

Miyata, 32, died last fall in a drowning accident while fly-fishing on the Big Horn River in Montana. The Nature Conservancy of Washington, D.C., where Miyata was last employed as a principal investigator for Latin American countries, conducted the ceremonies. (See Nov. 4, 1983 PC.)

The graduate of San Gabriel Valley schools and UC Berkeley received his doctorate at Harvard where he was associated with the Museum of Comparative Zoology. Miyata was a post-doctorate fellow at the Smithsonian Institution at the Natural History Museum, and author of many articles for fly-fishing enthusiasts.

Miyata's last book "Tropical Nature," co-authored with Dr. Adrian Forsyth, also of Harvard, was released by Scribner's.

MUSUBI: by Ron Wakabayashi

Pidgin to da Max

I can't represent that I am conversant in Pidgin, the local Hawaiian dialect. Having had some contact with native speakers, enough to share some of it with my fellow KOTONKS (mainland Japanese Americans), I thought that I would do so as preparation for our national convention in Honolulu, August 12-17.

HOWZIT? can replace "How are you?" Tourists are limited to the word ALOHA. Dr. Frank Sakamoto and his 1000 Club bunch should practice the language so that any of the behavior exhibited at the 1000 Club Whing Ding reception on Sunday evening, prior to the beginning of the convention, might not be completely ascribed to the rest of us. By the way, might I suggest that our convention delegates, alternates and boosters avoid the matching aloha shirt and muumuu for couples. It's a dead tourist giveaway.

Lesson No. 2 is the SHAKA. To properly perform the SHAKA, fold your middle three fingers to your palm, and leave the thumb and pinkie extended. With your hand in this position, rotate it quickly back and forth at the wrist. Once you acquire the dexterity to perform this on one hand, do two hands at once. When you meet Larry Kumabe, the Hawaii chapter president, surprise him. Say "HOWZIT?" and do a DOUBLE SHAKA. He will know that are you are one AKAMAI (smart) KOTONK.

Kumabe and company will be overwhelmed. They will recognize you as a BRAH (brother) or SISTAH (sister) as the case may be. They will feed you PUPUS. The word for eating, by the way, is KAU KAU (like calling two cows). When you finish eating you say "gochisosama" as usual, but also PAU (finished). If you fail to say PAU, our Hawaiian hosts are likely to keep feeding you. It is very much a food culture.

The Honolulu folks are being most kind and thoughtful in planning the convention. They have only one coat and tie event, the Sayonara Banquet. Otherwise, as far as they are concerned, it is aloha attire. Aloha attire can include KAMA-BOKO SLIPPAHS (rubber zoris), showing how casual our hosts would like to have us. MAHALO (thank you), Hawaii Chapter, for your thoughtfulness.

I know in my heart that I am a KOTONK, and proud of it. Even so, I can appreciate the picturesque quality of the local dialect. For example, the term HANABATA translates to "nose butter." I see the phenomenon in my son when he catches a cold. I am sure that many of us will find ourselves adopting the local dialect to some extent during our stay. Except for our untanned feet, we might be able to just blend with the local BUDDHAHEADS. The experience is empowering, not to feel out of place. You see, I consider it a moral victory to be served rice at a Woolworth's counter, or to find individual packets of shoyu alongside the mustard and ketchup at McDonald's.

EAST WIND: by Bill Marutani

'Blue-Jeans' Convention

IN YEARS PAST, in this column we have urged the national organization and its leadership to consider holding a national convention that would be less costly to delegates and boosters. Those attending, particularly from far distances, have their financial resources appreciably depleted in just getting to the convention site. Then to have what's left (very little) mortgaged to room and expensive dinners (with rubber chicken or a facsimile thereof) and going home flat broke—well, it isn't worth it.

Or so a lot of people who never attend must believe.

WE HAVE ADVOCATED that national JACL be imaginative enough and gutsy enough (and considerate enough) to sponsor what we labelled a "blue-jeans convention." Reserve some college campus in some college town, house the delegates in the dormitories, dine in the college cafeteria, convene in the lecture rooms for council sessions. And, yes, why not the university gymnasium for the Sayonara Ball? Instead of "putting on the dog," why can't we just enjoy ourselves, ourselves? And have a lot of folks who otherwise could not find the time or the wherewithal to join the JACLers? We both might find out something about the other, that neither is the stick-in-the-mud that we had thought.

AND THE TREASURIES of the various chapters, district councils and that of the national organization would breathe a welcome sigh of relief. In unison. And with the monies saved, we could then do the work which is the reason for the existence of the organization. All of this makes such eminently good sense (at least to us) that we're just downright surprised why there isn't a serious movement within the ranks or the leadership to promote and to implement this sensible suggestion.

ADMITTEDLY, THERE WAS an era wherein we Nikkei were so psychologically scarred with doubts of our own worth that we may have been impelled to show others that we could and would celebrate in the best hotels in the best section of town in our best. And perhaps it was necessary that we went through that phase, for our own psychological advancement. But that was another year, and we must be willing to advance, to do something a bit different, to experiment.

PERHAPS A WAY to promote our suggestion is for the national organization to budget a fixed amount for expenditures for attendance at national conventions—a budget that has a line-item for cost. After all, the dues paid from the general membership should be applied to serving the needy and the welfare of the Nikkei; and the more that is diverted from this goal the less justification for the existence of JACL.

SO, WHY NOT gather together on some college campus in the next biennium or so? Ohio is among the states that has more colleges than many others. Or the University of Colorado at Boulder with its breathtakingly beautiful panorama. Or the University of Nevada at Reno. If not a college campus, then some retreat up in the mountains or by a lake—where we'd remain together. (Dare to be just a bit different. Show 'em that the Nikkei is not a conservative stick-in-the-mud.)

IN YEARS PAST we had also urged the national JACL to set up a convention committee, a "committee on conventions." This committee would set up guidelines, maintain liaison, control costs, receive and evaluate convention bids (for convenience, cost, etc.) and make recommendations to the National Council. A national convention is, or at least can be, too important—to be left to chance.

FROM THE FRYING PAN: by Bill Hosokawa

The Tales of Two Cities

The spring issue of the Oregon Historical Quarterly carries an article by Timothy Olmstead titled "Nikkei Internment: The Perspective of Two Oregon Weekly Newspapers." As the title indicates, Olmstead, identified only as an Oregon writer of historical subjects, studied the way the Evacuation was treated by two papers, the Hillsboro Argus and the Hood River News.

Hillsboro is in a rural area west of Portland and in 1940 had 462 Nikkei out of a total population of 39,000 in the county. Hood River, up the Columbia River east of Portland, had 245 Nikkei out of a total county population of 11,580. The editors of the Argus were Glen and Emma McKinney. Hugh Ball was editor of the News.

Olmstead's review of the two newspapers revealed the Argus had accepted conventional wisdom about Japanese Americans, hadn't bothered to look very deeply into the issues of the Evacuation and its impact on either the people most directly involved or the county as a whole. It is apparent that the McKinneys didn't have much contact with Japanese Americans, and really didn't care about learning about them.

Their treatment of the continuing Evacuation story was characteristic of the performance of a great many editors who are overworked, have limited interest in digging below the surface, and are more concerned about getting the paper out on time than in seeing that the news is covered thoroughly and fairly. Sadly enough, many newspapers today are still edited in this fashion.

Hugh Ball was different. He had lived in Japan, was familiar with Japanese Americans in Hood River and could sympathize with their problems. He did not take a particularly vigorous editorial stand on the Evacuation—his voice would have been but a whisper against the clamoring of most of the West Coast press—but his news coverage reveals his deep concern.

The return of the evacuees became a raging local issue in Hood River and the way Hugh Ball handled it is edifying. On the side of fairness and reason was a minister named W. Sherman Burgoyne. On the other was Kent Shoemaker who signed his correspondence, "Yours for Hood River without a Jap."

Shoemaker purchased a series of ads in the Hood River News and editor Ball allowed him to rant and rave in this paid space. But, says Olmstead, "news reporting in the paper attacked the racist elements in the community with facts." Olmstead suggests that editor Ball allowed Shoemaker's position to come into the public light so "the position could be seen by all for what it was and those who opposed it would be better able to react to it." In any event, Shoemaker's ads soon disappeared.

There is an important point that needs to be made. It does not appear that the McKinneys were anything but decent, conscientious people. But they didn't know the Japanese Americans in their community so their treatment of news pertaining to the Nikkei was at best superficial, at worst insensitive and misleading. Ball did know them, partly because of earlier experience but also probably because the Nikkei in the community went out of their way to cultivate him.

The moral: It sure doesn't hurt to get acquainted with the media people in town if you want them to know who you are and what you stand for.

Japan angle seen in U.S. comic books

LOS ANGELES—Many comic books published by the Marvel Comic Group with a Japanese angle have been receiving attention across news stands in America.

While Japanese have been portrayed as villains in the past, more and more of them are "good guys", such as Shogun Warriors who are the invincible guardians of world freedom. "Sunfire" with a Japanese hero is said to be one of the best-liked books.

REDRESS PHASE FIVE: Minoru Yasui

Memorial Day, 1984

SAN FRANCISCO—Under uncommonly beautiful blue skies, we participated, with about a hundred others, in the San Francisco memorial services at the Golden Gate national cemetery in San Bruno, California, on Monday, May 28.

There were more than 120 Nikkei names listed on the Honor Roll of Nikkei dead. As we understand, some 80 are interred at the San Bruno national cemetery.

As Richard Nakamoto, commander of the Golden Gate VFW Post, read the names of the Nikkei war dead, while our ears heard the solemn recitation of names, our eyes scanned the innumerable white headstones seemingly marching row on row, across the wide expanses of the fields and on up yonder slopes. Verily, there are thousands upon thousands of war veterans interred here, each with families or loved ones who grieved their passing but were proud of their sacrifices for our country. But our overwhelming emotion was that of regret that such young lives should have been cut short by the holocaust of war.

Harry Tanabe, who came out of the pre-war fields near Marysville, and who is now national aide de camp of the VFW, presided at these ceremonies. Co-sponsoring groups included the Golden Gate Nisei Post of VFW, the MIS association, and the JACL. We were proud, and sad, to participate in this deeply moving community affair.

We remembered back 30 years ago, when vivid memories of World War II were still bitter bright and painfully etched in our emotions. Thirty years ago, these annual Memorial Day ceremonies attracted 400-500 relatives and community people to pay solemn tribute to our war dead. Today, most of our Gold Star parents have passed on, and surviving relatives have been scattered to other places.

I am sure that diminished numbers of today do not necessarily indicate a lack of interest, or a failure of patriotism. As we approached the San Bruno cemetery, the magnificent display of American flags, snapping in the breeze, on both sides of the road and crowning the heights of the hill, still causes a chill to go up and down one's spine and make the heart beat faster!

Memorial Day 1984 re-awakened those mixed feelings of never-ending gratitude and pride for those men who died in the struggles on the Italian peninsula in Europe and on lonely islands of the Pacific. Nikkei names have been added during the Korean conflict, the Vietnam misadventure, and our latest excursion on the island of Grenada—and, sadly, there will undoubtedly be more to be added in the future.

Let us remember, with everlasting gratitude, the brave men and women who assured our place in America during World War II. Let us never forget!

Autumn Wonders in New England & French Canada

Departing LAX, Monday, Oct. 8
Fall Foliage - 8 Days

• Here is an exciting, scenic and historical vacation that tastefully combines the sophistication and gaiety of Montreal, with the warmth and quaintness of Quebec City, the beauty and serene charm of Vermont and New Hampshire in the resplendent blend of fall colors and foliage. The seven-day tour of New England and French Canada covers historical Deerfield, Dartmouth College, Shelburne Museum, Williamstown, Mass., and the Connecticut River Valley. (If there is a Nikkei angle, the information is enclosed in parentheses.—The Pacific Citizen.)

THE ITINERARY

The First Day—You depart this day for New York from Los Angeles International Airport. Your choice of airline and schedule will be furnished. Upon arrival, proceed to the Waldorf-Astoria by airport limousine for overnight accommodations. Feel free to explore New York City for balance of the day. You may want to get a bird's eye view from the Empire State Building, visit the UN Building, or window shop at Fifth Avenue's swank stores, take in a stage show or a play.

Make sure you have a U.S. passport or your U.S. voter's registration slip (a certified copy) as you will be going in and out of eastern Canada.

Second Day—Leaving New York's Waldorf-Astoria, 49th entrance at 8 a.m., the travel carries you along the Connecticut coast to New Haven, then northward to Hartford and Springfield, Mass. After luncheon, pause to see Old Deerfield, a community of priceless 18th century homes that has a colorful history of resisting some of the bloodiest raids of the French and Indian Wars (1754-1763).

The Connecticut River Valley separates Vermont and New Hampshire and offers a magnificent scenic drive via Interstate 91 to Hanover Inn for overnight accommodations. The inn is located at Dartmouth College, an Ivy League campus in New Hampshire. In its mountain setting, Dartmouth with its colonial Georgian architecture reflects a New England tradition of academic excellence and culture. (A Nisei Olympic skier, Hank Kashiwa, attended Dartmouth in the late '60s. He competed either in international World Cup competition or in the Olympics between 1967-1972. At the Sapporo Games in '72, Kashiwa was in the giant slalom. A decade earlier, Chiharu Igaya of Japan was two-time U.S. national slalom champion in '53-'54 while attending Dartmouth. Igaya skied in the '52 winter Olympics in Oslo.) Meals: LD.

Third Day—Again, a beautiful drive through the State of Vermont and the rolling Green Mountain countryside. Following the route of the Connecticut River provides an unforgettable combination of panoramic vistas and autumn beauty.

Soon you enter Canada (province of Quebec). Lunch will be served by the shores of Lake Massawippi, one of the loveliest lakes in this mountain region of Quebec at the Hovey Manor, an 18th century inn that has hosted generations of discriminating Canadians. Continue north through the lowering mountains and quaint villages of the Eastern Townships to Quebec City, the old provincial capital which reflects an old world charm and grace of another era.

Home for the next two nights is the Quebec Hilton. Meals: BLD.

Fourth Day—This morning will introduce some of the famous landmarks in Quebec — the provincial Parliament buildings, the famed St. Louis Gate, the historic Place d'Arms and a side trip to Montmorency Falls and visit the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre with its world famous basilica.

Returning to Quebec City, the afternoon is free. You may want to stroll on Dufferin Terrace and watch the unending line of ships from round-the-world, or take a carriage ride to the native quarters with its old world charm. You may wish to catch up on some shopping in the small boutiques of old Quebec ... or simply relax in the luxury of the hotel.

Luncheon and dinner today and the luncheon tomorrow have been omitted to enable you to sample the restaurants of Quebec City. Meal: B.

Fifth Day—A free morning to do as you wish after breakfast. You may want to wander to the Citadel to watch the changing of the guard at 10 a.m. (weather permitting).

Leaving Quebec City and heading westward through the heart of French Canada, you arrive at Canada's largest and most cosmopolitan city—exciting Montreal. Your hotel is the Sheraton Centre.

Tonight, you are invited to dinner for a party in one of Montreal's popular restaurants.

Two nights in the "Paris of North America" lets you unpack, relax and leisurely enjoy the charm of this fascinating city in an atmosphere of true elegance. Meals: BD Sixth Day—Take a sightseeing tour of Montreal. You will see St. Joseph's Oratory, McGill University, Mount Royal, Notre Dame Cathedral, old Montreal, Place des Arts, and many other sights in the city and residential districts.

The afternoon is free. You will surely want to visit the elegant shops of Place Ville Marie, adjacent to the hotel ... Montreal is a delightful city with many things to do.

Luncheon and dinner today have been omitted to allow you a selection of the over 4,000 restaurants that abound in Montreal. Meal: B

Seventh Day—Today we leave Canada and reenter the United States. This is the day to see the villages and farmlands of western Vermont, the part of New England that has resisted change. You visit Shelburne Museum, a remarkable, 45-acre reconstruction of three centuries of early American life. There are hundreds of fascinating exhibits here, ranging from the sidewheel steamer, Ticonderoga, to the Webb Gallery of American Art.

Continuing south through Middlebury, Rutland, Manchester and Bennington, where you pause to see the Bennington Battle Monument, the evening accommodation follows at Williams Inn on the campus of Williams College in Williamstown, Mass. Meals: BLD.

Eighth Day—It's a beautiful drive among the Berkshire Mountains (Mt. Greylock at 3,491 ft. is the highest point in Massachusetts). The rolling hills are speckled by magnificent colonial homes and estates ... and in the valley are some unspoiled New England villages.

You see Pittsfield, Lenox, Great Barrington (via US 7), and in Stockbridge, you visit the Corner House, a museum with a delightful collection of Norman Rockwell paintings, many of which you may remember from the covers of the Saturday Evening Post years ago.

After luncheon, the drive continues through a corner of Connecticut into New York, arriving at the Waldorf-Astoria about 4:00 p.m.

Board the airport limousine and proceed to the New York JFK Airport. The departure for Home. Airline and schedule will be furnished later. Meals: BL

Vienna woods or new wine in Grinzing or maybe a taste of gypsy violins over a fiery Hungarian goulash. Meal: B

11th Day: Into Venice: A scenic half-day ride toward the Adriatic Sea ends by lunchtime in Venice. (If Marco Polo's name is mentioned, remember this Venetian traveler is credited with the earliest European account of Japan—albeit hearsay he had heard while in China (1271-1291). He called the fabled land Zipangu. Yet it was not until 1543 that Portuguese first stumbled on to Japanese soil and began turning in first-hand accounts.)

An afternoon walking tour provides close-up views of the staggering splendors of St. Mark's Basilica, Palace of the Doges, graceful Bridge of Sighs, gilded copper horses looted from Constantinople. Later, skilled glass-blowers fashion their wares before our eyes. A serenaded gondola cruise on the Grand Canal could be a great way to end the day. Meals: B D

12th Day: Venice-Siena-Rome: These are the picturesque Tuscan hilltowns, vineyards, olive groves on the way to Siena—city of the Palio, the annual medieval-style horse race around the town square. After lunch, continue to Grosseto and down the Tyrrhenian Sea coast to Rome. (The 442nd RCT entered its first combat mission in this stretch of Italy in the Rome-Arno campaign, being joined by the 100th Infantry at Civitavecchia—40 miles northwest of Rome in June, 1944.)

13th Day: Sunday in Rome: Morning tour will cover the Colosseum, the Forum and finally St. Peter's Basilica. Afterwards savor la dolce vita, or visit the Vatican Museum, Catacombs, shop for cameos in Galleria Colonna, toss a coin in the Fountain of Trevi, climb the Spanish Steps and end the Roman experience with dinner in nearby Tivoli and visit the famed Este Villa gardens. Meal: B

14th Day: Rome-Florence: Highway of the Sun leads through the Apennine Hills to Florence, the cradle of Renaissance, for an afternoon tour through its marble cathedral, Giotto's bell tower, the sculpture studded Signoria Square and a museum. There is time to shop for fine Florentine leather goods. Meals: B D

15th Day: To Monaco and Nice: On the way, we pass the Leaning Tower of Pisa, view Christopher Columbus' birthplace in Genoa, and travel along the Ligurean Sea coast, where Italian and French Riviera resorts dot the route enroute to Monaco: Monte Carlo's casino, the royal residence of Prince Rainier and the late Princess Grace. Then on to Nice, Queen of the Riviera. Meal: B

[The mountains between Florence and Genoa are familiar to the 442nd veterans who cracked the Gothic Line through here to hasten the defeat of Nazi troops in April 1945.]

16th Day: Excursion to Cannes: A lazy morning to dabble in the blue Mediterranean or stroll along the Promenade des Anglais. This afternoon, we follow the glittering shores of Cote d'Azur in an excursion to Cannes, the opulent resort of film festivals, and back to Nice after visiting a world renowned perfume factory in Grasse. Meal: B

17th Day: In Southern France: A morning drive through Provence—Van Gogh country—finds us stopping for a leisurely lunch break at Avignon, residence of several medieval antipopes, before continuing through the Rhone Valley, known for its vineyards and orchards, into the mountainous Dauphine region to stay overnight at Grenoble, site of the '68 Winter Olympics.

[Railroad up the Rhone Valley carried men of the 442nd about 300 miles from Marseilles in August, 1944, to the Vosges Mountains, where in late October they liberated the town of Bruyeres and rescued the Texas Lost Battalion.] Meal: B

18th Day: Into Switzerland: We cross the Swiss border at cosmopolitan Geneva, home of many international organizations. On the orientation tour, we see Jet d'Eau, an artificial geyser, and Palais des Nations. We ride along the vine-clad lake shore, past Lausanne, to the porticoed sidewalks and fanciful fountains of Berne, seat of the Federal Government, visit the Bear Pits before resuming the scenic route through rustic countryside to picture book Lucerne. Meals: B D

19th Day: In Lucerne: There's medieval heritage every step of the way this morning from the impressive city walls, a mural covered wooden bridge dating from 1333, ornate houses lining cobblestone streets, to the masterful Lion Monument, in memory of the Swiss Guard of Louis XVI—among the first victims of the French Revolution. Plus plenty of time to shop for watches, climb a mountain via cable car or a cruise on the lake. Or try alpine merrymaking by attending a folklore party with yodeling and alphorn-blowing. Meal: B

20th Day: To Paris: Tidy villages and farms form the last Swiss impressions before re-entering France near Basel, (the tall mountains to the northwest are the Vosges) then speeding through Burgundy and its famous vineyards to Paris via Fontainebleau Forest. Meal: B

21st Day: In Paris: It starts with a half-day of sightseeing the famous Parisian landmarks, Eiffel Tower, Champs Elysees, Opera and Madeleine, Notre Dame Cathedral. Balance of the day can mean shopping at the Left Bank boutiques and art shops, roaming the banks of the Seine, visiting the Louvre or sipping pernod at a sidewalk cafe. The tour director can help with ideas for the evening. Meal: B

22nd Day: From Paris to London: The tour, "Le Grande Europe," nears its finale as the morning drive through Picardy and the valley of the Somme—scene of dramatic WW1 battles—reaches Calais, where the Hovercraft whisks us back to Dover and then onto London's Cunard International Hotel around 5 p.m. Meal: B

23rd Day: Homeward Bound: Fly back to Los Angeles, arriving the same day. Meal: B

1984 PSWDC-Mikasa Nisei Relays ...

Orange County still champs

By Harry Honda

SANTA ANA, Calif.—For the eighth straight year, the Orange County JACL has cornered the PSWDC-Mikasa Nisei Relays championships with a strong turnout of orange-jerseyed athletes. Fourteen records were either tied or broken during the day (June 3) at Santa Ana College's tartan track before a turnout of some 800 participants and spectators.

Those running for Pasadena JACL in previous years bolstered the blue-jerseyed East Los Angeles JACL team which this year finished 2nd overall, edging Gardena Valley JACL, a powerhouse during the late '60s and early '70s. And Venice-Culver JACL came in 4th this year, shining over its rival West L.A. JACL, a team which has had its share of honors over the past 30 years.

But the headliner of the day—indeed the 33 years of Nisei Relays—was Dr. Robert Watanabe, winning another 100-yard dash in record time of 11.1s. and the 440 in 1:01.8 in the men's 40+ division. A co-founder of the JACL Nisei Relays in 1952, his presence on the track through the decades has been an inspiration to nearly two generations of Nikkei sports fans.

Orange County JACL president Carrie Okamura, 1984 Nisei Relays co-chair, indicated from next year the events may be in metric lengths—thus initiating a whole new set of records. And to streamline the program from a total of 84 events (the 1952 Relays only had 20) to a lesser number, some of the divisions may be regrouped. Co-chair Russell Hiroto, East L.A., doubled as clerk of the course this year.

Long-time Relays pillars Shig and Aiko Takeshita, Ruth Watanabe, Steve Yagi of West L.A.; Norm Hata, James Mita of Gardena Valley; and Dick Sakamoto of Pasadena represent a foundation that stands for JACL's biggest one-day outdoor event for Nikkei youth. This reporter could have missed seeing some of the other stalwarts who had left by 4 p.m.

Nikkei human service agency is latest to honor Morimitsu for community service

CHICAGO—Special honors for the president of the Japanese American Service Committee highlight the annual meeting of the 37-year-old human service agency, to be held 2 p.m., Sunday, June 17, at the JASC headquarters, 4427 No. Clark St.

Following a brief business program, the consul general of Japan, Hirokazu Arai, joins Noboru Honda, JASC past president, in a special presentation honoring Arthur T. Morimitsu.

President of the JASC for the past three years, and a recipient of the Hall of Fame Award from the city of Chicago as one of its 25 outstanding senior citizens in 1983, Morimitsu was recently conferred Japan's Fifth Class, Order of the Sacred Treasure for his contributions to the development of the Japanese American community and furtherance of Japan-U.S. relations.

A native of California, where he was graduated with a B.S. degree in commerce from the Univ. of California at Berkeley, he was working for the state of California civil service when he and his family were interned at Tule Lake concentration camp in WW2.

While there he volunteered to serve in the U.S. military intelligence service and was assigned to the Mars Task Force, a commando organization in the North Burma campaign. After a stint also with the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) in India, he was assigned to the War Crimes Trial in Tokyo, and came to Chicago for discharge in 1946.

Many Offices

Active in numerous community organizations, Morimitsu is a co-founder of the Japanese American Council, the umbrella organization for six local community organizations, and is currently serving as one of its officers.

He is a member and officer of the Japanese American Assn. and the Mutual Aid Society of Chicago, has served as a board member of the Japanese American Citizens League, is a member of the Japan America Society of Chicago, and is active with the North Park Covenant Church.

A past commander of The Chicago Nisei Post 1183 American Legion, he was head of that war veterans organization in 1980 when it campaigned successfully to obtain support for the redress bills by the Illinois American Legion and the 34th Infantry Division.

Morimitsu is presently the Midwest regional board chair of the "Go For Broke/MIS" national Nisei veterans organization. He was also a national officer of Pettigrew Press, publisher of "Yankee Samurai."

In 1982 he was appointed vice president and English editor of Chicago Shimpō.

He married the former Virginia Asaka in 1946, formed the Aladdin Carpet Company in Chicago that same year, and retired from business in 1981. He is the father of twin daughters and a son.

Education

Annie M. Omiya of Stockton, Calif., was honored with the New Educator's Award by the San Joaquin County teachers association on April 16. She received the award for teaching excellence.

For the Record

In the profile of George Yonehiro, newly elected superior court judge of Placer County (June 1), the name of his sister was inadvertently omitted from the list of his family members. She is Mae Sagara of San Fernando Valley.

Law

Mike Kawachi was named legal counsel to the 1984 Nisei Week Japanese Festival. The annual celebration takes place Aug. 15-26 in Little Tokyo, downtown Los Angeles. Kawachi, a member of East Los Angeles JACL, has been practicing commercial law since 1978.

Japan honors Nisei industrialist, four others

NEW YORK—Henry Isamu Dady, a Seattle-born broker who developed the Japanese market for Georgia kaolin—a clay used in printing—and who assisted in the industrial and technical exchange between the two countries, received the Third Class, Order of the Sacred Treasure medal in conjunction with Emperor Hirohito's birthday (April 29).

Dady volunteered for the U.S. Army after a brief internment at Minidoka concentration camp in Hunt, Idaho, and later joined the Military Intelligence Service. In 1982, he was awarded the title of Honorary Admiral of the Georgia Navy.

From 1952 to 1970, Dady aided more than 500 Japanese paper and pulp engineers and management personnel who visited the U.S. to learn new technical methods for the revitalization of Japan's postwar industry.

He has supported a number of community organizations, including Japanese American Help for the Aging, New York; Japanese American Social Services, New York; Keiro Nursing Home, Seattle; and Nisei Aging Project, Univ. of Washington, Seattle.

Dady was among five Nik-kei men cited by the Japanese government for their leadership and cultural contributions.

Ichiro Shirato, former professor and guest lecturer at Columbia, was given a Fourth Class, Order of the Sacred Treasure. Toru Sakahara, past president of Seattle Japanese Community Services and past national JACL vice president investigative report, including witness statements taken by the Highland Park Police Dept.

(1958-60), was also awarded a Fourth Class, Fifth Class rankings went to Edward Tsutakawa, former president of Spokane Chapter JACL, and Arthur Morimitsu, vice president and English editor of Chicago Shimpō.

"Based upon my experience (as U.S. Attorney and previously as chief of the criminal division) in this office and my previous experience as a state prosecutor for 10 years, I have reached certain preliminary conclusions. . . .

"There appears to be serious questions about the success of any criminal prosecution under the federal civil rights statutes.

"Even assuming that the attack [by Ebens and Nitz on Chin] was racially motivated (which is not at all apparent), the connection between the assault and enjoyment of a place of public accommodation seems to be totally missing."

Prosecuting attorneys S. Theodore Merritt and Amy Hay have filed a motion to suppress the letter from evidence presented to the jury.

CONVENTION DELEGATES

In addition to his work as a criminal defense attorney, Yamaki is charter president of the Japanese American Democratic Club and past president of the Japanese American Bar Assn.

Mondale supporters who ran unsuccessfully in the Los Angeles area include Dennis Mukai, Lani Sakoda, Mas Fukai, Rose Ochi, Bill Tan, and Violet Rabaya. The latter two will attend the convention as alternates.

Mondale won 47 delegates in the primary and is entitled to 25 "add-ons." Los Angeles attorney Fred Fujioka will be one of those named.

Three Jackson Delegates

Three congressional districts each elected one Asian delegate for Jackson. The 8th district (Berkeley, Piedmont, West Oakland) voted in Ying Lee Kelley, a former Berkeley city councilperson and a delegate for George McGovern at the 1972 convention. Kelley has campaigned against the arms race with the No. California Bilateral Nuclear Freeze Committee and is involved in such groups as Asian Law Caucus and Oakland Chinese Community Center.

Irene Hirano won in the 28th district (Culver City, Westchester, and portions of Los Angeles). She has promoted women's rights as the head of a number of organizations, including T.H.E. Clinic for Women, National Network of Asian and Pacific Women, Calif. Commission on the Status of Women, and the JACL Women's Concerns committee. She is also president of Asian/Pacific Legal Defense and Education Fund and chair of Leadership Education for Asian Pacifics.

A victor in the 31st district (Gardena, Compton, Carson, Bellflower, Hawthorne, Lynwood) was Bert Nakano, longtime redress activist. Nakano is national spokesperson of the

The News also reported that FBI agents had failed to uncover any racial remarks made by the two defendants to Chin.

Charged originally with second-degree murder, Ebens and Nitz pleaded no contest last year to a reduced manslaughter charge for having beaten Chin to death. In the highly publicized case, it was reported that the two men had yelled anti-Japanese epithets and other obscenities at Chin, who was celebrating the end to his bachelorhood with friends in a topless bar.

About 20 minutes after a scuffle broke out and all were ejected from the bar, Ebens and Nitz found Chin and killed him with a baseball bat.

Wayne County circuit judge Charles Kaufman fined each $3,780 and placed them on three years' probation in March 1983, touching off a national protest at the sentencing. Maximum punishment was 15 years' imprisonment.

National Coalition for Redress/Reparations.

Kelley, Hirano and Nakano were among the 18 Asians in the running as Jackson delegates statewide.

Jackson, who received 14% of the delegates elected in the primary, did not qualify for "add-ons," which are given only to candidates who receive at least 20%.

Delegates attending the Democratic convention in San Francisco next month will select their party's presidential nominee and take part in the adoption of the party platform.

Party Unity Most Important

Mondale delegate Yamaki stated that he sees the involvement of Asians in the three campaigns as a positive development and noted that many of those who ran as delegates were doing so for the first time. He expressed hope that they would remain involved in the political process regardless of the election's outcome.

Yamaki has met Mondale and is convinced that "he can produce." At the same time, he cautions that Asian Americans should not be polarized into camps for specific candidates rather than committed to the total issue of Asian American rights.

"The main objective is to beat Reagan," he said. Jackson delegate Nakano credited cooperation among Blacks, Latinos and Asians, as well as the efforts of Asian Pacific Americans for Jesse Jackson, for his election.

Nakano said he, too, will work toward getting President Reagan out of office regardless of who the nominee is. He stressed, however, that the Democratic Party "has to incorporate all the disenfranchised people that Jackson represents" in order for party unity to be achieved.
