Rep. Levine Introduces Bill to Make Manzanar a National Historic Site

WASHINGTON-Rep. Mel Levine (D-

WASHINGTON—Rep. Mel Levine (D-Los Angeles) Jan. 16 introduced legisla-tion making the World War III Manzanar Interment Carnp a national historic site.
Manzanar was the first of ten such camps to house the 120,000 persons of Japanese ancestry, most of them American citizens, who were forcibly removed from their horness in cosstal areas in 1942.
"This site will be a lasting reminder of a tragio, mistake in our nation's his-tory," said Levine. "We must not allow the provention of the proposed of the history," said Levine. The force of the history, and the proposed of the pro-cessions in the said of the pro-train of the proposed of the pro-rations in the pro-train of the pro-train of the pro-minent to freedom wavers.

Theservation of the camp is a with step toward enauting that there will never be another like it.

Unique Opportunity

"The Manasar camp will serve as a focal point for efforts to preserve a historical record of the interment of Japanese Americans, and of the conditions they channed," Levine, 28th, "We have a unique opportunity to pricord first-hand accounts of a critical period in our history for future generations, but we must act

SAN NISE. Call — The Sama Clars Chapter of the Asian American/Facilic Islanders for Fair Resportstoments will host a forum on Feb. 2, from 2 to 5 p.m., at the lockstimes Resettlements and Chainal Center, Inc. (199 W. San Carlon, which is off Delham, in San lock). Scheduled on the program are keysott speaker. Congressman Robert Matsul and Congrussman Roberts Milest.

The bill establishes an advisory commission, composed of former Manzanar interness, local residents, Native Americans and the public to be appointed by the Socretary of Interior.

Although the aire would include only the main camp, the entire Manzanar relocation outeit encompassed an area of approximately 6,000 acres, with the 10,000 internees housed in a $500-acre area enclosed by barbed wire fences and secured by guard towers.

MINNEAPOLIS — Nick Susuki, a 34year-old father of two, has leukemia, a fatal blood disease. His only hope for survival is a bone marrow transplant from nurvitated matched donor. The National Marrow Donor Program (NMDP) and Nick's family are searching for that miracle match for Nick.

Because it is most likely that Nick will find a match with a person of Japanese descent, his family is issuing a plea to Japanese Americans to take a simple will be donor drives in Chicago, Twin

Racial Hate Mail Targets Japanese Shop in Puyallup

TACOMA, WASH
It's disturbingly ironic.
A Japanese restaurant in Puyallup receives a hate letter the same month the federal government begins to make reparations to Japanese

War II.

And people are painfully reminded that the fear, prejudice and ignorance that prompted that action about 50 years ago still exist.

Government and law enforcement officials admit they need to do a better job of tracking hate-bias incidents, but they also said some victims' unwillingness to come forward makes tracking the incidents and prosecuting the crimes difficult.

It stated: "Yoo know very well us here in Puyallup assure as hell does hate you damn slant eyes. You will not take over this town like you're trying to do all over the Umited States."

The writer pledges to ruin the res-taurant and tell people not to patron-ine the business. SAN FRANCISCO—The recent decision by the FBI announced Jan. 7 to interious up to 200 Arab Americans per week about possible terrorist activity is an aisming and ominous development which is similar to the approach that led to the tragedy of the Japanese American intermment; said Bert Nakano, pokesperson of the National Coalition for Recent Reparations of Jan. 10.

"While the FBI certainly can adhould do all it can to prevent terrorist acts, it is wrong and only reinforces racially sheeting to single out people for investigation based solely on their ancestry or national origin, "added Nakano." WASHINGTON — Orange-red Oriental persimmons have about three times as much vitamin C as citrus, U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist Jerry A. Payne has found.

Payne found certain varieties of Oriental pessimmons provide 218 milligrams of ascorbic acid per 100 grams of fruit, or up to 363% of the recommended daily intake of visianin C. Citrus—the bestknows source of visiamin C—normally contains 40 to 70 mmg of ascorbic acid per 100 grams of fruit.

Oriental persimmons—two to four inches in diameter—are not to be confused with the smaller, seedier American type that grows wild in the South and is "puckery," he said. Payne found certain varieties of Orien-

Varied Proposals to Remember Significant Events of 1942 Aired

By Harry K. Honda

While in the preliminary stage, the Japanese American community is looking at 1992—the 50th anniversary of the first year of World War III—to conduct a series of commemorative events that-have particular significance in the lives of Nikkei in America. Various ideas were proposed during a community planning session, called Jan. 21 by Allan Nisthio, NCRR, and J.D. Hokoyama, JACL, with a good number of representatives present for the initial mooring session.

of representatives present for the initial morping session. "This will be a year when the Japanese American community can pool together their resources and membership to make the remembrance and commemoration of significant impact." Nishio predicted.

EDITORIAL OF THE PACIFIC CITIZEN:

Regarding Ethnic Labels

a letter to Pacific Citizen a few weeks ago, Maggie Ishino In a letter to Pacific Citizen a few weeks ago, suggest easier of Los Angeles took strong exception to use of the term "Whites" in this newspaper. She asserts "Whites" in reference to certain people is derogatory in the same way that "Japs" is an offensive and derogatory word for Japanese. "I wonder how the term Yellow would reflect a person of Oriental background if the term (eurow would renect a person of orlental oackground if the word were seen in an American newspaper," she wrote.

One of the realities of life is that on occasion it is important to classify individuals by race or ethnic background. Most newspapers have a policy of noting these details only when it is pertinent to the store. to the story. And they try to do it in a way most acceptable to the concerned.

For example, if a group of ministers were to issue a statement on some social issue, it would not be necessary to point out that they are of any particular race. But if a group of African-American ministers were to issue a statement on an African-American matter, it would be pertinent to note their ethnicity.

At this point it becomes important to know how an ethnic group wishes to be identified. In the past African-Americans were known as Negroes. They used the word proudly, as in Allied, Negro College Fund. But "Negro" fell out of favor with some. "Black," once considered derogatory, came into use as black pride and black power were held high. Now, many prefer African-Amer-

Persons of European descent are widely known as being of the white race, or Whites. Webster's Third International Dictionary recognizes Whites as "belonging to a racial group... represented by the European Caucasoids and usually distinguished from per-sons belonging to groups marked by black, brown, yellow, or red skin coloration..."

Whites are also known as Caucasians, and here Webster give us some problems. The first definition of Caucasian is "a member of one of various native peoples of the Caucasus (as the Abkhas, Georgians, Mingrelians, Circassians, Kartvelians, Chechens, and Lezghians). The second definition says a Caucasian is "a member of the white race of mankind . . "Thus it would seem proper to call a Caucasian a White.

However, to avoid giving the kind of offense that perturbs Maggie Ishino, the word "Anglo" often is used as a substitute. But, newspapers have received strong protests from people of Germanic background who say for various reasons that they are inmante outchground with say in various reasons into they are in-sulted by being referred to as Anglos. They declare they are not Anglo-Saxon and have little in common with them. The French, Russian, Slavic, Mediterranean and Nordic precincts have yet to be heard from, but presumably the purists among them also have Obviously, people are quite thin-skinned regarding references to skin color. Yet there are occasions when it is necessary to identify a person by race. On those occasions this newspaper will continue to describe persons of European descent as Whites. But fear not; since some unpleasant implications are involved, Asians will not be called Yellows.

Can Japan Say 'We're Sorry for What We Did to America on Dec. 7'?

Eibert L. Watson publishes in Indianapolis a small bimonthly newspaper called World War II Times. As the name indicates, it is a publication about War II and the men and women who fought in it.

Watson was a leader in the World War II Commemorative.
Association which persuaded Congress to designate the work of Jane 2 to 8, 1961, as a time for commemorating the 50th anniversary of World War II. (I do not know why June was selected: that was airs months before Pearl Harbor?) Watson says the event would not celebrate the war or bash the enemy all over again, but would be a tribute to those who fought in the national defense.

Last Dec. 7, speaking at a Pearl Harbor memorial service in Indianapolis, Watson came up with an interesting idea. He said:

"Today is not a day to dredge up old wounds. It is a day of remembrance, not of rancor. And it also gives an opportunity for old adversaries to clasp hands in friendship, not in entity. "We stand today on the threshold of the 50th annibersary of World War II. Is it asking too much of our former adversary of World War II. Is it asking too much of our former adversary to say. "We are soory for what we did to America that day?"

Such a statement by Japan's political leadership would reverberate across the length and breath of this plobe. It would provide a fitting beginning to the anniversary years of World War II. Though it would not reaste the lose, it would alleviate the deep, personal wound inflicted on us."

letter. It said in part:

"I have wondered recently what the effect would be on our country if the Japanese American continuity would call upon Japan to apologize for the attack on Pearl Harbor. An apology by Japan, in my opinion, will go far toward helping us to step looking backward and, finally, moved toward the future with new confidence and anticipation. Apologies have become not uncommon. When the federal Bush apologized for the way Japanese Americans were treated. President Rapan apologized when he signed the Redress bill. President Carter apologized when he signed the Redress bill. President Carter apologized when he signed the Redress bill. President Ford apologized when he signed a bill to put Decontrol of the President for the President Rapanese was the President Truman also made some kind of apology when he welcomed the Ad-Jald home from Europe.

On the other side, Emperor Harohito, in a strangely convoluted forms used in formal Japanese, said when he visited the U.S. that he was sorry about the way they were treated, and Prime Minister Kaiffa repeated the apology recordly. I think Watson is right when he says on apology about Pearl Harbor would have a subatory effect on U.S. Japanese relations. It might even defuse the rancor the anniversary is bound to str up.

But I'm not sure what and Japanese Americans courte to

If may a ten decision in a sire what part Japanese Americans ought to have in suggesting the move to Tokyo. Contrary to what Watson suggests, the question is not the impact such a move by Nise would have in the United States, but in Japan. It appears to be a constructive idea, but is there any reason why we

Within This Decade

RECENTLY came across an article making some preliminary observations based partly on the 1990 U.S. population census. Since the Census Bureau for the first time included a category of "Asian American" (thanks to the efforts of the Nikkei congressmen), analysis are now able to extract data Tocusing on Asians in these United States. Those of you who reside on, the West Coast may be quite familiar with the findings and projections; however, many other, like myself, have never been exposed to these statistics.

So, I'll share some of them with the hought you might find them as interest-ng as I did.

ing at 1 did.

SO, HOW MANY are we talking about? The present count for U.S. Asian-readent is calculated at 6.9 million, or from 3.8 million ten years ago. That? an increase of some 81%, the largest percentage increase for any ghring group in the U.S. This growth was 18 times, greater than that for non-Higgmini whites. (at 4.4%), five times greater than Afracticans (14%), and more than twice than the Higgmin gain (19%). Overall, what this translates into is that Asians comprise 2.8 of the U.S. population, up from the previous 1.7%.

WHERE DO MOST of these Asia

reside? First, by regions (in descending percentage): 56% in the West, 18% in the Northeast, 14% in the South, and 12% in the Midwest. In terms of states which have 100,000 or more Asians, there are twelve: California (where Asians comprise almost 40% of the population), Hawali, New York, Illinois, New Jerney, Texas, Massachusetts, Pennylvania, Virginia, Protida, Michigan and Washington. Overall, 93% live in metropolian areas divided to the center city area and the immediate sub-robs. By comparison, it is reported that whites are twice as likely to live in the suburbs.—Wolf listerpet to mean two-thirds in the suburbs.—Wolf of the proting of th thirds in the suburbs.

IN TERMS OF age, education and income the prospects for the future and the concomitant social impact can be integring. The swrappe age is 30, compared to 36 for whites; education is among the highest, and household income is also highest of any—including age 25 years and above: 14% have gone to college for five or more years (reflected to the conficiency) another 21% have correlated four years of college (versus 13% for all American). The median household income for Asians was $1,578 in 1985, compared to $25,656 for non-Hispanic whites, $20,000 for Hispanics, and $16,004 for Afro-Americans. However, the "joker" in these income figures is the modifying label Thouseholf", Asiate most often have two or more breadwinners (or rice-gatherers) in the householf. Asiates compared personal incomes, the average in 1988 war $156,476 for Asians compared to $17,828 for non-Hispanic whites, about an $85 personal income differential.

In other words, it may be anticipated that in the conting years, at this (younger). Asian population matures, its economic power will increase at a greater rule and proportioe than the (older) white population. And it is said that economic power has the capability of forging improvements, if utilized properly.

THE GOLDEN STATE of California

THE GOLDEN STATE of Calif THE GOLDEN STATE of Caliform continuous to have the potential where the greatest impact might be file. During the 80s, the Assan population more than 6 ox bled, so that today more than 10% of the population is Asian, of whom abox there quarters live in the Los Angele Basin and the Bay area—14 million and 90,000, respectively. By the turn of the century, it is projected that Californi will have more than 4.5 million Asian comprising 13% of the intate's population.

this mean? Well, some observations and then some suggestions.

SOME MUNDANE OBSERVA-SOME MUNDANE OBSERVA-TIONS are that supermarkets stock many Asian foods, department stores carry pe-tite outfits, haberdasher's carry 'shois' sizes (sta has 'Ken," a longitime advertiser in the Pacific Citizen), banks hire bi- and multi-language tellens, etc. In short, the business community and traders in gen-eral, are beginning to sit up and take notice of this potential large market of affluent and rising porsumers. And that means economic power, as a consumer as well as purveyors of goods and ser-vices with resources.

as well as purveyors of goods and services with resources.

TO CLOSE WITH some suggestions, really just some random thoughts. Take California as an example: if within this decade the Asian percentage is to rise from the current 10 to 13%, then the existence of this highly-educated and dedicated segment within the California populace should be reflected at least proportionally in all segments of the social, economic and political fabrics of the Golden State. This means at least one-tenth of the Governor's cabinet, the judgeships starting from the Supreme Court, both house, of the legislature, and right on across the board. They are certainly competent and equalified, as our own census figures immutably reflect. I can't this of any reason why this should not take place, can you? Indeed, we should already have one-tenth of "the action." Their, the climb we confront should only be three percent grade.

'COME SEE THE PARADISE':

Japanese American Internment Draws Different Comments

■ From the South Bay JACL December 1990 Newsletter.

"Come See the Paradise" now playing world has changed, but people should not at the Century City AMC Century 14 forget the relocation camps."

Theater, is a major film about the interment of Japanese Americans during World War II. English director Alan Parker has focused on President Roosevel's 1942 edict to isolate more movies as the Company of the Koosevell's 1942 ediet to isolate more than 10,000 loyal Jaganese Americans in bleak concentration camps. The main theme is an intermedal love story involving Dennis Quaid as a blue collar labor agitator who falls in love with and marries a beautiful Niset (Tambya Tomita) over the protests of ber parents.

The UPI Interview

In an interview with Vernon Scott (UPI), Parker said:

"Because so little attention had been paid to interminent camps, I thought it would make my film more important. Nobody have much about it saide from a coughe of had TV shows. "I was difficult to extract infor-mation from the Issel. By law, they wenn't allowed to become American citizens until the 1950s. They'd been here 50 years, but no longer were Taganesee and not American

"Sixty percent of the 110,000 Japanese Americans sent to the camps were born here. Yet no Italian- or German-American was ever put in a camp. That is the tragedy, the abuse of civil rights.

Other Reactions

Many articles have appeared in reaction to "Paradise." Henry Chu in L.A. Times (Dec. 22) mentions that many former internees agree that Parker's depiction of life in an internment camp hits the mark.

Sue Embrey stated: "It sure felt like camp; it really did. I stood in the middle of Main Street (on the set) and I felt like. "Oh my gosh, I'm back in Manzanar."

The central love story came in for the hardnest criticism by Japanese Americans. Among the critics was Guy Aoki (in The Rafu Shimpo) who lambasted the film's white-length-gets-Asian-dampel motif and the relegation of the internment store, in a lesser point of forus. Pubers motif and the relegation of the internment story to a lesser point of focus. Parker has responded by saying "I was very re-spectful of what everyone had to say, but the more that I talked to everybody in different groups, I realized that I could not possibly please everyone, and there-fore had to have a point of view of my own as a filmmaker. And file is as in-valuable to me as protecting their truth is to them."

Stockton JACL Golf Tourney Runs Out of Daylight for 2 Foursomes

By Ted Younds
STOCKTON — Seventy-six golfers teed-off on a warm, sunny Sonday (Nov. 11) but only follows made it into the club house as the sun disappeared behind the hills. The Stockton IACL golf tournament ran out of daylight.

Stockion JACL, god insurament no out or display, As the last foursome groped in the fading light, they found themselves in the spotlight in the club house. — Herm Urenda and Mix-ley Marling were among the ladders. The last foursome were composed of members from the local intellight fort, and they introduce the committee that they had "no trooks at all "because they were used to working affending things in the dark. The summary:

all because they were used to sworking and all because they were used to sworking and the finding fluings in the dark. The summary:

Low Vern: Sam Alasim. 77.

Low Vert: Tom Kamban. 56.
