Report Reveals Census Bureau Data on JAs Used in Internment Process

By MARTHA NAKAGAWA

As the census canvassing period kicks into high gear from March through August, Japanese American leaders, including the JACL, are calling for the U.S. Census Bureau to issue an apology and to provide a full account of its role during World War II when it assisted the War Depart-ment in locating JAs for evacuation and detenti on and detention. The demand comes days before a report, which confirms these facts, is set to go public at the annual Population Association of America convention, held year in Los Angeles from March 23-25. The report is co-written by William Seltzer, a senior research scholar in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Fordham University, and Margo Anderson, a sociology professor at the University of Wisconsin. In 1998, Seltzer released a similar study which examined how the Nazis used population data in Germany, Poland, France, the Netherlands and Norway to obtain information on Jewish demographics.

According to JACL National Director John Tateishi, the Seltzer/Anderson study verifies what the JACL had first unveiled in the late 1970s during the re-dress campaign. At that time, however, Tateishi said the information could not thoroughly be substantiated because JACL could only gain limited access to "This current study does in fact substantiate something we have long suspected," said Tateishi. "I find if extremely troubling that such an intentional breach of confidentiality could take place in collusion between different branches of government. The net seems to get cast more and more widely as we uncover facts that implicate the three branches of government and different agencies within government. ... A full accounting by the Census Bu-reau and an apology are owed to Japanese Americans and to the American public."

"This is another black mark in a very dark period of America's history," said U.S. Congressman Robert Matsui. "And it adds in-sult to injury to find out 50 years later that Japanese Americans have been lied to about actions taken by our government. Let us not make this chapter in our history worse by deceiving more generations. The Census Bureau should provide a full account of its involvement and apologize for this deception.

Census Bureau Director Ken-neth Prewitt confirmed in a written statement that the bureau had assisted the War Depart-ment during WWII and stated "the cooperation of the Census Bureau in this effort is re-

"In the spring of 1942, the Census Bureau cooperated with the war effort by providing special tabulations of the Japanese American population for counted and county subdivisions, and for some cities at the block level," said Previtt. "There is no evidence that individual census records were provided to the Wer records were provided to the War Department."

Because no individual names of JAs were released to the War Department, Prewitt said the Census Bureau "did not techni-cally violate the law at the time." A 1929 law had barred the Cen-sus Bureau from disclosing inforsus Bureau from dis

But Tateishi felt citing technicalities was a weak excuse. For the Census Bureau to state now that the Bureau did not technithat the Bureau did not techni-cally violate onfidentiality laws because individual census records were not provided to the War Department is not good enough," said Tateishi. "That's like saying the government did not technically exclude or intern us because they left technical loopholes. But the Census Buloopholes. But the Census Bu-reau identified where we resided, and the government expelled us from our homes and imprisoned us. Hiding behind technicalities is what the government did in 1942, and for the Bureau to do so now is an insult to Japanese

OHA Seeks to Preserve 'Hawaiian-Only' Voting System

The Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA) on March 16 requested the Legislature to convert to a private entity in an effort to preserve the "Hawaiian-only" vot-ing system struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court in the Rice vs. Cayetano case. The Feb. 23 ruling made it illegal to hold a state-sponsored election of a state agency on the basis of race, thus opening the doors for non-Hawaiians to vote in an OHA election.

The OHA was created in 1979 The OHA was created in 1979 after the government failed to meet certain obligations to the descendants of the indigenous people of the islands, which was part of the conditions of Hawaiian statehood in 1959. America's Concentration Camps

Exhibition on WWII Incarceration of JAs Featured at California Historical Society

The award-winning exhibition "America's Concentration Camps: Remembering the Japanese American Experience" is the featured exhibit at the California Historical Society beginning March 21 and running through June I.

The exhibit drew record crowds to its premier at the Japanese American National Museum in Los Angeles in 1994 and 1995, Ellis Island in 1998 and the William Breman Jewish Heritage Museum in Atlanta in 1999. "America's Concentration Remembering Camps: Japanese American Experience outlines the largest violation o individual's rights by the U.S. government of the 20th century. It details the World War II experiences of 120,000 Americans of Japanese ancestry who were forced to leave their homes and businesses on the West Coast and Hawaii, and live in desolate camps located in seven states west of the Mississippi River. Japanese American community leaders were taken into custody without charge and without tri-al; some were even held on Ellis Island. Ultimately, the FBI concluded that there were no acts of sabotage or disloyalty by JAs.

The exhibition outlines this experience through historic photographs depicting the force moval and mass incarceration home movie footage of camp life in the Japanese National Museum's award-winning video, "Something Strong Within," as well as collections and personal stories. The exhibit, which was created by the national museum and designed by Ralph Appelbaum Associates, Inc., the designers of ermanent the permanent exhibition for United States Holocaust Memori-Museum, represents each camp with a detailed map and statistics. Beyond providing facts and figures, the exhibition focuses on the human experitold ence. through words, historic photographs and memen-tos. Some of the pieces exwere

Many others, including Gypsies, Poles, homosexuals and political dissidents were also victims of the Nazi concentration camps. Federal Government Releases Guidelines on Multiple Race Responses

The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) recently re-leased guidelines on how race data for multiracial individuals will be treated by federal agen-cies that enforce anti-discrimination and civil rights laws, and by entities that report race data to the federal government. For the first time, census forms will allow individuals to identify themselves as belonging to more than one race category. This will result in approximately 63 racial categories because of the many possible combinations.

The guidelines issued by the OMB address the treatment of OMB address the treatment of multiple race responses in both administrative reporting and civil rights enforcement con-texts. Race data collected on many forms including the cen-sus forms is extremely impor-tant in preserving civil rights. For example the process of re-For example, the process of re-districting where states draw boundaries of electoral districts uses race data along with voting age and general population. Such data is also used to determine whether employers are discriminating in hiring decisions or whether hospitals, banks and schools are discriminating against individuals based on

Several leading civil rights or-ganizations, including the Na-tional Asian Pacific American Legal Consortium, recommendbegar Consortuin, recommended ed that multiple race responses be allocated to single race cate-gories for use in civil rights en-forcement. "We believe that an allocation method would make the data more meaningful in civ il rights litigation and would al-low for historical comparisons to monitor discrimination trends. stated Karen K, Narasaki, exec-utive director of the Consortium.

The guidelines first set out how businesses, schools and hos-pitals should report race data to the federal government. According to the guidelines, these entities will use forms that place responses into single races, the four double race combinations most frequently reported (Amer-ican Indian/Alaska Native and White; Asian and White; African American and White: American American and White, American Indian/Alaska Native and African American), and a "bal-ance" category of individuals who do not fall into these categories. There is also a category which will allow for the reporting of additional combinations meet a 1-percent threshold

Many combinations with Asian might fall into the balance category. "We believe that over category. "We believe that over half of Native Hawaiians are of mixed race backgrounds. We are concerned that Native Hawai-ians and other Pacific Islanders who are mixed race will be placed into a 'balance' category placed into a national category since they will not account for one of the four largest multira-cial populations. As a result, valuable information on this community will be ignored," stated Narasaki.

For civil rights purposes, the guidelines require that federal agencies allocate multiple race responses to single-race cate-gories. "According to the guide-lines, responses that combine a minority race and White will be minority race and White will be allocated to the minority race category," explained Deepa Iyer, staff, attorney at the Consor-rium. JACL NATIONAL CONVENTION

Tour of National Steinbeck Center to Take Place During JACL National Convention

The West Valley JACL chapter will host tour of the National Steinbeck Center during the JACL na-

June in Monterey. The National June in Monterey, The National Steinbeck Center was created to promote the life of author John Steinbeck, a native of Salinas. Steinbeck wrote such works as "Cannery Row," Grapes of Wrath," "East of Eden," and "Of Mice and Mice." Men.

The National Steinbeck Center is an $11 million interactive muse-um that guides visitors through Steinbeck's books, life, and places about which he lived and wrote. Through the center, Steinbeck's world comes to life in themed gal-leries throughout the main exhibit wing: Growing Up East of Eden, An Live Off the Fatta the Lan, Grapes of Wrath, Cannery Row, Adventures on Land and Sea, and Steinbeck's America.

Through stimulating multi-sensory stage-set activity centers, graphic and text panels discussing literary themes, and interactive features, visitors get a sense of the author and the man. There is enough variety to entertain the ca-sual visitor while at the same time satisfying the thirst of the biggest Steinbeck enthusiast.

West Valley JACL will charter a bus for its chapter members and guests that leaves from San Jose around mid-morning on Saturday, July 1. The bus will arrive in Monterey to allow individuals the op-portunity to do one or more of the following: visit the convention, see rottowing visit the convention, see a video presentation on Japanese American fishermen at the Maritime Museum, go shopping, and/or eatch lunch at one of the many restaurants in downtown Monteerer. rey. The tour of the Nation al Steinbeck Center will take pla after lunch, where convention delegates will have the opportunity to join West Valley JACL for an afternoon of fun and excitement.

One issue where we could assist and that most people are familiar with, is the Wen Ho Lee case. Curwith, is the Wen Ho Lee case. Currently, Dr. Lee is being held without bail in prison, stripped of his basic constitutional right to due process. It is a case of APA stereotyping, pigeon-holing, and racial profiling. This case of APA racial profiling is not limited to APA scientific and the control of the entists or those in the high tech field; it affects all of us — as people. As regional director, if I don't report on these issues to our mem bership, then I'm not doing my job - shame on me. But as an organization, if we stand silently by on this issue, as an individual's right to due process is denied, then shame on us!

We can all make a difference by We can all make a difference by signing the OCA petition to the President of the United States. It does not take a position on Dr. Lee's guilt or innocence, but simply requests the president to take the following actions:

Asks Attorney General Janet Reno to request that the judge re-consider allowing Dr. Lee to go free on bail pending his trial.

Requests that the Justice De-

Takes a strong public position on zero tolerance policy on racial profiling within the federal government.

Open Letter

O DOUBT, not unlike many others out there, as a longtime follower of "From the Frying Pan," I was stunned to read Bill Hosokawa's column titled "Finale," announcing that he was discontinuing his column in this newspaper. I contemplated sending a private letter to him, unsure of just what I might say. Instead of a private communi-cation, I've decided to express some thoughts via this "Open

As a second-stringer con tributing columnist to this publication, let me start by declaring that I cannot and do not disagree with Hosokawa's ass ment of the manner in which the-powers-that-be (whoever they are) handled the entire matter of juggling the line-up.

OVER THE YEARS, as a reader as well as a contributing columnist to this publication, I had been repeatedly impressed by Hosokawa's scope and depth of knowledge of the Nikkei community and many of its person-alities. I cannot think of anyone who can even begin to approach Hosokawa's capacities in this respect. With this unmatched store of knowledge, he was able to provide the depth of perspective essential for balanced judgment. In charting our course into the future, it is all-essential to know where we are now: and to determine where we are now, it is all-essential to know where we've been. In various disciplines it's known as "trian-gulation." There may be some who contend that they are en-dowed with some "internal compass" thereby purportedly making historic triangulation unnecessary.

Hosokawa's departure would deprive us of that third point of the past-present-future triangu-

Over the years the "Frying Pan" column demon-strated its willingness to discuss issues that no one else would raise, at least not openly. One of the more recent exam-ples was questioning how it came about that a particular Nikkei was selected to be the recipient of a medal for his refusal to comply with the 1942 expul-sion order directed against all Japanese 'alien and non-alien" residing along our Pacific Coast WRITING A COLUMN, particularly on a sustained, con-tinued basis, is not easy, it requires discipline and ongoing commitment. To make a few cameo appearances on these cameo appearances on these pages and then disappear is common; I know, I've been there. In contrast to this, the professional that he is, Hosokawa has constantly met his weekly assignment. Thus, even when he is off on an oversees trin he will in advance seas trip, he will, in advance, send in enough columns to fill in the period of his absence. Harry Honda, editor emeritus, com-mented on this some years ago. Over the years I've had occasion to flit about various parts of this land. In meeting fellow Nikkei, many comment that they enjoy reading Bill Hosokawa's column (politely adding "yours too"). One Nikkei lady mentioned just the other day: "the only thing I look for are columns, and I put the paper away."

Bill Hosokawa: The Nikkei, especially the generation of par-ents of the baby-boomers, need to be able to continue reading the "Frying Pan." We continue to need your candid voice. Come back for a little while longer. But come back.

Tourist Fantasy and Kanaka Maoli Reality

to the cover, which featured the darkened silhouette of a hula dancer against the background of a spectacular orange sunset. I'm sure the picture was designed to evoke thoughts of what it might be like to escape to a beautiful, tropical paradise filled with beautiful, tropical people. But instead I was struck by the lich terms between fourier fan. dichotomy between tourist fan-tasy as depicted on the maga-zine cover and the Kanaka Maoli (Native Hawaiian) reality.

Kanaka Maoli have the high-est infant mortality rate and the lowest life expectancy of any eth-nic group in Hawaii. They die from heart disease and cancer dismal. More than half of Kana-ka Maoli do not graduate from high school, and 34 percent live in poverty. Although Kanaka Maoli comprise less than 20 per-cent of Hawaii's population, they are more than 40 percent of Hawaii's prison population. These conditions were created lexedy by UIS actions In 1883.

40 percent more often than the U.S. average. Other statistics are equally dismal. More than half of Kana-

largely by U.S. actions. In 1893, a small group of American busia small group of American busi-nessmen, including Sanford Dole, overthrew Queen Lil-i'uokalani, the reigning monarch of the sovereign kingdom of Hawaii. These businessmen Hawaii. seized land belonging to the Hawaiian Crown and governnawanan Crown and govern-ment. Then they sold the land to their friends, commercial sugar and pineapple barons, and gave thousands of acres to the U.S. military. In 1898, the United States annexed Hawaii, and in 1959, when Kanaka Maoli had become a minority on their own islands, Hawaii became the fifti-

The fundamental problem in Hawaii revolves around the ownership of land, which is sacred as well as life-sustaining for the Kanaka Maoli. More than 70 percent of the land in Hawaii is percent of the land in Hawan is owned or controlled by eight enti-ties, including the U.S. federal government (16.5 percent), state government (almost 30 percent), and six private landowners (25 percent). The current situation leaves the Kanaka Maoli with little access to the lands and beach-es which provided them with spiritual and material livelihood for more than a thousand years.

Ironically, nearly 2 million acres is held in trust for the Kanaka Maoli under the Hawai ian Homelands Act of 1921 and the Ceded Lands Trust. The cedthe Ceded Lands Prust. The ced-ed lands are 1.75 million acres which belonged to the Hawaiian Crown but were seized during the overthrow of Queen Lili'uokalani. These lands were then ceded to the U.S. federal government in 1898 and were given to the state of Hawaii in 1959. However, the federal gov-ernment still pays only one dol-lar to lease thousands of acres of ceded lands, which are used for national parks, military bases, and other facilities. The bulk of the revenue from ceded lands (80 percent) goes to the state government, while the remaining 20 percent is sup-posed to be managed by the Of-fice of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA) for the benefit of the Kanaka Maoli Most Kanaka Maoli do not benefit very much from the OHA's $250 million in assets, however, because only 2 percent is allocated to help the Kanaka Maoli. The rest of OHA's revenue is turned into investments.

It should come as no surprise, then, that the Kanaka Maoli are dissatisfied with this system and want to re-establish a sovereign nation in Hawaii. The largest organization which is advocating sovereignty is Ka Lahui Hawaii, with 20,000 members. The other three largest organizations are Poka Laenui, Nation of Hawaii, and Ka Pakaukau. Views differ slightly between these groups, but all are committed to the environmental protection of Hawai-ian lands. All would allow non-Native Hawaiians to retain prop-erty they currently own and to join the new nation, and all except Ka Pakaukau would permit tourism. So the readers of that travel magazine could probably still vacation in the sovereign nation of Hawaii.

The only real difference would be the presence of justice for the Kanaka Maoli. ■

Christina Shigemura is work ing on an in-depth article which will examine the sovereignty movement in Hawaii.

Letters to the Editor

Re: Hosokawa's 'Finale'

It was with a great feeling of tearful sadness that I read Bill Hosokawa's "Finale" column in the Pacific Citizen, March 10-16.

In my mind, Bill's common sense, sagely and witty commentaries which appeared in the P.C. over long, long years of dedicated writ-ing have been the "voice of us old-timer Nisei." He is, most certainly, one of the most influential and pro-lific Nisei writers of our time.

Bill's columns reflected the thoughts and opinions of many of us who may well represent an en-dangered species. We owe him a profound sense of gratitude for sharing his talents with us. His eloquent, poignant writings, especially his "From the Frying Pan" col-ly his "From the Frying Pan" col-umn, will be sorely missed.

Thanks, Bill. I'll miss your leg-endary column in the PC. in the same way that I do Charles Schulz' "Peanuts" (fand Charlie Brown) and Herb Caen's "Baghdad By the Bay."

Bill Jujita Berkeley, Calif.

I originally wished to express my regret through a commentary at the boorish behavior of the P.C. board which culminated in the reboard which culminated in the re-tirement of Bill Hosokawa from the pages of fhis paper. However, bow-ing to the pleasures of the board's chair, I have been asked to contain my grievance in a shorter form.

First, I think the board and the chair, in particular, owe Bill Hosokawa both a public and personal apology for suggesting he has become "irrelevant" by the infre-quent publication of his column. Even worse, this notice was mailed to him in the form of a generic let ter without even a proper saluta tion, defying not only social eti-quette but common courtesy.

This type of arrogance belittles not only our finest veteran colum-nist but also the JACL member-ship, which I presume the board represents and serves. Bill suggestrepresents and serves. Bill suggest-ed his columns are becoming irrelevant to a younger generation. However, I would wager that at 50 percent or more of the bership falls within the age range of 60-80.

Neither the organization nor the Neither the organization nor the paper can be sustained without the financial support of my older generation. The PC. is not a private enterprise. It belongs to us JACL members. I, for one, have been a faithful PC. financial contributor even before exonomic problems required general solicitations.

For me, and I'm sure for many others, the P.C. has been the heart of JACL. Bill Hosokawa, a credenof JACL bill hosokawa, a creden-tialed and professional journalist, has kept the heart pumping. The P.C., into its seventh decade, knows that a paper is only as good as the relationship it sustains with its readers. This historical publication has survived largely because of the trust and respect it has earned through experienced writers like Bill. The PC. must protect that trust. That is its responsibility. The board has failed embarrassingly to fulfill its appointed role as keepers of that trust

Sachi Seko Salt Lake City

I felt that the era of Nisei-engendered, wide-ranging journalistic sphere was shortsightedly expiring spacer was snortsentedly expiring as I read Hosokawa's sayonara col-umn, with a seven-line editor's note. It was hardly a tribute or a sincere acknowledgment of Bill's half century of observations, as obhalf century of observations, as ob-served and reported by the best of our writers. It was a judgmental faux pas of monumental propor-tions by our current P.C. leader-

Bill Hosokawa's farewell "From the Frying Pan" column had a tinge of the T.S. Eliot ending "not with a bang but a whimper." It was disappointing news to many of us His mention of the impersons notice he received sometime back from the P.C. board chairperson about reducing the frequency of the various P.C. columnists' articles had an ironic twist. Now after 48 years of invaluable contributions to the P.C., let's recognize Bill more adequately than in the brief itali-cized note of thanks at the end of

Perhaps you can persuade him to offer occa sional articles in the future. Yes, the Sansei and Yonsei have taken over, but what Bill has to say transcends generations

George Yasukochi Berkeley, Calif.

I have often wondered over the years if the Pacific Citizen board had ever seriously considered un-derstanding its mission to be that of a civil rights paper within the Japanese American community, speaking to both its constituency and the larger community about justice issues affecting our Asian American community.

I am writing this letter because understand that P.C. columnist Bill Hosokawa, who, I believe, was there in Seattle in 1929 when JACL was born, will no longer be contributing his column to the P.C. To me, Bill's column was the printed voice of the JACL and the policies of the JACL.

Now that he will no longer be writing his column, I am suggest-ing that the P.C., at the start of a new millennium, consider becon ing an independent voice instead of a house organ, as it has been per-ceived to be for so long.

Paul Tsuneishi Sunland, Calif.

Re: McCain Statement

I remain in strong support of JACL's stance against Sen. McCain's unfortunate comments. A couple of readers in the last is-sue took offense to this position, suggesting that the JACL was too hard on McCain.

True, McCain's comments must be understood within the context of his war experience. His words alone don't make him a racist. His use of the term "gook," however, IS RACIALLY INSEN-SITIVE.

One's words can often have an effect that goes beyond their in-tended meaning, especially if one uses a term that is so racially loaded.

Sen. McCain is a public figure in politics; he should know better. It is obtuse and unreasonable for him to assume that others should understand that his use of the term "gook" is context specific. By using it, he completely ignored the negative impact that such a term continues to have on the Asian American community.

I applaud the JACL and Helen Kawagoe for raising the issues that they did.

Frank M. Yamada Evanston, Ill.

I find it disturbing that educated individuals such as David Moore, who has worked with the JACL for over 50 years, and Bill Kashiwagi, who is Japanese, find Sen. John McCain's use of the word "gook" ac ceptable because of his war experi-

Being a college student, the most important lesson I have learned is that as Asian Americans we must assert ourselves, or find ourselves being placed into the "passive Asian American" stereotype.

No matter what time p No matter what time period you are from or hardships you have experienced, racial slurs cannot be tolerated by the AA community and the JACL. If we are to allow Sen. McCain's use of the word "gook" because of his experience, I suppose the black community is to allow white police officers who were beaten in the L.A. riots to call their attackers "niggers." This would never be tolerated by the NAACP or black community leaders no matter what the circum-stances, and should not be tolerated by the JACL or AA community

The JACL is to be commended for its actions against Sen. McCain, who would undoubtedly ill represent the views of the AA communi-

Reader Wants More Coverage Outside California

At a recent meeting of the Pacif-ic Northwest Council, we discussed our thoughts about the Pacific Citrecurrent theme was P.C.'s al bias, focusing extensively on California on California.

Granted, California holds a large percentage of JAs. Nevertheless, if JACL is a NATIONAL organization, and if PC. is supposed to be a NATIONAL publication, they must pay attention to the rest of the country. Otherwise, national JACL should change its name to California JACL, and P.C. should change

nia JACL, and P.C. should change its name to California Citizen.

Hence, if P.C. wants national support, it needs to act like a na-tional publication and recognize there are JAs outside of California.
