Doris Matsui to Run for Late Husband's Congressional Seat

By CAROLINE AOYAGI Executive Editor

After a great deal of speculation from political pundits and community members alike, Doris Matsui has decided to run for her late husband's congressional seat.

Just days after Robert Matsui was laid to rest after serving 26 years in the U.S. House of Representatives, his widow, Doris Matsui, announced her candidacy in order to carry out the legacy of the 5th Congressional District. "We're talking careers here," said Allan Hoffenblum, author of the influential California Target Book of state politics. "It's the most valuable political office in Sacramento. If you're an elected official, it's the only job that you can get that is life tenured."

Doris succeeds in her bid for the House seat, she would become the third widow from California to succeed their husbands in Congress. Democratic Rep. Lois Capps won her late husband Walter Capps Santa Barbara seat in 1998 and Republican Mary Bono won her late husband Sonny Bono's seat in the same year. See DORIS MATSU/page 2

America's last Chinese settlement is on the forefront of a new future while providing a glimpse into the past.

By LYUNDA LIN Assistant Editor

Nearly a century after Chinese immigrants first called the California town of Locke their home, they are finally owners of their own land.

In a Dec. 11 ceremony, Locke residents marked the first day they could legally sign a deed for land ownership — a small gesture for most, but for residents of this sleepy San Joaquin-Delta town, it was the last step in attaining the American dream.

Like many "Lockers," 81-year-old Connie King has been fighting for ownership of the land under the house she has lived in for over 50 years until now. She made a promise to some Locke residents before they died to achieve the goal of land ownership for them, and at the ceremony, she was able to keep her word. The event captured headlines, cast a much-needed spotlight on the forgotten town and signified important progress in making up for decades of injustice.

But every realized dream has its rude awakenings. Most of the original Locke residents who built the three-block town — currently a small ghost town — have since moved on. Only 15 residents still call home because property deeds were taken off the racks.

Although California's Alien Land Act was overturned in the 1950s, Locke residents have been kept from buying the land they call home because property deeds gave ownership of the land to a developer, while the tenants own the buildings.

"It is a very important symbolic development, because it formally, legally recognizes one aspect of the hardships suffered by our parents, grandparents and those before them," said University of Arizona Professor Gabriel Jack Chin, who along with his students, successfully campaigned to have similar alien land laws repealed in Wyoming and Kansas.

However, more work needs to be done. Currently, New Mexico and Florida still have alien land laws on the books. Voters in California recently rejected legislation to repeal the racist constitutional provision and a proposed constitut...

Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger has yet to set a date for a special election to fill Robert Matsui’s seat but a probable primary is likely to be set for early March. All candidates, regardless of party affiliation, will run in the primary and if one individual wins more than 50 percent of the votes, that person will be declared the winner. If there is no clear winner, the two highest vote-getters will face off in a general election in May.

In addition to Doris Matsui’s recent announcement of her candidacy, U.S. Senators Barbara Boxer and Dianne Feinstein of California are planning to introduce legislation that would designate the U.S. Courthouse in Sacramento as the Robert T. Matsui United States Courthouse.

Congressman Matsui was instrumental in obtaining more than $142 million in federal funding for the Courthouse.

“[Matsui] was a true patriot, and naming this courthouse after him is a very appropriate and meaningful continued effort toward a just and fair society,” said Boxer.

“Bob Matsui was a superb public servant and would be such a wonderful honor to memorialize him by naming the Federal Courthouse in Sacramento after him,” said Feinstein.

How About ‘Jpse.’ for Japanese?

Now that we are making progress in eliminating the derogatory word “Jap” from street signs, landmarks, speech, publications, etc., we should try to resolve the problem of what is an appropriate abbreviation for our language. Some of the dictionaries I’ve consulted still list “Jap” as an abbreviation for Japanese.

We’ve never really come to an agreement in the Nikkei communities as to what we should use, and at the latest JACL national convention in Honolulu, there was a handout from one of the JACL committees to use Jpse. for both Japan and Japanese. Jpse. is OK for Japan, but I don’t think it suffices for Japanese.

I vote in favor of Jpse. for Japanese, a suggestion made several years ago by another JACL member and one which I consistently follow in writing notes to myself. Although the suffix “”s” is missing from Jpse., I don’t think it would take too much imagination to figure out that Jpse. stands for Japanese. I think dictionaries should be enriched by the history and vitality of every member of our community.

Congratulations to the Pacific Citizen on its 75th anniversary as the national publication of the Japanese Americans Citizens League.

The Pacific Citizen plays a vital role in facilitating communication throughout the Japanese American community and the State of California. I believe that we are all enriched by the history and vitality of every member of our community.

I commend you for 75 years of achievement and wish you continued success.

* Mexican Reparations

We Japanese Americans who experienced the evacuation and incarceration in 1942 still remember it with pain. Although it was over 60 years ago, and the helplessness we felt when the U.S. Constitution failed to protect an identifiable ethnic group of people.

To make amends for the injustice, “Mexican Reparations” bills have been introduced in the California state legislature. Passage of those bills would offer a formal apology and monetary reparation. But I have not seen any articles about Mexican reparations in the Pacific Citizen. Nor have any statements of the subject from our JACL leaders. Has there been any? If not, why not?

Those Mexican American survivors of reparations, now in their 70s and 80s, suffered a fate similar to ours and for similar reasons. Shouldn’t we, of all people, recognize their plight?

Chaplain Yee Honorably Discharged

By MELANTHIA MITCHELL
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE—A Muslim chaplain imprisoned for 76 days as part of an espionage probe by the government for allegedly mishandling classified material was honorably discharged from the Army.

Although Army Capt. James Yee has not been cleared of espionage allegations, he resigned in August, saying officials never apologized to him. His discharge was effective at midnight Thursday, one day before his civilian defense attorney, Eugene R. Fidell.

"As a West Point graduate, he leaves the Army with great sadness," Fidell said in an e-mail to The Associated Press. "That is the fact that he was imprisoned for a prolonged period for no valid reason remains indefensible.

After the Army cleared Yee, he returned in April to his home base of Fort Lewis, about 40 miles south of Seattle, to resume his duties as a chaplain.

An official announcement of Yee's discharge was not expected. The Army doesn't publicly announce administrative actions such as officer resignations or soldiers leaving the Army, said Lt. Col. Pamela Hart, an Army spokeswoman at Fort Lewis.

Fidell said Yee and his family were grateful for the support they've received, and that Yee always favored "the course of doing the right thing and expressing his views about his experience."

Yee, who is now at home with his wife and daughter in Orange County, south of the Army base, was not granting interviews, Fidell said.

Fidell has previously said that after Yee leaves the military, he plans to finish his master's degree in international relations at Troy University, which has a campus near Fort Lewis.

The military charged Yee in 2003 with mishandling classified material, failing to obey an order, making a false official statement, adultery and conduct unbecoming an officer.

All criminal charges were dismissed in March 2004, but Army officials found Yee guilty of six non-criminal administrative charges of adultery and downloading pornography. The reprimand he received was thrown out by an Army general a month later.

Yee submitted his letter of resignation to the Army in August, saying officials had advised him or allowed him to retrieve his belongings from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Job Judge Drops Case Against Woman Accused of Being a Chinese Double Agent

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal judge dismissed all charges against a former FBI informant accused of being a Chinese double agent and rebelled federal prosecutors for "deliberate misconduct" in the case.

U.S. District Judge Florence Yee's decision ended the 11-year case against Smith, who for years was Leung's legal defender. He served his Sacramento campaign and was effective at midnight Thursday, one day before his civilian defense attorney, Eugene R. Fidell.

"As a West Point graduate, he leaves the Army with great sadness," Fidell said in an e-mail to The Associated Press. "That is the fact that he was imprisoned for a prolonged period for no valid reason remains indefensible.
