JACL national board meeting news

Education Committee gathering resources

SAN FRANCISCO—The JACL Education Committee delineated and defined its role to board members at the national meeting held here Oct. 25. With specific goals in mind, the committee will be soon making preparations to assist members at the local level with helpful education tools and strategies, according to Dele Shimasaki, committee chairman.

Shimasaki outlined to members the committee's three tasks:

Instructional materials:
This is considered the major focus, Shimasaki said. The committee will work with publishers to produce a resource guide that would be made available to each chapter.

would be made available to each chapter.

The focus of the guide would aimed at the Japanese American experience as well as Asian American issues.

• Representation: The committee, Shimasaki said, will prepare itself to respond and react as needed to appointments to education committees, school boards and other organizations at the local level.

• Post-escondary educations issues to be monitored and addressed will be süministration and testing such as the SAT program. Shimasaki said the committee is trying to collect edisting resources, textbooks and supplemental materials dealing with the Japanese American experience to incorporate into the program.

MORE ON PEAR H SANFRANCISCO—As the 50th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor approsches, JACL continues its own plans to counter potential trouble, including regional workshops to train local chapter officials on strategies.
Bill Kaneko, president of the Hawaii Chapter and JACL vice president of public effairs, reported in the Oct. 11Pacific Citizen that national and international media have been camped in Honolulu for the big event on Dec. 7.

At the national board meeting, Kaneko and Steve Okino of the Honolulu office of Hill and Knowlton, a public relations firm, presented draft materials for media packets that would be sent to all chapters. After reviewing these materials, JACL national staff is expected to send the packets out within a week.

Gov. Wilson vetoes bill that would protect redress

SACRAMENTO— Citing a po-tential loss of 7 million dollars over 5 years, California Gov. Peter Wilson vetoed S.B. 353 which would have closed a number of loopholes that currently allow the state to claim allor a portion of redress money from Japanese Americans on Medi-Cal.

The bill was designed to recon-cile recent California Department

JACL criticizes governor's move

SAN FRANCISCO—"Our community did not deserve this," said the JACL in a written statement responding to California Gov. Pete Wilson's veto of SB 353. Citing urgen! need for the the bill, the JACL lead Gov. Wilson used 'baseless and cursory arguments. 'SB353 clearly stated that if federal funding was endangered in any way, the bill could not be implemented. Matsui protests Piche sentence

WASHINGTON, D.C. Rep. Robert Matsui (D-Calif) on Oct. 16 issued a statement condemning the four year sentence handed down to Lloyd Piche for violating the civil rights of Jim Loo. Matsui called the sentence "a slap on Lloyd Piche's wrist and a slap in the face of the Loc family and the Asian American community."

In his statement, Matsui called for the Department of Justice to review Judge James Fox's decision and appeal the case before the expiration of the thirty day deadline.

Matsui talks world politics to chamber group

LOS ANGELES - Calling the 700 attending the 40th anniver-sary celebration of the Japanese 700 attending the 40th anniversary celebration of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce of Southard California as "cream of the crop" in the community, Rep. Robert Matsui (D-Calif.) affirmed that "we (Japanese Americans) have a stake in future of U.S. Japan af fisirs," and urged that the relationship be developed through federal and state officials, He was JCC's keynote speaker Oct. 11 at the Bonaventure Hotel.

Commenting that anti-Japanese sentiment is strong around Washington, D.C., Matsui feels the 50th anniversary of Pearl Harbor can be better addressed by remembering it as a memorial to those who died at Pearl Harbor, "Matsui declared. "We shall be hearing (anti-Japanese hate) stories for the next three years," Matsui feered. "Let's not over-react. Let's not become apologists."

audience, many of whom were Japanese businesspersons. Turning to the Middle East, Matsui pointed out that relations are as strained as ever. Matsui commented that Middle East students who are educated in the U.S. have lost their values. Correspondingly, he added that Americans also have lost touch with some of their beliefs such as with some of their beliefs such as honesty and hard work.

Matsui praised the chamber's 40 years of service, especially its contributions in bringing both Japanese and American values to the community. What a difference, he said. In 1951, he said he could not buy a home in certain places in Sacramento; that some hotels in Tahoe discriminated against Japanese; and that it was hard to find lawyers to try cases in front of an all-white jury.

Matsui also observed that the Judge Clarence Thomas confirmation hearings will mean two things: It may deter some young people from entering public service when young leaders are sorely needed, and that the issue of sexual harassment will profoundly affect the workplace.

Among the messages was one from Susana Fujimori, the First Lady of Peru, congratulating the JCC and thanking the U.S. Nikkei for sending clothes and donations to help the needy in her country. It was read in Spanish by Juana Miyashiro de Kanashiro, director of the Peruvian Japanese Hideyo Noguchi School of Lima.

California educator seeks reelection

SANTA ANA, Calif.—Dr. Audrey Yamayata Noji announced plans to seek reelection to the Santa Ana Unified School District Board of Education at the Nov. 5

Board of Education at the Nov. o election.
Noßi, the current school board vice president, said she will base her campaign on her three-year accomplishments: a 35 perfeent decrease in the school drop-out rate, a one-year, 10 -point increase in SAT scores, and an increase in programs benefiting limited English proficient students.
Noßi, who is also the nassistant dean of Student Services at tancho Sanisaco College, added that she will also focus her concerns on the Asian Pacific commu-

The Santa Ana Unified School District is the ninth largest in the state. Ninety-three percent of the student population is from an ethnic minority background and 62 percent have limited English proficiency. Last spring, Neji organized an Asian parents conference with representatives from the Vietnamese, Korean, Cambodian, Lao and Hmong communities

BILL HOSOKAWA

Of plates, frijoles and garlic

S ome of my more prosperous, or fore-sighted, friends up in the Pacific sighted, friends up in the Pacific Northwest are proud owners of seaside property. They have homes on, or close to, remote stretches of beach where clams and oysters beg to be captured and eaten, where luscious Dungeness crabe scuttle about in crystal-clear water, where one needs only to throw a batted line overboard to eatch flounder, perch and a variety of rock fish. I envy them.

ought of them the other day when I thought of them the other day when the November issue of Discover magazine came. This is a monthly publication, recently acquired by the Walt Disney corporate colossus, whose mission is to make science understandable and interesting to dots like me. Even so, I find myself losing my way in articles about such mysteries as the solar system, human genes and why computers are able to do the things they do. do the things they do.

But some of the articles are compelling ading. What caught my eye in the current issue was one reporting that the "geological plates" that make-up the earth's crust are on the move under the waters of the Pacific Northwest. Shifting ever so slowly but with irresistible force, they are building up enormous pressures. Maybe in a couple hundred years but possibly much sooner, the pressures are likely to be released in major earthquakes which have a good chance of causing the shoreline to drop abruptly below seal evel. Goodbye beach home, clams, oysters, crabs and

So it is not California alone that is in danger of falling into the Pacific. Now that the Soviet threat has diminished, we have something else to worry about. I presume my Northwest friends, who had the fore-sight to glom on to beach property when it was affordable, also have been wise enough to have taken out appropriate amounts

There are ethnic angles to this effort which makes it an appropriate subject for this newspaper. For one matter, many people like Mexican food but are dismayed by the consequences of enjoying it. For another, a Japanese researcher named isao sakai is reported to have won first prise at a Tokyo inventors' festival for "developing a method of blocking the chemical reaction in garlic that creates offensive breath and body odor."

Sakai-san's invention, according to the article, is a solution of magnesium, calcium and plant'extracts in which the garlic clove is soaked for a few days. The treated product is reported to retain all of garlic's desirable properties but the stink vanishes about a half hour after consumption. The article says three years ago a Taeko Bybee established a company to treat garlic with the Sakai solution and market it. The raw garlic comes, of course, from the fields around Gilroy, Calif., and the finished product, at about double the price, is reportedly available in 35 supermarket chains.

Never having been a fan of either garlic or Mexican cuisine, I am in no hurry to test the Sakai solution or the defused beans. But I will suggest to several friends that there may be ways to help improve their social standing.

Perhaps of greater widespread signifi-cance was another Discover article about how scientists are working to make mem-bers of the vegetable kingdom behave. Like taking the explosive power out of beans and the reek out of garlic.

A tonsorial 'must' for tourists

A VISIT to the barber is one of the experiences I always look forward to whenever I come to Japan. What a treat! I cannot speak for the ladies, which is the interest should include such a visit in the itinerary as a "must," an integral part of "seeing" Nippon, for it is nothing that one experiences in America, including the toko-ye is in Little Tokyo. Let me try to describe the experience, if I can.

I can.

IT STARTS with a hot Turkish towel being wrapped around the head followed by a brisk hand massage of the scalp with a dash of lotion of some kind. The barber trims some of the longer stuff with a portable, i.e. battery rechargeable, clipper followed with scissors snipping all around. At one point, he turned to a straight-raror to feather-trim some of the longer hair. Then comes the shampoo.

Three times. (I kept count.)

LIKE EVERYTHING ELSE in this treatment, the shampoois briskly rubbed in, leaving that taut tired ole scalp tingling. Then following the rinse comes that hot, welcome Turkish towel. (I always get sleepy at those stages.) And then the shave, which im yease ought to be easy for the tokoyo-san, what with little facial hair I have. But never mind, the barber goes over the entire face, apply-ing that straight razor like the experienced pro that he is, starting from the forehead, between the eyebrows, along both eye-lids (I kid not), cheeks, upper lip, chin, throat as well as side-burns. Oh yes, he directed his artistry to both nostrils and both ears.

With the straight-razor. (I peeked to see if what I thought was being used was so.)

OH I FORGOT the shoulder massage Japanese barber I've ever visited Every Japanese barber I've ever value applies that unforgettable massage of both shoulders and upper back. The technique involves cupping the hands in such a way that the pounding is accompanied by a staccato pop-pop. Without that noise, you're not getting the genuine stuff.

It's got to pop-pop.

AGAIN COMES another hot Turkish and use the active now hirsuite-free face.

towel over the entire now hirsute-free face. And again the cure for insomnia, laid back And again the cure for insomnia, laid back in the barber chair. But I listened to the chagter in the shop, for barbers in Nippon are no different than those in the U.S. in this respect, much to my puzzlement. I found there was very little I could recognize as to my idea of nihongo, although I recognized a few hokugo words or terms. As I was getting ready to pay the bill, I inquired of the barbers (there were three of inquired of the barbers (there were three of them including a woman) whether what I had been hearing was Aomori-ben (dialect). My guess was confirmed.

I DON'T RECALL ever hearing Aomori-ben because back in the U.S. I never met any Issei from Aomori-litroshima, you bet; also Wakayama, Yamaguchi, some Nagsno, and quite a few from Kagoshima. (Now there's a dialect if you've you're heard (Now there's a dialect if you've you've heard you bet; also Wakayama, Yamaguchi, some Nagsno, and quite a few from Kagoahima. Now there's a dialect if you've ever heard one; Kagoahima-kenfolksspeak some dang-fangled foreign language, not nihongo.)

WALKING BACK to the hotel from the barbers, I passed KFC (Kentucky Fried Chicken) and since I'd been stuffing myself with all those nihon-meshi (Japanese foods). I decided to try some crispy chicken. I don't know whether I ended up with an Aomori-style haircut but the young lady spoke in machine-gun pace, which I concluded was "Aomori-style." But my ears which had been rearred on the lary pace of Hiroshima-ben could jot absorb what she was saying something about "We're sold out on that platter." Rather than struggle with more Aomori-ben, I simply thanked her (Koto-wari mass) and walked back toward the hotel for a tempure udon. Oh, yes, the price of the haircut. Just a bit over $20 U.S. and worth every penny of it.

New letter of apology an insult

Reference is made to the September 20, 1991 edition first page article: ORA Changes Appearance of Letter of Apology in which national redress chairwoman Cherry Kinoshita describes the new Frestdenial letter of apology as more pleasing while accepting the ORA a decision of being unable to effect any changes in the text of the letter as previously recommended by the JACL/LEC.

The acceptance of the ORA action by the LEC as described in the PC article amounts to a sollout and a further insult to the dignity of redress recipients for whom the long redress fight was carried out. The expression of apology is, after all, the final, official statement that embodies what the whole issue was all about. Adding a gold seal from the President and using larger stationery without an individual salusteion and date demonstrates the arrogant attitude of the ORA toward the recommendations that this writer made in two letters to the editor, our Nissi congressmen and the ORA. The mere window dressing ORA agreed to does not needed and should not be accepted needed and should not be accepted by chairwoman as being "more pleasing." It is suggested that the national office call upon every necessary resource to get ORA to follow recommendations. The issue of apology is much too impor-tant to accept less.

The Hatchimonji Torrance, Calif.

Responding to Hatchimonii letter

Letter writer Ike Hatchimonji is to be commended for his efforts to urge the ORA to add a proper salutation and date to make the letter of apology like an impersonal form letter," as stated in his letter to the editor. Now his indignation at the JACL-LEC and the National Redress Chair for accepting the changes which the ORA was able to accomplish and calling it a 'sellout' is absurd. Although the comment was edited to appear as mine. I was quotied to appear as mine. I was quotient as the comment was edited to appear as mine. I was quotient as the comment was edited to appear as mine. I was quotient as the comment was edited to appear as mine and the comment was edited to appear as mine. Although the comment was edited to appear as mine, I was quoting ORA Administrator Bob Bratt who hoped that the revised letter incorporating some of the changes recommended by JACL-LEC would be "more pleasing"; however, if writer Hatchimonji would hold the original letter side by side with the new letter imprinted with the gold presidential seal, I am sure he would agree that the revised letteris in fact "more pleasing" and more appropriate for revised letter is in fact more pleas-ing" and more appropriate for framing as an official document, if recipients so desire.

Perhaps therein lies much of the problem in continuing to call the apology-a "letter" rather than an historic document.

the apologys "letter" rather than an historic document.

Asto a "proper salutation," not only would it have been understandably cost/time prohibitive to have such a document printed, then have each customized by individual name, but the matching of the individualized document with the appropriate check, in addition to making sure it was stuffed in the appropriate envelope, would have increased the potential for human error to an norrendous level, particularly when over 70,000 such transactions and numerous duplicate mames are involved.

More to the point than the lack of salutation, our deep disappoint.

of salutation, our deep disappointment was that no changes could be effected in the wording, which, in its ambiguity, falls short of conveying a genuine apology. Missing, too, is the kind of sentiment conveyed in "An American Promise" issued by President Gerald Ford for the rescission of Exec. Order 9066 in 1976 which proclaimed. We now know what we should have known then — not only was the eventuation wrong. should have known then — not only was the evacuation wrong, but Japanese Americans were and are loyal Americans. The apology would have meant much more if it had affirmed once and for all that the loyalty of Americans of Japanese ancestry should never have been in doubt.

ORA Administrator Bob Bratt stated that they did the best they could but that the Administration could not be moved. It might be of interest to writer Hatchimonji that the concluding words of his May 17 letter that perhaps what is needed are more letters.

JACLers' were not heeded. Although I personally and through hothers, heard grumblings of dissatisfaction with the apology letter, ORA reported that they received fewer expressions of complaint than 'you could count on one hand."

In the face of such apathy, could ORA or JACL-LEC be faulted for ORA or JACL-LEC be faulted for achieving less than total success in convincing the White House' Rather than brick bats, ORA de Rather than brick bats, ORA deserves credit. Although JACL-LEC, in the course of its years of redress efforts, has become immunized to barbs to a great extent, these attempts on behalf of the community to improve the apology document is perhaps another case of "you're damned if you do, and you're damned if you don't."

AMERICA'S RIVIERA

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA U.S.A. 1129 SUNSET CLIFFS BOULEVARD ON THE OCEAN

San Diego's most unique waterfront mansion-9,500 sq. ft. of new luxury, built on a huge 1/2 acre lot on the water's edge, the last of its kind in San Diego overlooking the Blue Pacific.

Every room in the residence has unobstructed 180° white water views, full security, 5 bedroom suites with walk-in closets, 7 full baths and 3 fire places.

The estate includes a 2-bedroom, 2-bath guest house with unlimited ocean views, and a 3-car motorhome size garage plus ample parking

This Mediterrean style villa was built by a custom home builder of 50 years, with craftsmanship, to his exacting standards, for his personal residence. A change of plans has made this total luxury property available for the executive seeking that one-of-a-kind home, designed for uncompromised living and entertaining on the ocean.
