NCWNP Council supports lifting of gay ban in military vada Pacific District Council of JACL sup-ports President Clinton's move to lift the ban that bars homosayusla for Armed Forces

The motion was presented by Jon Kubokawa, president of the Diablo Valley Chapter, JACL, at the council's Jan. 31

Chapter, JACL, at the councils Jah. 3 quarterly meeting in Marysville, Calif. "We further urge Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sen. Sam Nunn (De Ga.) to reconsider his position," Kubokawa said. "In this day and age, it is unacceptable that the military institutions created to fight for democracy do not understand or comply with the Bill of Rights and the Constitution of the United States.

Discussion prior to the vote showed differing attitudes on the action that was taken on the controversy. Some members believed that JACL should wait and study President Clinton's executive order that will be issued in six months. Others wanted time to return to their respective chapters for input.

Still oth ers criticized the JACL for not taking positions in a timely manner and said this was a clear civil rights issue, one on which JACL should not have hesitated. Kubokawa added, "I took a stand because cases of racism and discrimination are on the rise. One of the lessons of World War II and the events that led to the incarceration of Americans of Japanese ancestry is that it was and still is wrong to discriminate against a class of people."

NCWNP District Gov. Lucy Kishiue said, "I must borrow from Martin Luther King Jr. who said, 'An injustice against one is an injustice against all.' That is the whole principle behind civil rights."

NCWNPD Regional Director Patty Wada, who will forward copies of the motion to the president and Sen. Nunn, said, "I feel the ote indicates that we have heeded the lessons in our own history in this country. It wasn't that long ago that we Japanese Americans were banned from public schools, banned from owning land and banned from marrying whom we wanted to marry. In our case, as in this one, the central question is 'Can a segment of our population be denied the right of full participation in this socia right which is theirs by birth? Our district has stood up and said 'no, this is wrong."

The mysterious racial slur

Who admits to it? Round and round it goes in Spokane, just who said it nobody seems to know

By GWEN MURANAKA

"CHINKS!" says a prominent local leader during a Spokane, Wash, meeting. Is it a neo-Nari skinhead? Is it a neo-Nari skinhead? Is it a hop-nari sa Democrat, a leader of the Washington state Democratic party. Marge Davis, Spokane County state committeewoman, allegedly used the slur Nov. 9 during a meeting of the executive board of the Democratic Central Committee. Rather than painships or censuring Davis. than punishing or censuring Davis for the remark, the local Demo-cratic party has dodged the issue in a strange series of events that continue to unravel.

"I must be dumb, because I did

"it and I'm not sorry I did it," Davis said Jan. 14, according to a report in the Spokesman-Review.

Davis, president of the Local 400 of the Hotel and Restaurant

Employees Union, explained that she was angry that Patrick Ng, owner of the Davenport Hotel, refused to unionize. In a contradiction in the same newspaper article, she later denied using the slur at the meeting.

Further confusing the matter, the inquiry committee appointed by the Spokane County Demo-cratic Central Committee, found a "preponderance of evidence" that the word "Chinks" was used at the meeting, but that, "John Workland (another party official and secretary-treasurer of the Local 400) made the comments referenced in the complaint letter referenced in the compliant letter and not Marge Davis." Despite the findings of the inquiry com-mittee, no formal action has been taken against either Davis or Workland.

In yet another contradiction,

Sentencing set for killer of Issei woman

The sentencing of Jeremy Brinkley, who confessed to the brutal burgiary, rape and murder of an 87-year-old Isses woman, is scheduled for Feb. 19 in the court of Judge Gene Gomes in the Fresno, Calif., Court-house, according to Elisa Kamimoto, JACL Central California regional director.

Brinkley confessed to the burgiary and rape of Chiyoko Ono and another woman, who was 68-years-old, both from Selma, Calif.

One's grandson, Dr. Gary Kone of Berke-ley, Calif., requested the community's sup-port in the form of letters urging Judge Gomes to prescribe a life sentence without parole.

The court clerk has reported that Judge Gomes has received a considerable amount of correspondence regarding this case.

JACL: Action against Cincinnati Reds owner Schott is not enough

JACL National Director Dennis Hayashi ys that Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott's one-year suspension from Major League Baseball and $25,000 fine are not enough. The reaction was made to the Feb. 3 decision imposed by the executive council of Major League Baseball against Schott for her use of racial and ethnic slurs against African. Asian and Jewish Americans.

Schott, whose sus-HAYASHI pension begins March 1, has said she was sorry if she offended anyone with her com-ments but has stopped short of admitting she was wrong.

Hayashi, to whom Schott apologized by phone in December of 1992, said, "We feel the ruling does not go far enough. We have told Marge Schott that we want to meet with her and that any apology she makes to the Asian American community must be a Schott did meet with Cincinnati-area black and Jewish leaders last year, but has refused to hold a similar gathering with Asian Americans. Describing the sitution as "unsatisfactory," Hayashi called on Reds management to intervene and arrange such a meeting with the 64-year-old owner.

Board says 'no discrimination' in Yamashita disenrollment case

The Naval Dischar Review Board (NDRB) has upheld a previous decision denying that discrimination was a factor in Bruce Yamashita's "disenrollment" from Marine Corps Officer Candidate School in

The board stated that it has no jurisdiction to determine whether rac-ism affected the process by which Marine officer candidates were evaluated, or whether there was a conspiracy among OCS instructors to make sure Yamashita did not successfully complete the course.

"I thought we made a strong, convinc-ing case before the NDRB last Novem-ber, Yamashita said. "I'm disappointed that the board couldn't see beyond its wn narrow focus to the facts of the case. They're missing the forest for the trees."

Honolulu attorney Clayton Ikei, who pre-sented Yamashita's case before the NDRB in Arlington, Va., last November, said he will appeal to the Board of orrection of Naval Records.

"The Marine Corps is caught in a 'Catch 22' situation," Yama-shita said. "When we appeared in person be-fore the NDRB last November, the chair said there was no federal administrative agency that properly could claim jurisdiction over those two significant issues, or give us the relief

Membership service widens

The Centralized Membership Program initiated by JACL Na-tional Headquarters in 1992 has expanded from 17 participating apters to 51, according to Clay Harada, assistant director of membership.

The second year response to centralized membership auto-mated renewal program was reater than anticipated," he said. The program was offered to 17 chapters on a trial basis in May, 1992. It was proposed as an alternative to the existing renewal pro-cedures conducted by chapters."

To streamline the process of re-ewing members, National Headquarters prepares a chapter's re-newal notices, collects remittances and issues membership cards. National Headquarters also provides chapters with membership reports on a monthly and quarterly basis.

The computerized system at San Francisco headquarters pro-vides chapters with easy access to membership information. Up-todate membership reports can be generated to assist chapters for special events mailing or membership recruitment drives. Chapters now participating in the program include: NCWNP

Alan Nishi, national vice presi-dent of membership services, said, The success of the centralized membership program in less than one year is very encouraging. Par-ticipating chapters can now focus their attention on recruitment of new members and the development of chapter membership pro grams

According to national headquarters, further refinements will be made to the Centralized Membership Program. Improvements in clude additional reports to pro-vide updated and detailed changes in a chapter's membership and the development of one form to serve as a membership renewal and membership card.

Long distance program is new JACL benefit

The JACL Members' Long Distance Advantage Program (MLDA) has been introduced as a new benefit to members.

The phone calling program is available for both residential and commercial use. It is designed to give JACL members-access to sub-stantial long distance calling discounts and general funds to sup-port the organization's programs.

MLDA is conducting a promotion of the JACL Members' Long Distance Advantage Program. JACL members will be contacted by direct mail or by a representative of MLDA to explain the program which is a top quality trans mission from the nation's only 100% digital fiber optic network. There is no cost for JACL members to join this program because the switchover fee charged to local telephone companies is reim-bursed by MLDA. There is no minimum usage required, and embers may save up to 25% on all long distance calls made after 5 p.m. In addition, 24-hour assistance is available from customer service representatives

Royalties generated from this program will be placed in the JACL Support Fund used to implement the educational and civil rights programs of the orga-

Matsui praises Schott decision

Rep. Robert Matsui (D-Calif.) praised Major League Baseball for its action against Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott, saying that "The baseball owners did what they had to do in order to preserve the public's faith in the ame and to preserve the game itself as the American pastime.

Matsui, who has been critical of the owner, added that "I am pleased that Major League Base-ball has acted firmly to send the signal that racial bigotry will not be tolerated at any level. "Baseball still has a long way to go in fully integrating itself, but this action today (Jan. 27) is a major step forward.

The executive council, which has been running the league since Commissioner Faye Vincent stepped down in September, had appointed a four-member commit-tee to investigate the Schott matter. Bud Selig, chairman of the committee, announced the deci-sion after an 8 1/2-hour meeting.

Hayashi noted that the Marge Schott incident simply reflects the poor state of race relations inherent in the sport.

The issues of racism raised by her remarks must be taken seri-ously by Major League Baseball," Hayashi said. "We want more minorities in the front office and in positions of management. This must be addressed if we are to move toward eliminating institu-tional racism in baseball."

Bowl Dance," the comic dramatic story of a young Nisei woman in the 1940s who comes to Chicago after being interned for two years during the war. The play addresses the difficulty of assimilation into American life by the Japanese Americans after release from the camps. Okita and Angel Island Theatre President Christina Adachi have been interviewing many members of Chicago's Japa-nese American community to learn of their personal experiences and stories. The world premiere of "The Salad Bowl Dance" is scheduled for May. Following the film and theatrical presentation will be a panel discussion with Sansei and Yonsei expressing their feelings about the internment.

Unfinished business

Backin the spring of 1942 when Japaness Americans of the Fresno area were herded into the fairgrounds, Dr. Hubert Phillips was one of the few who did not hesitate to speak out against the outrage.

When administrators scheduled a graduation ceremony in the camp for high school students, Dr. Phillips came to deliver an insuffing commencement address.

State University.

Fast forward now to the present. At JACL's Central California District Council meeting, the $1,000 Frank Nishio Civil Rights Award was presented to Tom Kirwin, editor of the editorial page of the Fresno Bee, which in the "bad old days" had been extremely hostile toward Japanese Americans.

Kirwin, in his acceptance speech, acknowledged that the Bee, one of the McClatchy newspapers, caused "pain for many of you." He said Dr. Phillips in 1971 had given him a copy of his internment camp commencement speech and it stirred his interest in the Evacuation. The interest moved him to write about that dark episode, and to get into the Redress discussion in his pages. That, he said, helped the community to understand what it was all

Now, he continued, the award from JACL "represented a completion of the circle for me and the institution I work for."

And then he contributed the $1,000 award to the Phillips Memorial Scholarship with these words:

these words:

"The award symbolized redemption and forgiveness, and a recognition that institutions and people learn and change and do better."

The Bee is not the only publishing institution that has learned, changed and is doing better. The same could be said of other major West Coast newspapers which, almost without exception, treated Japanese Americans harshly after the outbreak of war.

FBI seizure of prominent Issei was sensationalized. Unsubstantiated charges of "suspicious" behavior were published prominently, adding to the hysteria. Min Yasui told me that after he had himself jailed to test the legality of the curfew order, one of the Portland newspapers published the story under a page one headline that screamed. Jap Spy Arrested. (Many years later I tried unsuccessfully to find a copy of this page. It could be that the headline appeared only in a limited edition printed for street sale and was not preserved.) After the Evacuation the drumfire against for street sale and was not preserved.)

Afterthe Evacuation the drumfire against Japanese Americans reached a crescendo during the Dies Committee hearings. Halfbaked charges were aired for the benefit of the press and published uncritically by Hearst newspapers and the Los Angeles Times. The Denver Post, where I labored for many years under a different management, was among the worst of the fearmongers.

Today a new generation of newspaper editors, reporters and managers stress fairness, belance, objectivity. Indeed institutions and people learn and change. And do better. It is to the credit of the folks in Fresno that they have recognized this truth.

Racism and riots

can still recall how I I dashed into the living room when my roommate told me about what was going on in South Central Los Angeless after the acquittal of the four policemen involved in the Rodney King case.
As I satthere and helplessly watched the many familiar areas of that city go up in flames, I could not help but feel angry and then saddened at how race relations in this country had reached such a dismal point. The reason why I mention the Los Angeles riots at this particular time, is that amidst the hoopla for the 1992 presidential election and all the bungee-jumping craze going on at that time, 1992 was a year which awakened us to the very serious racial tension in this country.

As a young Japanese American, I was particularly affected by the increase in anti-Asian sentiment in this country. During the first few months of the year, Japan-bashing by politicians and the media became a "national phenomenon." There was a great push from politicians and big corporate heads to blame economic woes of this country on the Japanese. "Made in the U.S.A." was no longer a label for pride, but came to symbolize a harsh boundary separating "us" from "them."

Another event, which seemed to heighten strong anti-Japanese sentiment, was the commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the signing of Executive Order 9066. Although the Day of Remembrance events progressed rather smoothly, there was an increase of animosity not only to Japanese Americans, but to all Asian Americans. Then, with the start of the Los Angeles riots of April 29-May 2, racial tension between the African American and Korean Americans communities finally exploded, resulting in strong resentment by both groups. Although these events received a great amount of mediacoverage, there were many acts of violence towards Asian Americans all across the country which did not show up on the front pages of major newspapers.

up on the Front pages of major newspapers. As a college student on the verge of entering the "real world," I feel a strong responsibility on my part to address and work towards ways to heighten the awareness of racism which continues to plague our country. I believe that one of the roots of the racial tension in the U.S. is due to ignorance, or a lack of understanding about different racial groups by the vast majority of the population. The senseless, violent attacks on many Asian Americans which are cropping up all across this country, clearly demonstrates the hostility among various racial groups stemming from their lack of understanding of one another. 1

There is a strong need now, more than ever, to educate and promote cultural awareness of all groups of people in this very diverse country. As Asian Americans, we must be more vocal and actively take part in promoting a better understanding of our diverse culture.

We must also open our minds and learn to accept a better understanding of other cultures as well. Unfortunately, the massmedia, along with our current educational system, does little to promote cultural awareness. Many of us grow up with mixed messages about one another in our society and these views, whether they be good or bad, shape our way of thinking as we get older.

Therefore, we need to take it upon ourselves to help educate the general public about racial understanding. Gaining knowledge about ourselves and spreading that knowledge to others is a big step towards improving race relations in our country. Let's not forget however, that change will not come over night. The struggle for better racial understanding will no doubt take many, many years. Yet if we hope to see our society change, we must take the effort to does. Let's do everything we feel possible in order to prevent another L.A. riot of another Vincent Chin incident in our country. Peace.

After a few days at home, I was back in San Jose for the chapter's 70th anniversary. It was a gala black tie affair with Sen. Dan Inouye giving the keynote address. "You would think that people would understand that if a racial slur takes place, they will try to take action to address the problem," said Chris Marr, member of the Spokane Chapter, JACL. "Worse than the term being used was the action of Democratic party officials." Marr, a local businessman, ap-peared Feb. 4 before the Affirma-tive Action Committee of the Spo-kane County Democratic Party to formally complain. "The Affirma-tive Action Committee has to issue an unequivocable statement, an apology to Mr. Ng and the whole Asian American community," said Marr.
"There is a lot of side-stepping of whom are party officials. Re-gardless of if person A or person B said it, the Democratic party has got a problem," said Marr.

Marr is seeking the immediate resignation of Workland, if he in-deed was the one who made the comment, and the formation of a pecial committee to investigate ne local Democratic party's handling of the incident.

Originally from Monterey Bay, California, Marr explained that Spokane is very different from Spokane is very different from the more cosmopolitan Seattle. "During World War II, a large percentage of Japanese Ameri-cans relocated, some moved back, some did not. As far as I know, there are no Asian American ted officials (in Spokane)," said Marr.
