Election roundup

NAO TAKASUGI MARK TAKANO
Running for California Assembly Running for Congress

Asian American inroads

A stout number of Asian names and of friends to the Asian American communities were sprinkled in the June 2 California primaries. Here is a brief rundown of some of the winners and losers:

In the Congressional races, two new prospects appear from Southern California: school teacher Mark A. Takano (D-41st District) of Riverigde, and Diamond Bar Mayor Jay C. Kim (R-43rd). Both rann'n districts without an incumbent as California gained seven seate—from 45 to 52.

Takano led in a seven-way bittle with some 10,000 votes. The 31-year-old Yonsei son of longitime Riverside JACLers William and Nancy Takano, his Republican rival had nearly 13,000 votes. The 43rd is described as 46.5% Republican, 44.2% Democratnumbers which augur a stiff campaign ahead.

JACL National Director Dennis Hayashi has sent a letter to H.

JACL National Director Dennis Hayashi has sent a letter to H. Ross Perot asking for an apology for the potential presidential candidate's racially derogatory language in a recent interview. While discussing his views on economic aid to the Soviet Republics during a recent television interview with Barbara Walters, Perot referred to Japan and said, You know the Japanese give money, and they say that you have to buy Japanese products. We give money and say, "Rots of ruck (lots of luck), fellows, just buy whatever you want anywhere. And they take our money and buy German, Japanese, French, British products-not too smart, Barbara." In his letter, Hayashi wrote, "Usage of cheap racial stereotypes to discusse, Japan and the United States, although currently fashionable, is both demeaning and insensitive. Statements such as yours which are made on national television serve only to See TAKES/page 5

LOS ANGELES—Bashing, racism, xenophobia. Strong words, but when used imprecisely they are dangerous to U.S.-Japan relations, according to speakers at a June 5 conference titled "Political Correctness and Japan-bashing."

The conference featured notable experts in the field: Chalmers Johnson, UC,SanDiego professor; Glen Fukushima, director of public-policy and business development, AT&T-Japan Ltd.; Tachi Kiuchi, chairman of Mitsubishi Electronics America, Inc.; David Arase, assistant professor of government, Fomona College; and Pat Choate, political economist and recently named advisor to H. Rose Perot on Japanese affairs. The event was sponsored by the Japan America Society of Southern California and the Los Ange-See CONFERENCE/page 3

St. Louis Nikkei honored for global work

George Hasegawa was recently onored with the 1992 International Citizenship Award at ceremonies held in St. Louis. The award goes to individuals who strengthen the community's global ties.

Hasegawa has played a major role in the success of the Japan American Society of St. Louis, and is an active member and past president of the St. Louis Chapter, JACL.

The Nisei was also honored with the Fifth Class of the Order of the Sacred Treasure by the Emperor of Japan for his "distinguished contribution toward the promotion of friendship and deepened under-standing between the United States and Japan

Choate.
Fukushima said race was not the prevailing source of U.S. Japan tensions. Focusing on such inherent characteristics as race can lead to profoundly negative wallow implications. For the local control of the co policy implications. For the logical conclusion is that if race is the true source of bilateral friction. we are "wasting our time discus ing, negotiating, and trying to resolve specifice problems, since their resolution will not end the tension and acrimony, said Fukushima

But Arase warned that Asian Americans have increasingly be-come easy targets for racial big-otry fueled by anti-Asian antipathy. Speaking as an Asian American who studies Japan, Arase said, "Asian Americans have felt the fallout ... There has been a rise in anti-Asian violence and hate crimes, citing the killing of Vincent Chin and the defacement of Japanese American community While Arase said Japan de-serves a degree of "measured criti-cism" for its policies, he claimed it is the inaction of both governments is the inaction of both governments to correct inequities that has caused current tensions. The failure of political lendership of both countries affects Asian Americans, said Arase. It's a recipe for making Asian Americans a lightening rod of anti-Japanese feeling." Kiuchi said Japanese nationals working in the United States need to become more open and need to become more open and friendly. "Japanese in the United States have a big stake in improv-ing U.S. Japan relations. We are 'sitting pretty,' socializing with other Japanese instead of inter-acting with Americans." Kiuchi preted their Japanese cometimes noted that Japanese sometimes avoid courtesies such as saying thank you in airplanes and stores sleep in meetings, and fail to en-gage in after-hours socializing with Americans.

In aseven-waytray, Rorea-torn businessman Kim, who also speaks Japanese, reads and writes Chinese, was in a close race with a former assemblyman, Charles Bader, and won by 600 votes: 12,614-12,012. Because the 43rd District has a decisive Republi-can majority in the tri-county sub-urb of Los Angeles, San Bernar-dino and Orange, Kim reportedly has a strong chance in November to become the first Korean American congressman.

While the voter turnout state-wide was the lowest for a presidential primary, veteran Con-gressmen Norman Y. Mineta (D-15th) of San Jose and Robert T. Matsui (D-5th) of Sacramento, both unopposed, scored impres-sively with some 71,000 and 65,000 votes, respectively. Inci-dentally, all but one incumbent congressman, Robert congressman, Robert Lagomarsino(R)of Ventura, were victorious in the primaries.

PSW: amendment is discriminatory

The recent passage of a Los Angeles charter amendment that could lead to discriminatory business practices has been protested by the PSW JACL office.

Charter Amendment G, the "Lo-Charter Amendment G, the Lo-cal Preference and Domestic Con-tent Requirement," sends a "highly disturbing message that lends credence to the Buy American hype, and by extension, xeno-phobia and scapegoating," said Jimmy Tokeshi, PSW regional director. He said he intends to raise these concerns with the city attorney's office.

The district actively opposed the amendment that, among other provisions, gives preference for Los Angeles city purchases to domestic bidders. According to Tokeshi, however, the amendment was vague and failed to define the "domestic content" content. "domestic content" requirement as well as what constituted a "lo-cal firm. "The real danger, he said, is that discrimination nesses on an arbitrary basis could result simply on the basis of a "foreign-sounding" firm or busi-

There is also a serious potential for an even greater assault in terms of incidents of discrimination and preju-dice, specifically against Asian and Pacific Islanders, for busi-nesses and for individuals with the passage of Charter Amend

An afternoon at Amache

A long four-hour drive south and east of Denver, not far from the Kansas border, is the sun-hurned little town of Granada. U.S. Highway 50 bisects Granada, and the fields around it are green with spring.

But the green vanishes a half mile or less from the highway. Beyond, out of the reach of life-giving waters, is the desert—gray sand nearly as fine as flour in which cactus and sagebrush cling to life:

Here, just a mile or so outside Granada, the War Relocation Authority inits wisdom established in the summer of 1942 the Amache relocation camp for Japanese Americans exiled from the West Coast. The camp was occupied from Aug. 7, 1942 until October 15, 1945. At its peak the population was about 7,500.

Some of its former residents and many of their friends came back to the campsite over Memorial Day weekend. More than 200 of them, including a busload from Livingston, Calif., (whose chartered bus broke down in a snowstorm while crossing the Rockies), returned to observe the 50th anniversary of their exile.

It was both a sober and lighthearted occasion. Fifty years had erased many of the bitter memories just as time had obliterated most traces of the camp. (Not far away is the Granada town dump. On the road to both the dump and the campsite is a sign that says: "No junk cars or dead animals.") of the campsite itself, there are only a few concrete foundations and the survivors among the trees that the evacues had planted, to mark its location. And the cemetery. We must not forget the cemetery.

The remains of most of the 110 who died in the camp were taken back to the Weqt Coast after the war. But long after the campsite was abandoned, some weathered wooden grave markers were found. It was obvious the elements would destroy them in a few year.

The Central Denver Optimists Club, whose membership is primarily Nisei, made the camp its project and replaced the wooden markers two at a time as finances permitted. Resting on the gray sand now are eight dignified polished stone markers with the following inscriptions:

Soichiro Nagai Dec. 26, 1944; Fusako Kubo Oct. 16, 1942; John Paul Tuttsui, Nov. 27, 1942; Steven Tamura; Tomiko Kamimoto, Aug. 31, 1945; Matsuda Baby Dec. 25, 1944; Tomoki Ögata June 27, 1944. Isi t possible all were stillborn? There isom more stone, slightly larger than the others, that reads: Evacuees Unknown, Rest in Peace.

Adjoining the cemetery is a granite shaft to the memory of the 31 U.S. servicemen from the camp who lost their lives in World War II. Their names are etched into the stone. A letter in one of the names has been chipped slightly, probably by a bullet fired by some cretin with a hunting rifle.

After the memorial ceremony the crowd retreated to the Senior Citizens Center in the nearby city of Lamar for a potluck lunch. Everyone seemed to be having such a good time—renewing old acquaintanceships, making new friends—that it was difficult getting them back into the buses. Even the youngsters, who had come along to experience a bit of family history, seemed to be having a good time. It was a nice way to end a memorable occasion. [5]

Rising Sun movie: ultimate bash?

Twentieth Century Fox placed a casting call in the Rafu Shimpo of March 10, 1992 seeking Asian American actors and actresses for feature film. The roles are: Eddie Sakamura, Ishihara, Yoshida, Tanaka, and Jingo—all but Jingo are male Japanese. Jingo is a 'beautiful, exotic blend of races... half Japanese and half African American. Though the films title is no given, the names clearly point to Michael Crichton's Rising Sun. .. Rising Sun is a riveting mystery novel set in current Los Angeles whose plot revolves around the great Japanese conspiracy. The Japanese have infiltrated the LA Times, our universities and governments, local and national, our business and research facilities, even our underworld of gang violence, for the economic conquest of America. .. Rising Sun, in my opinion, is literary and commercial exploitation of anti-Japanese racism of the worst kind. The question is: What will be our response to 20th Century Fox's Casting Call?

At the very least, J.A. performing artists ought to read Rising Sun to determine whether they wish to be associated with the novel. Would Jewish performing artists wish to be associated with a production of 'The Protocols of the Elders of Zion,' the depiction of the great Jewish conspiracy to overthrow Christianity and to take over the world?

How comfortable will will be to hear the same hero say. The Japanese are the most racist people on earth? Or a detective for the L.A. Police Department say, The Japanese are masters of the smear job. Or describe the $400 million in lobbying spent by Japan as 'enough to pay the campaign costs of everybody in the United States Senate and the House of Representatives."

Senate and the House of Representatives."
As a movie, Rising Sun may prove to be the ultimate "Jap bash." A fictional U.S. senator says, "You know, I have colleagues who say sooner or later we're going to have to drop another bomb. They think it'll come to that." I think we have choices: (1) do nothing; (2) help to produce and promote Rising Sun; or (3) boycott and protest it. It's deja vut of 42.

The question of "Who is responsible for the PC staff?" was clarified by an amendment which passed with the required twothirds majority at the national convention in 1984 (Honolulu):

A PC, with access to JACL information and, free to inform the JACL membership of what is happening in the organization, it was felt, would be the best guarantee against the abuse of power by the appointed or elected officers of the JACL.

The very language which made possible the past abuse is re-introduced in the 'new' reorganizational proposal: 'The PC staff would be part of the JACL national staff, accountable to the national director.'

I N AN EARLIER column on these pages, I wrote about efforts being made on behalf on Koreani-an-fu (comfort women) who reportedly had been impressed into serving the sexual program of the Japanese military during World War II. The i-an-fu ladies not only seek formal acknowledgement from the Japanese authorities of what took place but also contrition expressed by payment of money. Since that particular column was written, there had been some tenuous responses from quasi-official sources that such a program existed but at the same time failed to acknowledge any such program. More recently, a handful of Japanese veterans reportedly have come forward with an expression of willingness to verify that overseas centers of houses of prostitution existed, but whether the matter had gone beyond that is unknown to me.

However, a recent ruling by the Supreme Court of Japan, while not on the question, would appear to diminish any chances of financial payment, contrite or otherwise.

DURING WORLD WAR II non-Japanese Asians were conscripted into the Japanese Asians were conscripted into the Japanese Imperial Forces, including thousands from Taiwan, then a colony of Nippon. Indeed, as to Taiwanese alone, it is reported that some 30,000 were buried as Japanese nationals. Pointing to Article 14 of the Japanese Constitution, which guarantees equality under the law, some 24 Taiwanese initiated a lawsuit in Japanese courts seeking monetary benefits that Nipponese veterans and military employees enjoy. The demand for compensation was Y5 million (about $41,000) per claimant. In affirming the 1985 ruling of the Tokyo High Court that under existing Japanese laws no means of relief existed, the court suggested that this was a matter for the legislative branch to address. Previously, in 1988, the Diet had voted Y2 million (about $17,000) as consolation money to each wounded Taiwanese veteran of to surviving family members. This sum was far less than payments made to Nipponese veter-

TAIWAN REMAINED a Japanese colony until the end of the Pacific war, and upon a peace treaty being entered into in 1952, the residents of Taiwan became citizens of the Chinese nationalist government situated in Taiwan. Further, in order to restore relations with the People's Republic on mainland China, in 1972 Japan severed its ties with Taipei. As a result, the already diminished chances of Taiwan's residents' of claiming compensation from Nippon all but vanished. And the recent ruling of the Supreme Court of Japan confirms this conclusion. It is believed that this ruling will adversely impact upon a number of other non-Japanese Asian's claims against Japan.

That maybe so. But if the Korean i-anfu's contentions are established in the minds of public opinion, it will be an issue that will be most difficult to cast aside. Even with legal jargon.
